Nazis Hit Back

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Thursday), March 21. Nine British warships and merchantmen with an approximate tonnage of 42,000 were sunk, and two merchant ships of about 11,000 tons were severely damaged in a German bombing raid on a convoy off the Scottish coast yesterday, DNB, official German news agency, declared today.

The Reich's air force swooped out into the North Sea and settled upon a large convoy under protection of the British navy and air force, in apparent retaliation for Britain's raid on the base of Sylt Tuesday night.

The merchantmen were "strongly" protected by British warships, DNB said, but the convoy split and scattered when the German planes attacked. The German planes were said to have returned home.

3 Ships Hit, British Say

London (Thursday), March 21 (AP). Germany's air force hit back last night in revenge for the tremendous pounding which British planes dealt out to Sylt, swarming down on a convoy off the Scottish coast, fighting a harsh battle with British warships and naval planes and damaging three neutral ships.

Revising its first estimate of the casualties early today, the British admiralty said three neutral ships in the convoy suffered damage and that one of them was abandoned by her crew.

The abandoned ship was the Norwegian Svinta, 1,267 tons. Her crew was picked up by another Norwegian vessel.

The Swedish Utklippan, 1,599 tons, was hit by an incendiary bomb and the Norwegian Tora Elise, 721 tons, likewise was damaged.

Antiaircraft fire from escorting warships damaged one attacking Heinkel bomber, the admiralty said. Planes of the Fleet Air Arm, Britain's naval air force, hit two other Heinkels and on one occasion two of the British planes scattered ten Heinkels.

None of the British warships or planes was damaged, authorities insisted.

This rapid retaliatory action for the six-hour Royal Air Force smash at the Nazi base on Sylt served to heighten reports that the British

X-Rays Lead Florida Woman To Expect Quintuplets

Miami, Fla., March 20.—The 22-year-old wife of a furniture factory apprentice revealed today that she hopes to become the mother of quintuplets within the next two months.

Her physician, Dr. Arthur W. Wood, said the expectation was based on X-ray pictures that appeared to show five distinct heads.

Mrs. Emory Callahan and her 32-year-old husband beamed as they told of their hopes.

Should these be realized, medical authorities said Mrs. Callahan would become the thirty-first woman in scientific history to give birth to quintuplets.

At North Bay, Ontario, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe said: "I wish them luck, they'll need it." Dr. Dafoe delivered the Dionne quintuplets near Callander, Ontario, in May, 1934.

Reynaud Seeks Government To Push War

Daladier, Who Quit As French Premier, Is Offered Portfolio

By the Associated Press

Paris (Thursday), March 21.—Persons close to Paul Reynaud said early this morning that he hoped before the day was out to complete a new "push the war" cabinet for France and end the government crisis precipitated yesterday by the resignation of the cabinet and Edouard Daladier.

The new government, these sources said, likely will go before the Chamber of Deputies Friday for a vote of confidence.

The formation planned by Reynaud includes virtually all political parties, but its final make-up depends on the decision of the executive committee of the Socialist group, called for late this morning to consider an invitation to join the cabinet.

Much depends on Daladier, who was offered the war ministry but whose acceptance is not yet official.

Reynaud concluded his first night's consultation about 2 a. m. after seeing Daladier; Edouard Herriot, president of the Chamber; Jules Jeanneney, president of the Senate; Louis Rollin, former commerce minister; Georges Mandel, minister of colonies in the Daladier cabinet; Henri Queuille, minister of agriculture in the Daladier cabinet; Camille Chautemps, Daladier's vice

Cromwell's Recall Asked In Congress

May Quit Willingly; Reported Considering Campaign for Senate

Possibility of an official reprimand, heated criticism and fulsome praise on Capitol Hill and an apparent arrangement for him to run for the Senate were crowded yesterday into the life of James H. R. Cromwell, youthful American Minister to Canada.

All followed quickly his speech at Toronto Tuesday in which he strongly indicted Germany and expressed emphatic desire for an Allied victory as beneficial to the world.

Secretary of State Hull rather grimly revealed that he had called on both Cromwell, now in New Jersey, and the legation at Ottawa, to send a copy of Cromwell's speech, which had not been passed on in advance by the department.

The minister's recall was loudly called for by some members of Congress, while others were inclined to commend him, either openly or off the record, for the sentiments he had expressed.

Representative Sweeney (Democrat), of Ohio, introduced a resolution calling for recall if an investigation should determine Cromwell was correctly quoted in his criticism of American isolationists. He declared:

"We should have the courage to tell Cromwell and his lawfully wedded fortune, Doris Duke, to get

Russia Asks Larger Slice Of Finland

Treaty Frontier Map Altered by Soviets To Their Advantage, Stockholm Hears

By Harold Callender.
Copyright by New York Times.

Stockholm, March 20.—According to advices received here the Finnish delegation in Moscow received no less than two shocks today, one after another.

After the delegation had been informed the Soviet Union was not permitting Finland to enter the Nordic defense alliance, a map was produced by the Russian delegates showing a frontier line patterned upon the peace treaty, but changed in several places to the advantage of the Russians.

It is understood that the Russians are insisting that the frontier be moved further into Finnish territory. Exact details are lacking, but the fact that the Finnish delegation immediately communicated with Helsinki indicates the new claims are substantial.

In Sweden the response to Moscow's warning against a Nordic alliance was immediate. Foreign Minister Guenther issued a statement saying Russia had misunderstood the pact, which was purely defense, and Prof. Bagge, Conservative leader, took the same stand in a speech tonight. In other words, the Swedish foreign minister rejected the Russian interpretation.

Staff Talks May Continue

Meanwhile, it was said in authoritative quarters in Stockholm that there was no reason why the staff talks between Sweden and Norway should not continue, whether a formal pact were signed or not.

In Oslo, where enthusiasm for the pact is less pronounced than in Stockholm, it was said Moscow's pronouncement might make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for Finland to enter a defense pact designed primarily to protect her frontiers.

The announcement that Moscow objected to the proposed Finnish-Swedish-Norwegian mutual assistance pact on the ground that it was directed against Russia was a severe blow to that ambitious project.

It was as if Moscow had deliberately underlined Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech on Tuesday by substantiating his warning that the north was still—or more than ever—in danger.

Russia May Decide to Feel Unsafe

For the Moscow statement seemed to some in Oslo to be a hint of further trouble on the eastern frontiers of Scandinavia which might again raise the whole question of defense of Finland and even of a possible Allied expeditionary force for that purpose. Article 3 of the Russo-Finnish peace treaty provided that neither party would join a combination of powers directed against the other, and Russia professes to consider that the northern pact is such a combination, though Scandinavian legal experts take the opposite view.

The implication is that Russia may decide to feel unsafe in the face of an alleged threat from Scandinavia.

Certain high officials in Sweden and Norway say they are convinced that Russia is now satisfied and seeks no more "living space" in the north. They take the same hopeful view of Russia that the British took of Germany after Munich.

Others are more suspicious and point out that Russia has followed

Allen Quits; Citizens Urge D.C. Resident

Commissioner Will Return to His Insurance Work; Roosevelt 'Regretful'

By Charles Stofberg.
Post Staff Writer

Resignation yesterday of Commissioner George E. Allen from the District government brought forth a united plea from civic spokesmen that President Roosevelt select a "bona fide" resident as his successor.

The resignation, effective April 15, will permit Allen to return to his work as vice president of the Home Insurance Co., of New York.

Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, last night declared "now is the time for the appointment of a bona fide resident who is genuinely interested in the District and one who has the interests of the local people at heart."

No Surprise to President

The federation president added that the new appointee should be one who has had experience in organizational work in the District.

Last night the Citizens Association of Chevy Chase, meeting in the E. V. Brown School, went on record favoring a "bona fide" District resident for the post Commissioner Allen is leaving vacant.

Similar action was taken by the Southwest Citizens Association at its meeting in the Jefferson Junior School. This group urged appointment of a District resident not only for Allen's post, but also for the Police Court judgeship vacated recently by District Attorney Edward M. Curran.

Expected for some time, Allen's resignation did not surprise President Roosevelt or District Building officials. When the President last fall "drafted" Allen from his insurance work to return to District service for the sole purpose of getting through Congress a bill for municipal reform, it was understood the Commissioner would resign at the completion of his work.

At present a District reorganization bill lies dormant in the House District subcommittee on reorganization, with small prospects of successful steerage through Congress.

Commissioner "Reluctant"

However, Allen, as well as officials of the insurance company, felt that his "loan" from the company had been "long enough" and that he must resign. Letters were exchanged between the President and Commissioner Allen. Allen said he was "reluctant" to resign and the President stated he was "sincerely regretful" in accepting the resignation.

Also demanding a "bona fide" resident for the job is Francis W. Hill, jr., president of the District Bar Association. He said he would like to see a man appointed "who has lived in the District for such time as to be thoroughly acquainted with its needs and activities."

"What we want is a two-fisted fighter who will really do the things needed in the District," Hill said.

The names of Rmggold Hart, former assistant corporation counsel, and Sefton Darr, former president of the bar association and a strong advocate for local suffrage, were suggested by several civic spokesmen as possible successors.

A. D. Calvert, president of the Lincoln Park Citizens Association,

3d Termers Shocked As Farley Announces Presidential Candidacy

The Next Commissioner

Commissioner George E. Allen's resignation comes at a time when the affairs of the District are in a state of confusion. The question of overhauling the local government is awaiting action in Congress. Sweeping changes in the District's revenue system are threatened because the Court of Appeals says thousands of Washingtonians are legal residents of the States. Recent investigations have uncovered ghastly conditions in several local institutions. Washington is urgently in need of a strong government to check the drift toward chaos.

In these circumstances a routine appointment to the District Commissionership would be perilous. The position which Mr. Allen is vacating ought to be filled by the most energetic and competent local resident who can be drafted for that purpose. Certainly this is a case in which the job should seek the man.

Heretofore appointments to the Board of Commissioners have been made in a casual and haphazard manner. Influential persons close to the White House have recommended their friends for preferential consideration. Not infrequently Presidents have installed at the District Building politicians useful as White House aides, with little regard for their knowledge of, or interest in, the District and its problems. Choice of Mr. Allen's successor by either of these methods would be a terrific blow to the community's hope for more responsible local government.

An organized effort to present to the President the names of a few genuine Washington residents who would be best qualified to serve as Commissioner is clearly in order. In this period when vital decisions regarding the District must be made it is of the greatest importance to fill the vacant Commissionership with an executive who will be energetic in promoting Washington's civic interests.

Here is an opportunity for all of the major civic organizations of the city to pool their influence for the common good. If a committee representing the most powerful organizations in Washington can agree upon a small slate of nominees who would best serve the city, its advice would doubtless carry tremendous weight at the White House. Indeed, there is every reason to believe that the President would respond to an appeal for an appointment that would meet the hopes of this community.

The time has come for Washington to mobilize all its strength and present a unanimous request for a Commissioner who will work and fight for the promotion of the city's best interests.

War Widows Pension Voted By Committee

To Aid Childless Wives Of Veterans Who Die Of Nonservice Ills

By the Associated Press

The Veterans Committee in the House gave its approval yesterday to a bill which would grant $20 a month to childless widows of World War veterans who died of ailments not connected with their war service.

Immediately there was a rumbling of opposition from some Congressmen who expressed the opinion the legislation was the first move toward general pensions for veterans and their widows. There was talk of an effort to block the bill in the Rules Committee.

Chairman Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi, and Representative Rogers (Republican), Massachusetts, ranking minority member of the veterans committee, expressed belief the bill would be passed at this session.

The rates approved in the bill:

Childless dependent widows who married the veteran prior to July 3, 1921, $20 a month.

Dependent widows who married the veteran prior to May 13, 1938, and who have one child by the veteran, $28; two children, $34, up to a limit of $56 if the families are larger.

Orphaned children, $12 for one child; $18 for two children; $24 for three children and $3 for each additional child.

Dependent parents, $20 for one; $15 each for two.

Goss Attacks Jones' Farm Credit Plan

System Would Become Wholly Dependent On Subsidies, He Says

Farm Fund Raised

The Senate yesterday voted $212,000,000 for parity payments into the Agriculture Department appropriation bill after refusing to boost the sum of $607,000,000. Page 2.

Destruction Feared

By Hedley Donovan

Albert S. Goss, who resigned as Federal Land Bank commissioner last Friday, told the House Agriculture Committee yesterday that legislation now pending in Congress would force the farm credit system into permanent dependence on Federal subsidies.

The former commissioner, presenting a page-by-page analysis of the Jones farm credit bill before the committee, contended that the measure "would largely destroy the cooperative credit system."

A broader attack on the bill is expected when Goss reappears before the committee at 10 a. m. today.

Opponents of the bill have argued that it abolishes the principle of personal responsibility for indebtedness and would create a new class of "Federal sharecroppers" among defaulting borrowers.

The committee may also reopen today the bitter controversy over administrative status of the Farm

In Race to Stay, Postmaster Says; Indicates He'd Run Against Roosevelt

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, yesterday announced his unconditional candidacy for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

A clear shock to the third-term draft movement, his statement to Springfield, Mass., reporters came within 24 hours after the President indorsed Farley's recent appeal for religious tolerance in politics.

Like Vice President Garner, Farley jumped into the ring without any reservations whatever. All other Democratic candidates have conditioned their availability on the President's decision to run or not to run.

"No Reservations"

Farley proposed no conditions. Arrived in Massachusetts, where a full slate of delegates has been entered in the primaries in his name, he told reporters:

"To clear up any misunderstanding, let me say that my name will be presented to the Democratic National Convention, and that's that."

He added with emphasis:

"I am sure that anyone who has known me during my political career will know that I make that statement frankly and without reservation."

Taken by surprise, Democrats generally at the Capitol either praised Farley's personal qualifications or declined comment. One leader of the Senate's draft movement contingent—Senator Pepper, of Florida—criticized Farley for declaring before Mr. Roosevelt had made his own intentions known.

Another said privately that some question might be raised if Farley, as an avowed candidate, remained chairman of the Democratic National Committee, which must take an impartial view of all candidates.

The Postmaster General's plain-spoken announcement climaxed a crowded day of political developments:

Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison announced in West Orange, N. J., that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of New Jersey, Mayor Hague's forces construed this as third term evidence, but in Washington some Democrats interpreted both the Edison and Farley announcements as important inklings that the President will not run.

Roosevelt Tour Expected

Reports gained wide currency on Capitol Hill that Mr. Roosevelt is considering making this June the Western tour he called off last fall because of the war. A trip by the President to the Coast and thence through Corn Belt areas of the Dakotas and Minnesota to dedication of the Isle Royale National Park in Michigan's Lake Superior, it was said, has been urged on the President. The reports came from sources which believe the President will run.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, in letters to Lieut. Gov. Walter S. Goodland, of Wisconsin, and to Kenneth S. Wherry, chairman of the Nebraska Republican committee, declined invitations to take the primary campaign stump in either Wisconsin or Nebraska because of Senate duties. Vandenberg, entered against New York District Attorney Dewey in both primaries, said "the Presidential decision this year is too desperately important to be pursued in the interest of any personal aspiration."

Mauretania Sails as Transport, Queen Mary Soon to Follow

By the Associated Press

New York, March 20.—The 35,739-ton Mauretania, fifth largest liner in the British merchant marine, entered a new and dangerous role as a troop transport tonight.

At 8:01 p. m., Eastern standard time, the big gray-painted ship pulled away from the Cunard White Star Line pier at Fourteenth street, Manhattan. Few lights showed on her decks.

The Mauretania, a new vessel named after the famous ol' British liner that was scrapped after years of service, was to be followed by the great Queen Mary, whose 81,235 tons rank her second only to the new Queen Elizabeth in the British fleet.

The Queen Mary, holder of the Atlantic speed record, was expected to leave at dawn tomorrow, although some sources said she might wait to pick up more crew members from the British Lancastria, arriving in midmorning from Canada.

All seamen had been ordered to report back to the ship by midnight, however, and instructions were issued to cut the water lines between the ship and its pier at 5 a. m., Eastern standard time. Longshoremen worked under floodlights tonight loading final supplies.

Targets whose hitting would mean an iron cross and Nazi immortality for the successful German submarine sharpshooter, the passenger liners turned transports were gambling on their speed to carry Britain's colonial troops safely into

Crippled Children to Be Merry Today as Guests of Pinocchio

"Scooping" the paying public by a full day, Washington's crippled children will descend upon RKO-Keith's Theater this morning in virtually every conceivable conveyance to enjoy the new Walt Disney movie "Pinocchio" as guests of the theater and The Washington Post.

By bus and ambulance, private car and trolley, station wagon and taxicab, upward of 500 disabled boys and girls are expected to be unloaded between 8 and 9 a. m. at the downtown movie house.

By nightfall yesterday, plans had been completed to transport approximately 100 youngsters who, but for outside aid, would not have been able to attend the unique party. The others will be driven by parents and friends.

When Hardie Meakin, Keith's manager, was informed late yesterday that all but a dozen boys and girls were provided for, he immediately volunteered to send his car and those of two staff members to the children's homes.

At least one guest will make the trip to the theater by wheel chair. She is Martha Geesling, honorary chairman of the party and who has been a patient at nearby Emergency Hospital for nearly two years.

Three others will travel by wheel chair but the motive power will be supplied by a District Red Cross ambulance. James Becker and the brothers Edward and Charles Simmons will be wheeled into the ambulance at the Home for Incurables, driven to the theater and returned an hour and a half later in the same fashion.

Many of the youngsters will be accompanied by mothers, brothers, sisters or other attendants. A large detail of policemen and firemen will be on hand to help the children from their conveyances.

The performance is scheduled to begin at 9 o'clock and end at 10:30. "Pinocchio" will open to the public tomorrow.

Capone Breaks Off Cure And Leaves Baltimore Secretly

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, March 20.—The sudden departure from Baltimore of Al Capone—apparently without the knowledge of physicians who have been treating him for months—was disclosed tonight.

Dr. Joseph E. Moore, widely known syphilologist who had been attending the former Chicago gang leader since his arrival November 16, said "as far as I know, he's still here."

But the attractive and spacious North Baltimore home the Capones leased when Al left Union Memorial Hospital January 8 was darkened and neighbors said they were certain Capone, his mother and two brothers had departed. Some of the occupants left yesterday and the others today, they said.

Reports from Miami, Fla., said Capone had arrived at his Palm Island estate near there, but this was denied by a caretaker.

A colleague of Dr. Moore said he had been told the Capone lease ran through April 1, and expressed surprise at the family's earlier departure.

Arrangements had been made, he disclosed, for a conference next week, at which plans for Capone's future treatment were to have been discussed.

Capone entered the hospital here the same day he was discharged from Federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa., to which he was transferred from the West Coast after serving seven years at Alcatraz and Terminal Island Prison for evading Federal income taxes.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

TEA WITH MRS. ROOSEVELT

You have had tea with the First Lady (and several hundred others) downstairs, but this time you're having tea upstairs in her sitting room, a little group of five or six. Now you're a shade breezier as the servant at the front door takes your wraps. The White House is beginning to seem like home.

Harlan Miller

They usher you over to the elevator across from the dining room, and up you go, and across the upstairs hall to Mrs. Roosevelt's sitting room. There she is at the desk over in the corner, racing through a manuscript.

* * * *

She greets you and waves a couple of pages.

"I'll be with you in a minute," she says. "First I must finish this."

Her secretary, Tommy, sometimes called Mrs. Thompson, is sitting behind the gleaming tea contraptions.

* * * *

You stumble a little over the head of the tiger rug as you sit down on the sofa at right angles to the fireplace. (Maybe you don't, but I did.) All told there are two men and four ladies in the room, and plenty to eat.

"the tiger trips you"

The tiger's head is pointed toward the low tea table, and you try not to keep your feet on it. You are facing Mrs. Roosevelt at her desk, and occasionally she tosses a sentences over her shoulder into the conversation. She has a radio speech to make in an hour, and a rehearsal first, and a cup of tea to drink before that.

* * * *

The big wall toward her bedroom is covered with framed photographs of relatives and friends.

Surely not a relative is forgotten, old and young. Mrs. Roosevelt is not one to slight second cousins. There must be nearly 200 photographs.

* * * *

Tommy is hemmed in by chairs and tea things, and you get up gallantly to pass a tray of sandwiches, and stumble a little again over the tiger's head.

Now Mrs. Roosevelt has finished racing through the manuscript and has joined the circle, chatting as if to old neighbors.

* * * *

The First Lady seems to have her schedule perfectly in mind. She has so many minutes to drink her cup of tea, and she gives no hint of being nervous about the time or having a radio speech ahead.

She chats about her method of getting her column written, and she knows exactly how many papers it's in.

"—the hat where it belongs"

Now an usher has appeared in the doorway, signaling. It is time to go to the radio studio to rehearse.

"Don't stand up," she says. "I must go now, but you have some more tea." Is she looking at the tiger's head, or do you just imagine it?

You stand up anyhow, and skid a little off the tiger's right ear.

Now Mrs. Roosevelt is looking for her hat. It isn't where she put it. Where is it? You want to help look. But she opens the door of the colossal wardrobe, and there the hat is, on a little standard, among an array of other hats.

"That's the penalty you pay," she says, "for having an orderly maid who puts things where they belong."

* * * *

Off she goes, not hurrying but losing no time. You demolish another sandwich and wonder why you can't arrange your own goings and comings more on schedule.

A few more minutes elapse, a little more conversation and you say good-by to Tommy, who is a real expert with the tea gadgets, besides being a top-notch secretary.

* * * *

You stumble a little over the tiger's head, but by now you and the tiger are old friends and you don't mind. And to your overwhelming surprise, you who always liked to run elevators, you get to run yourself downstairs in the White House elevator. But there's an usher waiting to open the door for you when it stops automatically at the main floor.

Senate Adds $212,000,000 To Farm Funds

Move for $607,000,000 Increase Is Defeated By 56 to 27 Ballot

By John B. Oakes.
Post Staff Writer

A smashing blow at the so-called Congressional economy drive was delivered in the Senate yesterday as an unbudgeted $212,000,000 for parity payments was added to the 1941 farm bill.

The increase, which probably will be accepted in the House, wipes out a large part of the $300,000,000 savings in budget estimates on other appropriation bills.

However, before it approved the $212,000,000 parity fund, 63 to 19, the Senate turned down an effort to add to the farm bill $607,000,000 for parity payments. This move, which was defeated, 56 to 27, was sponsored by Democratic Senators Lee, of Oklahoma, and Bilbo, of Mississippi.

The 19 Senators who voted against even the smaller sum for parity included 12 Republicans and 7 Democrats. In the Republican group were three Presidential candidates, Senators Bridges, of New Hampshire; Taft, of Ohio, and Vandenberg, of Michigan; while the Democratic dissenters were the two Virginians, Byrd and Glass; Bailey, of North Carolina; Brown, of Michigan; Gerry, of Rhode Island; Hughes, of Delaware, and Walsh, of Massachusetts.

Passage of the parity payment fund in the farm bill left only one major increase in doubt. As reported from the Appropriations Committee, the bill includes $85,000,000 for disposal of surplus commodities, but Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, has proposed to boost this figure to $113,000,000.

Although his amendment was ruled out yesterday on a point of order by Senator Hill (Democrat), of Alabama, in the chair, Senator La Follette said he would seek reversal of the ruling today.

If the Senate accepts all its Appropriations Committee's recommendations—as it seems likely to do—it will raise the 1941 farm fund from $714,000,000, as it passed the House, to a net total of $923,000,000. The 1941 budget estimate was $721,000,000, while the appropriation for the current year was $1,185,000,000.

The addition of the parity payment fund to the House bill came in the face of warnings that such action would threaten the $45,000,000,000 limitation on the national debt and might necessitate new taxes in this election year.

The sum set aside for parity payments is designed to give subsidies to growers of cotton, wheat, corn, rice and tobacco, in an effort to make up the difference between the present selling price of those products and 75 per cent of their "parity price," which is based on 1909-14 figures.

Arguing against the proposal, Senator Taft warned that Congress is following a "suicidal" course in appropriating money irrespective of income. The Government "has adjusted itself to deficit spending as a drug addict attaches himself to morphine," Taft declared.

The Ohioan was immediately subjected to a merciless ribbing by some of his Democratic colleagues, led by Senator Connally, of Texas. They accused him either of "false economy" or of failure to implement his economy speeches with votes against the various appropriation bills.

Colder Forecast, Now That Spring Is Officially Here

Spring arrived at 1:24 p. m. yesterday, and 4 hours later the temperature climbed to the highest point of the year, 65 degrees.

Thus ended, so the Weather Bureau said, four days of slowly increasing warmth. Today it will be colder, and the forecast is for continued cold weather through Sunday with light rains covering the Capital Friday night. Tonight the temperature may drop close to freezing.

In the 24-hour period ending Wednesday midnight District fire companies were called to eight grass blazes and 12 brush fires.

Marion N. Caskie Quits ICC For Job With Richmond Firm

Former Chairman To Be Vice President Of Metals Concern

The White House announced yesterday the resignation of Marion M. Caskie, of Alabama, as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Caskie, a former chairman of the ICC, said he was leaving the Government service to become vice president of the Reynolds Metals Co. at Richmond, Va.

President Roosevelt said in a letter to the commissioner:

"The tenor of your letter of March 16 leaves me no alternative—however much I regret the fact—but to accept your resignation as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, effective April 1, next.

"Your service has been long, varied and of great usefulness to the Federal Government and in a special way to the public whose interests are so intimately interwoven with the functions which you have performed.

"I do want you to know that I appreciate all you have done and wish you great happiness and success in the private business to which you plan to return.

"I do hope you will drop in to see me before you leave Washington."

Appointed to the commission by President Roosevelt in 1935, Caskie had until the end of 1941 to serve in his present term. He is 49 years old.

Drastic Labor Act Changes Voted Down

Committee Refuses To Reconsider Proposal For New 5-Man Board

Reaffirming its support of the present members of the National Labor Relations Board, the House Labor Committee yesterday continued its policy of turning down proposals for drastic alterations in the Wagner Act.

By a vote of 11 to 7, the committee refused to reconsider its action Tuesday in defeating the Ramspeck amendment to replace the present three-man board with a new board of five members.

Reconsideration was demanded by Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, a bitter opponent of the labor board. Hoffman had given his proxy Tuesday to Representative Smith (Republican), of Maine, who, ignorant of Hocman's wishes, had cast the proxy vote, which decided the issue, against the Ramspeck amendment.

After defeating the Ramspeck proposal for the second time, the committee went on to consider other amendments to the Wagner Act, all of which it turned down by large majorities.

The proposed "free speech" amendment, which the Labor Committee refused to accept, would have permitted employers to express their opinions on any matters of interest to their employes or the general public, providing no threat of coercion is involved.

It is understood that the Labor Committee tentatively rejected a proposal providing that it would not be an unfair practice for employers to refuse to bargain with either faction when there is a union dispute over the bargaining unit.

By a bare majority of 9 to 8, the committee yesterday voted not to meet again until Tuesday.

Lad, 14, Wows 'Em On Radio Quiz

Radio gag writers should keep an eye on 14-year-old Jack Miller, of 335 North Carolina avenue northeast, who took part in a nature quiz at the Mayflower Hotel, sponsored by the North American Wildlife Conference. He was asked if he knew two types of fish with names like women.

An audience of 500 heard Jack reply without hesitation, "Hardheads and suckers." Bob Edge, outdoor commentator for the Columbia Broadcasting System and conductor of the quiz, said young Miller's sally was unrehearsed.

Jack won the contest, incidentally, in his present term. He is 49 years old.

New U. S. Plane Climbs Mile In a Minute

St. Louis, March 20 (AP).—A "deadly" defensive weapon against bombers—an "interceptor" plane which can climb at a rate of more than a mile a minute—is being produced for an undisclosed foreign government at the St. Louis plant of Curtiss-Wright Corporation.

Test flights of the first plane off the production line yesterday showed it was "the fastest climbing type in the United States as well as the fastest climbing plane in the world, to our knowledge," said C. W. France, general manager of the factory.

The ship fairly leaped off the ground after a short run, and the test pilot reported later he flew vertically during part of the flight. The plane has a speed well over 300 miles an hour.

"This type of plane is much more effective than antiaircraft batteries in combatting high-flying enemy bombers because of its mobility and the rapidity with which it may be directed against an attack," France said. "By use of radio communication with other air forces, or the ground, the 'interceptor' becomes an even more deadly weapon of defense."

The plane, with wing span of 35 feet, has a 1,000-horsepower Wright "cyclone" engine, turning a three-bladed steel propeller. Its ceiling is 36,200 feet and there is oxygen equipment for high altitude flying.

A single-seater, the plane is designed to carry four machine guns mounted on racks in a compartment in front of the cockpit and synchronized to fire through the propeller. Quarter-inch armor back of the pilot's seat furnishes protection against enemy bullets from behind, the customary point of attack.

Planes Inquiry May Summon Morgenthau

Hearing on Policy On Sales to Allies Is Suddenly Deferred

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau probably will be called before the Congressional inquiry into the sale of the latest of American warplanes to the Allies, committeemen said yesterday.

The House Military Affairs Committee inquiry into the matter was unexpectedly put off yesterday morning after committeemen and spectators were assembled, when Chairman May announced that secretary of War Woodring had asked a delay to permit him to gather more complete data.

May said that Woodring had told him that "some late developments" had necessitated a postponement. Whether President Roosevelt's statement of policy regarding foreign sales of military planes Tuesday night was the "late development" referred to was not stated.

Many in Congressional circles, however, consider the rules laid down by the President as definitely more liberal to foreign buyers than previously expressed Army policy. They suggested that the delay was requested to permit War Department officials to determine what changes might be necessary in their plane release policy in the light of Mr. Roosevelt's statement.

Woodring, Assistant Secretary Johnson, General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, and Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of Air Corps, it was noted, were in conference at the War Department until nearly midnight Tuesday.

While military circles here viewed the President's declaration that we should sell foreign nations what they will buy as conflicting with Army policy of releasing planes only when we have something better, there was no immediate indication that a change in official regulations or release of newer planes was impending.

During an executive session of the House committee following May's announcement, a number of members asked that Secretary Morgenthau be called for questioning. The latter, as chairman of a Government committee coordinating foreign and domestic warplane purchases, is reported to have split with Army officials over British-French demands for the release of the Nation's latest military craft.

Senate Group Votes to Stop Silver Buying

Committee Rejects Morgenthau Advice; Vote Is 14 to 4

Disregarding a recommendation by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, the Senate Banking and Currency Committee yesterday approved by a 14 to 4 vote a bill by Senator Townsend (Republican), of Delaware, to discontinue Treasury purchases of foreign silver.

The committee's action caused Senator Wagner (Democrat), chairman, and one of the four voting against the bill, to predict Senate passage at this session.

The situation, in the opinion of some Senators, appeared to be favorable for House passage, although Morgenthau's opposition raised the question whether a Presidential veto would await the bill.

Timing Called Bad

The overwhelming committee approval, some Senators said, was partly due to Morgenthau's unwillingness, at the secret hearing of the Banking Committee Tuesday, to come to the support of the silver purchase program, provided for in the 1934 Silver Purchase Act. Passage of this act was forced by the Senate silver bloc.

The Treasury head simply argued that the time was inopportune, in view of the chaotic world situation, for injecting a new disturbing element by directing that foreign silver purchases be discontinued. He refused, some committee members said, to say definitely whether he was for or against the Townsend bill.

Morgenthau took the position, it was explained, that he was carrying out, by purchasing foreign silver, the mandate of Congress as laid down in the 1934 act. He would not defend the silver purchase program, it was said.

Once Passed by Senate

Townsend said he would try to get the bill up on the Senate floor after the trade agreements legislation has been disposed of. The Senate passed the Townsend proposal last June during consideration of the bill to continue the President's monetary powers. It was eliminated, however, in the conference between the two houses on the bill.

Banking committee members voting against the Townsend bill were: Senators Wagner, Barkley, Kentucky, Democratic leader, and Bankhead, Alabama, and Smathers, New Jersey, Democrats.

Census Defended By Dr. Hauser

The 1940 census questionnaire was defended yesterday by Dr. Philip M. Hauser, assistant chief statistician of the Census Bureau's population division, as one which is fair, scientifically prepared and far less personal than many of its predecessors.

Assailing what he termed misleading accusations by Senator Tobey, of New Hampshire, who last night delivered another radio attack against the census form, Dr. Hauser was heard by the Council of Social Agencies research committee at a Y. W. C. A. luncheon meeting.

The speaker said citizens will be asked not whether they have been divorced but only their current marital status and that no one with a salary exceeding $5,000 need reveal the exact figure.

"In some of the past censuses," said Dr. Hauser, "citizens were asked whether they were diseased, whether they were idiots, whether they gambled and other questions of a like nature."

Rep. Shafer Hurt Seriously as Car Misses Curve

Salem, Ohio, March 20 (AP).—Representative Paul W. Shafer (Republican), of Battle Creek, Mich., was injured seriously tonight in an automobile crash 6 miles south of here.

Highway patrolmen said Shafer's car missed a curve and plunged through a guard rail. He was brought to a Salem hospital suffering from a back injury and numerous lacerations.

He was driving alone and apparently was en route to Battle Creek from Washington.

Shafer is a member of the District Committee and has been active in civic affairs of Washington.

Charles Pace, Senate Officer, Dies in River

Efforts to Revive Financial Clerk Fail; Barkley Pays Tribute

Charles F. Pace, 65, financial clerk of the Senate, died in the Potomac River yesterday. He had served the Government one day less than 27 years.

On hearing of his death, the Senate recessed in unusual tribute to an employe, after Majority Leader Barkley had spoken of his long and efficient service, and had called him "one of the outstanding employes of the United States."

Pace had been in failing health for nearly a year, and had been confined to his bed for the last three months. His illness was believed due to a nervous breakdown resulting from overwork. He lived with his sister, Miss Elizabeth Pace, at 1851 Columbia road northwest.

A brother, the Right Rev. Edward Aloysius Pace, was vice rector emeritus of Catholic University when he died April 27, 1938. A sister, Miss Mary Pace, died just two months before Msgr. Pace died.

Barely three minutes after Pace jumped into the water at Hains Point, passersby had seized his collar and lifted his head above water, but there were no signs of life.

Firemen from Rescue Squad Car No. 1 administered artificial respiration for 43 minutes. No water was found in the lungs. Pace was pronounced dead at 12:58 p. m. by Dr. Charles B. Hooker, of Emergency Hospital, and the body was taken to the morgue.

Arthur R. Olson, of 9306 Colesville pike, an employe of the Bureau of Engraving, said he was passing by in his car when he saw Pace walk to the railing, take off his overcoat and hat, stuff his hat in his overcoat pocket, climb over the railing and jump into the water, feet first. Police found Pace's wallet beside his coat.

Olson and another passerby, who would not disclose his name, went to the edge of the water and tried to pull Pace out. They held him above water until a rope was obtained from a life preserver, and with the aid of the rope they pulled the body ashore.

The body was floating face down in the water close to the seawall, Olson said.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said he would make a blood test to determine the cause of death after further questioning witnesses.

Senator Barkley, in describing Pace's service, said no Government employe ever had been "more meticulous or more honorable" than Pace.

Afterward Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, Pace's native State, thanked Barkley for his tribute and said that the hearts of the people of Florida were heavy because of Pace's death.

Pace was for many years engaged in banking in Jacksonville. He came to Washington in 1913, and worked as index clerk, chief clerk in the Senate postoffice and assistant financial clerk before being appointed financial clerk in 1916.

Fists Fly as New York Police Rout French Consulate Pickets

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

One of several hundred pickets who demonstrated before the French Consulate in Rockefeller Center yesterday hits the sidewalk amid a fist swinging melee started when mounted and foot patrolmen broke up the picket line.

By the Associated Press

New York, March 20.—In a first-swinging melee before thousands of people on Fifth avenue, police late today broke up a demonstration by several hundred pickets before the French Consulate, in Rockefeller Center.

Twenty-two of the demonstrators—protesting what they described as a French decree ordering Spanish refugees in France back to Spain—were arrested, and as the patrol wagons moved off some of them sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

No one was seriously injured, but several women shoppers fainted in the excitement.

An attempt to picket the consulate was similarly halted last Friday.

The French Embassy last week issued a statement denying any intention by that government to repatriate Spaniards against their will.

Thousands of Spanish Loyalist soldiers and civilians fled into France when the Nationalist forces of Gen. Franco invdaed Catalonia and capitulated Barcelona, bringing the collapse of the republic. Many have voluntarily returned to Spain, a few have sought refuge in the Americas, but most of them have remained in refugee camps, dependent on the French government.

Some 350 policemen were in the area of the disturbance, although not all were directly involved. A corps of mounted officers acted as the front-line of the police forces, weaving among the shouting pickets and slowly herding them away from the consulate.

Some ran into Fifth avenue department stores, and the police then temporarily cleared all such establishments in the neighborhood.

Housewife to Run Against Schulte

Gary, Ind., March 20 (INS).—With 11 children to care for, Mrs. Anne Matthews, 46-year-old Gary housewife, finds time hanging heavy on her hands and so she's going to run for Congress, she announced tonight.

Besides the youngsters, who range from 6 to 21 years in age, Mrs. Matthews looks after a flock of chickens and turkeys and a small herd of cattle and manages to put up the annual preserves.

She will oppose William V. Schulte, who is seeking renomination on the Democratic ticket in the May primary. She explained:

"My main reason in opposing Mr. Schulte is that he voted against continuation of the work being done by the Dies committee. I feel that subversive elements should be exposed and I'm heartily in favor of the committee."

Capital Area Churches Prepare Good Friday Programs

By Robert Tate Allan

Jesus' seven last words upon earth will be recalled by reverent throngs here tomorrow—Good Friday—as solemn rites commemorate His death on Calvary.

Three-hour devotions beginning at noon and special services at other hours have been arranged in scores of Catholic and Protestant churches, as well as rites in the open.

Maunday Thursday Services

Maunday Thursday services will be held throughout the city today. Solemn high mass and procession to the Holy Sepulchre, followed by the Mandatum (washing of the feet), will begin at 9 a. m. at the Franciscan Monastery, Fourteenth and Quincy streets northeast. Tenebrae is set for 4 p. m. and Holy Hour, 8 p. m.

Commemorating the founding of the institution of the Holy Communion—the Lord's last supper—today's rites will be marked by Communion in many churches. First Baptist Church, Sixteenth and O streets northwest, will have a candlelight service at 8 p. m., led by Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor.

Good Friday services at the Monastery will begin at 9 a. m. with singing of the Passion, Veneration of the Cross, and Procession and Mass of the Presanctified. The "Way of the Cross" will begin at 3 p. m., Tenebrae at 4 p. m. and the Funeral of Christ and sermon at 8 p. m.

The Catholic Evidence Guild of Washington again will sponsor outdoor services in Franklin Park, Fourteenth and K streets northwest, from 3 to 4:30 p. m., the last 15 minutes of the program being broadcast over WJSV. Young men from Catholic University religious houses will sing under Edmund B. Stout's direction. The Rev. A. J. Burgraff, of St. Paul's College, the university, will preach. The "Stations of the Cross" will be a feature.

The mass of the presanctified will be celebrated tomorrow at 8 a. m. in the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic University, by the Rev. C. M. Sage, S. S. Suplician Seminary deacons will sing the Passion. The Rev. Leo Ruskowski, S. S., will officiate at "Stations of the Cross" at 4 p. m.

The Methodist Union will hold its annual Good Friday service at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church from 12 to 3 p. m., with addresses from Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, resident prelate of the Methodist Church; Dr. Peter B. Marshall, New York Avenue Presbyterian Church; Dr. Seth R. Brooks, Universalist National Memorial Church; Dr. S. Paul Schilling, of the Prince Frederick, Md., Methodist Church; Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer, Mount Pleasant Congregational Church; Dr. Robin S. Gould, Francis Asbury Methodist Church, and Dr. A. B. Potorf, of American University.

Lutheran Program

Lutherans of the city gather at the same hour at Reformation Lutheran Church for their annual Good Friday service, sponsored by the Washington Lutheran Ministerial Association. The Rev. Edward C. Goetz, pastor of Zion Lutheran Church and association president, will conduct the liturgy, assisted by the Rev. James Powers, assistant pastor of Atonement Lutheran Church. Pastors will present "The Seven Last Words." Dr. Oscar J. Blackwelder and the Rev. Ralph V. Loew will be host pastor and assistant.

Protestant congregations of the Southeast section, who will conclude their Penn Theater Lenten noonday rites today at noon, will meet on Good Friday at noon at Fifteenth Street Christian Church, of which the Rev. Leslie L. Bowers is pastor. Churches of the Bloomingdale area will worship at the same hour at Memorial United Brethren Church. The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will conduct a three-hour service at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church. A passion service will be held at Washington Cathedral from 12 to 3 p. m.

Reich Moves To Get Soviet In Axis Fold

Berlin Hears of Great Progress in Efforts To Control Balkans

By Louis P. Lochner,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berlin, March 20.—Germany turned her eyes eastward today in expectation of an important step bringing Moscow closer to the Rome-Berlin Axis, particularly for coordinating Balkan policies of the three powers.

Russian Ambassador Alexander Shkhartzeff departed by plane for Moscow, inspiring conjecture that he was carrying an important message to Joseph Stalin and Premier Molotoff.

Rumors persisted in Berlin that a milestone in Russian relations with the Axis would be marked not later than tomorrow or Friday as a result of German diplomatic efforts to find a common denominator for Russian-German-Italian foreign policy.

Reception for Molotoff

Considerable publicity was given a reception held in Moscow Sunday by German Ambassador Count Friedrich Werner von der Schulenburg in honor of Molotoff, and some took it as a possible curtain-raiser for a visit by Molotoff to Berlin. The Freign Office, however, declined to comment on such speculation. Likewise they refused comment on persistent reports that Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano was coming to Berlin to meet Molotoff and German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop.

One principal aim seemed to be froning out of any differences between Russia and Italy, whose relations have been markedly cold in the political field.

The resignation of French Premier Daladier was dismissed with the observation at the foreign office that "it does not affect our attitude in the slightest."

Ignore Daladier's Resignation

"It is war to the finish no matter who heads the French cabinet, and so far as we are concerned it's merely a change of scenery on the French political stage and does not alter the fundamentals," said a spokesman.

As if to demonstrate Germany's will to fight, Adolf Hitler appointed Dr. Fritz Todt, builder of the Siegfried Line, as minister of munitions with the order to speed production.

the hell out of this Republic."

On the other hand, Representative Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan, wired his "personal congratulations" to the Minister, telling him that "95 per cent of our people are in agreement with you" and advising him to "pay no attention to the puttyheads and potbellies."

Amid some Senate comment that a diplomat from a neutral country should not have made such an address, Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, said he was "very glad" it had been made.

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, termed the address "outrageous" and insisted Cromwell should be recalled.

Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, held that the Minister was merely "echoing his chief," presumably President Roosevelt.

He'll Stand Pat

However, Cromwell, at Somerville, N. J., was represented as determined to "stand pat" on the views he had expressed. He said he would come to Washington tomorrow to confer with President Roosevelt and Hull.

Indications that, in any event, his diplomatic service would not be protracted came with announcement by Secretary of Navy Edison of his own candidacy for the New Jersey Governorship. From that State reports were that it was regarded as certain that Cromwell would be a Democratic Senate candidate while Edison ran for Governor.

Appointed only last January 4, Cromwell, wealthy student of and writer on economic subjects, traveler and sportsman, at that time was expected eventually to become a Senate candidate. It was said, however, that back in 1938 his defense of birth control and the sales tax in books he had written led political leaders, including Mayor Hague, of Jersey City, to advise that he undertake some other public service first.

Ethel Roosevelt Reported Better

The condition of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., injured in a fall from a horse riding with the Farmington Hunt near Charlottesville, Va., Tuesday, was reported "entirely satisfactory" yesterday.

The former Ethel du Pont suffered a fractured pelvis and head injuries when her mount stumbled on a jump at the farm of Dr. Robert Funsten, under whose care she is now. Her injuries will keep her in the hospital several weeks, he indicated.

Although official silence veiled their immediate destination, members of their crews believed both would call first at Halifax and there be armed for a long and potentially perilous voyage to Australia.

British sailors said that by ripping out the Queen's peacetime finery, the normal passenger capacity of about 2,000 had been stepped up to 21,000.

Supplies sufficient for three or four months were taken aboard.

Trucks had carted away expensive furnishings and sailors spent the day in lifeboat drills and inspection of lifesaving equipment.

Roistering British tars celebrated until dawn today their final shore leave before putting the big passenger liners to sea.

Across the street from the Queen Mary's midtown dock, British sailors held reunion in the Anchor Cafe.

Their good-bys were alcoholic, boisterous and sincere, and the Cockney accent was as thick as the cigarette smoke. One seaman was out for five minutes when he ducked south against a northbound punch, but someone poured beer on a two-inch gash under his eye and everybody was friends again.

The men, many of whom have been employed in convoying Canadian soldiers across the Atlantic, said they didn't care where they were going so long as they got their £5-a-month war bonus. There was little war talk, no visible worry.

"We're going pleasure-cruising," said one old tar, with a grin that showed as many wrinkles as the ocean.

President's Temperature Is Normal Again

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt's temperature returned to normal last night after he had spent the day in bed to shake off a cold.

His physician, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, said he was hopeful that today would see "a flat temperature throughout the day" but that he wanted the President to remain in bed at least for part of the day.

He described the condition as "old-fashioned grippe" and emphasized that it was not serious.

premier, and Lucien Lamoureux, former finance minister.

The vigorous Reynaud, mountaineer, world traveler and skilled doctor of French finance, said he would give his definite reply about noon today to President Albert Lebrun's request that he form a cabinet.

Nation Rebuffs Daladier

Daladier's government, which had prepared the country for war after the uneasy Munich breathing spell, and then directed the nation through 6½ months of conflict, quit this morning.

The reason was a thick atmosphere of dissatisfaction over lack of Allied action in the struggle with Germany.

Albert Lebrun, the President of France, asked Daladier to form a new government. But Daladier, smarting under the hostile refusal by the majority of the Chamber of Deputies to vote on a motion of confidence early today, refused.

From all sides warnings were being sounded that France must not remain without a government for a series of days, as has happened often in past crises.

Finn Peace Brought Fall

The government upset, although it has been predicted for months, came about through what, in many quarters, was quite frankly called a "fluke."

The event really was precipitated by the Russo-Finnish peace. Criticism of the state of affairs which prevented adequate aid from being sent to the Finns broke into a storm.

The government had to bear the brunt of charges that its policy had been weakened. Then cries for a more effective prosecution of the war with Germany became a chorus.

It was obvious, at length, that Daladier at least would have to alter his cabinet to meet the demands for a ministry which would demonstrate that every possibility was being plumbed to push the war to a decisive finish.

Failed to Make Changes

After Daladier went before the Senate last Friday and got a unanimous confidence vote, despite 70 abstentions, it was thought that the most he would do would be to make the cabinet alterations.

But instead of reshuffling his cabinet immediately and going before the chamber, Tuesday, with the changes made—which might have altered the whole story—he put them off and appeared with his old cabinet.

All yesterday afternoon and throughout the night he talked to the deputies in a 12-hour secret session. Then, early this morning, the deputies voted.

Technically, Daladier won. The vote was one of confidence, 239 to 1, in Daladier's determination and ability to "take immediately, and in all domains, measures indispensible to bring France's war force to a maximum and to carry the war to victory in close accord with our Allies."

But about 300 deputies declined to vote (the total Chamber membership is 551) and that meant that the majority, while not voting against him, nevertheless withheld approval.

Still Daladier could have carried on.

However, he chose to resign, and informed Lebrun he could not attempt another government.

His Radical-Socialist Party in Parliament unanimously voted an order of the day declaring Daladier had led the nation in war with "wisdom and firmness" and that he "merited confidence more today than ever." The party demanded that the record of Tuesday's secret debate, in which Daladier explained his government's conduct of the war, be made public to "enlighten the nation."

Daladier first instituted his government on April 10, 1938, and the government which went out was broadly the same, although it was revised on August 22, 1938, and on September 13, 1939, after the war broke out. Daladier, as premier, foreign minister, war minister and minister of defense, of late had virtually dictatorial powers.

Reynaud to the Right

Reynaud, as a member of the Left-Republican Party, is slightly to the right politically. Deputies considered him in the best position to form an "action" ministry of all parties, from the extreme right to the Socialists. The Socialists, largest party, were not represented in the Daladier government.

9 British Ships Sunk in Convoy, Nazis Claim

are ready to pit their air fleet against German submarine nests and shipyards in the Baltic itself.

The 45-plane Sylt raids of Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, biggest Britain has made in this war, brought authoritative predictions that a new phase in Britain's aerial attack had been ushered in.

Punctuating the daring of the new British tactics, British fliers yesterday returned to the scene to take photographs of the damage they had done and to drop a few more bombs on objectives that had not been destroyed in the long bombing of the night before.

Among the gleeful statements of the British was that of the Herald which said "scores of Germany's most valuable aircraft—seaplanes and bombers—were destroyed."

"The attack had been delayed so that it should take place when the maximum number of German planes was concentrated on the island. For some time the Allied command had known that the Nazi authorities were feverishly building hangars on Sylt—and storing hundreds of planes there.

"Today a number of those hangars are in ruins . . . Pilots returning told of wrecked barracks, blazing oil tanks, crippled railways.

Air Ministry sources, in cautious language, said they believed the Sylt raid showed the R. A. F. was ready for "operations more effective than the preliminary stage of observation."

Most British flights over Germany have been of a purely reconnaissance nature.

At any rate, the raid and the follow-up flight today proved an immediate tonic for the British public. Critics of the government have been clamoring for Britain to take the initiative away from Germany, and the raid came only a few hours after Prime Minister Chamberlain had told the House of Commons that 'we intend to fight.'

Officials from Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood on Down remained discreetly silent on the full extent of the raid. Wood made the following statement to the House:

"Direct hits were obtained on hangars, which were set on fire. Oil storage tanks were also seen to be on fire and many hits were obtained on the jetty, light railway and other parts of the base.

"Further reconnaissance of the island of Sylt was carried out this morning. Although the aircraft were heavily engaged they were able to make observations of the island which confirm the success of the operation. All these aircraft have returned to their bases."

Three bombs fell on Hvide Sande (White Sands), Danish soil off the center of the Danish west coast. The windows of fishermen's houses were broken, but no casualties were reported.

Accounts of heavy destruction inflicted on the Nazi air base were contained in authorized first-hand stories given out last night.

"Not once during the 15 minutes we were cruising over Sylt were we given even a few seconds rest from anti-aircraft fire or from searchlights," the captain of one warplane which arrived over the island shortly after midnight was quoted as saying.

"We were being followed closely by a trail of pom pom shells. At one stage they came rather too close for comfort.

"Our first bomb hit the ground near a slipway. Three others, according to the pilot of an aircraft which was close behind us, registered direct hits on a hangar."

"When we arrived over the island there was quite a nice little fire going and we made straight for it," said the pilot of one plane.

"Anti-aircraft fire was heavy, including flaming 'onions.' It was the first time I had encountered them."

The release concluded:

"The captain of another aircraft, after dropping his bombs on a barracks block and seeing a portion of the building go up in flames, flew on a further hundred miles to complete another task.

"He decided to take another look at Sylt. He was gratified to see that his particular fire still was blazing away."

The "flaming onions," authorities explained, are new-type German incendiary anti-aircraft shells which split into scores of flaming fragments in the air.

"They look pretty," said the pilots, "but they are not very effective."

Berlin Ousts U. S. Consuls From Poland

Acts Despite Protest; 300 Americans Left To Fend for Selves

Germany yesterday compelled the United States to withdraw its consular representatives from Warsaw, thereby depriving several hundred Americans in German-occupied Poland of direct diplomatic representation.

Anonuncing that this Government "has reserved all its rights in the matter," the State Department revealed that the German demand, applicable to all foreign diplomatic and consular officials at Warsaw, had been complied with only after protests to Berlin had been rejected.

Affected by the order are George J. Haering, American consul, and Carl Birkeland and William R. Morton, vice consuls, who are understood to have departed for Berlin.

532 Americans in Poland

State Department records show that at the start of the year 532 Americans were living in Poland, most of them in the area now occupied by Germany.

There was no indication that the required consulate withdrawal would interfere with current efforts to obtain Berlin permission for Americans to enter Poland to administer American relief work there. Earlier yesterday, though the consulate closihg order was known, Secretary of State Hull said that definite progress was being made at Berlin in the relief undertaking.

He said also that officials were hopeful in their efforts to obtain British permission for relief supplies to pass through the naval blockade.

His assertions followed a call by Polish Ambassador Jerzy Potocki in the interest of speeding American assistance in his native land.

The State Department announcement on the consulate said:

The German government decided some time ago to evacuate members of the diplomatic and consular establishments of all foreign governments in occupied Poland. The German government fixed the twentieth of this month as the date of their departure. In this connection, the members of the American Consulate General in Warsaw were requested to leave Poland. The department understands they are leaving today for Berlin, where they will report to the American Embassy.

Representations were made to the German government through the American Embass, in Berlin, stressing the difficulty of rendering assistance and protection to American citizens without consular representation in Warsaw. The German government, however, took the position that all foreign diplomatic and consular officers must withdrav. Consequently, all matters in connection with American citizens now in Poland will be handled for the present through the American Embassy in Berlin. In the meantime, this Government has reserved all of its rights in the matter.

Vatican Disclaims Peace Offensive Is Being Pressed

Vatican City, March 20 (U.P.).—The Vatican has sent notes to the British and French governments informing them that the Vatican has not participated in a reported "peace offensive" with Italy and the United States, "for the simple reason that such offensives are nonexistent," authoritative Vatican quarters revealed tonight.

The note, according to these sources, stated:

"The Holy See has not participated in any of the so-called peace offensives with Italy and the United States for the simple reason that such offensives are nonexistent. The Holy See has never expressed judgment on the belligerents' war aims nor on the possibilities or lack of possibilities of an immediate compromised peace.

"The Italian government is of the same opinion as the Holy See in this regard. President Roosevelt, according to detailed information which Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles will give him, will personally decide if it is a case for the United States to take an official peace initiative."

Patrol Kills 5 Nazis, Paris Says

Paris, March 20 (A').—Military dispatches tonight said a British patrol operating on the Western Front last night attacked a German patrol, killing five soldiers and taking one prisoner without suffering a single loss.

The French issued a special communique which said "on the front held by the Brtish troops there were patrol encounters which were turned to the entire advantage of our Allies."

Earlier communiques told of clashes west of the Vosges in which military sources said the Germans suffered "serious losses" in French ambushes.

Stanley Assails U. S. 'Ringside' Critics of War

By the Associated Press

London, March 20.—Britain's War Secretary, Oliver Stanley, struck out today at American "ringside" critics of the British conduct of the war, telling a London luncheon audience that Britons may be willing to learn how to be tough with neutrals.

"We have learned that it is the person who ignores the rights of neutrals who also gets their admiration. It is a lesson which may find willing and apt pupils in this country."

Stanley said bluntly:

"There are millions of people all over the world whose one thought is how they can keep out of the war."

"But they are in it. They may not be taking any active part, or by timidity or selfishness giving help to the other side, but do not let any of them think they can remain indifferent to the result of the struggle.

"We intend to fight in our own way and not in their way," Stanley added.

"They (neutrals) may be lucky," said Stanley. "We may fight their battles for them. But do they think that if we lose, life can go on as they know it?

"If Britain had not gone to war people in the United States would have said, 'why aren't you fighting?' Today they are saying, 'we can't understand the war.'"

Italy Expects War to Intensify

By the Associated Press

Rome, March 20.—Premier Mussolini talked military preparations today with his veteran chief of staff, Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, as Rome authorities predicted an early intensification of the war.

Informed Fascist quarters expressed belief the coming of spring would see Germany pressing action on the war fronts but also held that Italy's nonbelligerent position would continue at least as long as Germany could do without Italian military aid.

Increased talk of war coincided with the departure from Italy of Sumner Welles, President Roosevelt's emissary, who sailed from Genoa on the Conte di Savoia after a 24-day tour of the belligerent capitals and Rome. According to his own account he is taking to his chief nothing in the way of peace proposals.

Authoritative Rome quarters described Mussolini's conference with Graziani, who is believed to be in direct command of Italy's northern frontier, as "very important," but declined to link it directly with Il Duce's conversation with Adolf Hitler at Brenmero.

The belief was expressed Hitler told Mussolini Germany intended to intensify warfare in the near future.

Virginio Gayda, often a Mussolini mouthpiece, buried peace talk insofar as Italians are concerned by declaring in Il Giornale d'Italia, "Enough of the olive branch."

the Hitler technique closely so far and might follow it further.

They believe this is why Russia takes exception to the mere suggestion of a northern pact to defend Finland's new frontiers.

A suspicion is implicit in the whole conception of the pact, for the only reason it is being officially considered at all is the assumption that sooner or later Finland may again be in danger.

Chamberlain seems to entertain a similar suspicion. If it should prove justified, the whole problem of the defense of the north and of an Allied military move against Russia in the north would arise again.

Census Data Not Secret, Tobey Says

FBI, Other Agencies Are Allowed to See Records, He Asserts

By the Associated Press

Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, last night disputed statements by census officials that only regular employes had access to their confidential records and that no one ever had been jailed for refusing to answer questions.

He asserted in a radio speech that the monopoly committee used the data, that the Federal Bureau of Investigation threatened to, and that outside business concerns are being allowed to send their representatives to the Census Bureau to be sworn in as temporary census employes" and examine the records.

"I have confirmed from sources in the Census Bureau," Tobey said, that for many weeks, representatives of the TNEC (monopoly committee), an outside agency, have been searching census records in connection with the monopolies investigation and have had access to individual schedules of businessmen.

Alleges Threat

"I have an affidavit stating that an agent of the FBI approached a certain woman and threatened that if she refused to give him certain information as to the lives, marriages, etc., of her family, that he would get it after the census was taken, and he had talked with the census man."

His information about business representatives scanning the records, Tobey said, came from "a regular census employe."

On the score of imprisonment for failure to answer questions, the Senator declared:

"Several days ago I received a call from a man who told me that a friend of his, at the time of the taking of the last decennial census, refused to answer certain census questions, was put in jail, subjected to the third degree, driven insane and is now in an institution for the insane. The records verify that this man was sent to jail for refusal to answer census questions."

Green Urges Cooperation

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, urged all union members yesterday to give "complete and accurate answers" to all questions asked by census enumerators.

"This year, the census includes more questions important to labor than ever before," Green wrote Central Labor Unions.

"Questions on employment, income and housing will give us information long needed and will help immensely in our struggle against unemployment and low wages and in our efforts for better homes."

William L. Austin, census director, asked Senator Tobey to withdraw some of the criticisms he had made of the questions.

"Now that the little census blitzkreig which you led so gallantly seems to have spent its force, Austin wrote Tobey, "and since we are approaching the Easter season when the spirit of charity and forgiveness should prevail, I am writing to ask you to join me in binding up the wounds."

Drawing Prizes Offered In Pinocchio Contest

A "Pinocchio" drawing contest in which artists will compete for cash and other prizes was announced yesterday by the Art Students Academy in the Albee Building. In addition to seven cash prizes, ranging from $1 to $3 each, there will be 12 theater tickets for the "Pinocchio" motion picture now at Keith's Theater.

Hardie Meaken, manager of Keith's is one of the judges. Others are Alvin Q. Ehrlich, president of the Advertising Club; and Louis Janof, of the Advertising Art Studios. The contest closes at noon April 5.

Gardiner Bump of New York, Robertson Of Virginia, Speak at Closing Session Of Fifth North American Wildlife Group

Study of regional environment before introducing new bird or mammal species was the warning issued yesterday by Gardiner Bump, of the New York State conservation department, in an illustrated talk before the closing session of the Fifth North American Wildlife Conference.

Bump described New York's experience in introducing 25 birds and 20 mammals only to find that the experiment was a failure in all but three cases.

Bump informed the 1,500 sportsmen at the parley that his State had tried to introduce everything from European black grouse to German wild boar, and even a few Western antelope, and hoped that other States would benefit from the comprehensive data gathered on the subject.

Representative Robertson (Democrat), of Virginia, who presided over the early session, told the conference that the people must be taught "to find peace and contentment in the simple out-of-doors." He said American character could be strengthened by strengthening American bodies through outdoor recreation.

Before adjourning, the conference selected Memphis, Tenn., for the sixth meeting on February 17, 18 and 19, 1941, and adopted two resolutions. The first resolution was to discourage further dam building on the Columbia River, which provides a lucrative salmon fishing business for the North Pacific States. New dams, members of the conference claimed, were destroying what was termed as the greatest fishing run in the world. A second resolution called for better protection of the American eagle.

Guffey to Stay In Senate Race

Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, commenting on a recent statement of John B. Kelley, Philadelphia Democratic leader, asserted yesterday he would not withdraw, if nominated, in favor of another senatorial candidate in November.

Kelly two days ago quoted President Roosevelt as advising him to stay out of a primary fight over the senatorial nomination and saying "if the right kind of candidate is not nominated, we can sit down during the summer and select another one."

Guffey said in a statement yesterday: "I unequivocally state that after I am nominated I shall press for election on my record of undivided support of President Roosevelt's program."

proposed Hart, stating "we in Northeast Washington never get any one appointed to anything in the District." Hart is a resident of that section of the city. Calvert said he favored a "lifelong resident" of the District and one "who understands the shortcomings of the District and is willing to work for civic improvements."

Harry Wender, president of the Southeast Citizens Association, declared the President should appoint "a man or woman, who is willing to give the District a vote."

"We don't want anyone who owes allegiance to any ther jurisdiction," he stated. "The man for the job is one who has been associated with civic work; who is not a 'political hack;' who has been experienced in organized citizenry; who has lived here most of his life and who has a thorough understanding of welfare, health and recreational activities."

Meanwhile, the White House yesterday said the President had not discussed a successor with Allen. The Commissioner, however, said he would confer on his successor with the President before April 15.

Three District officials were named as possible contenders for the appointment. They are Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal, who has already said he would resign this post; Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, and Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the Public Utilities Commission.

Allen said he has not resigned as chairman of the Democratic committee for the District.

The Commissioner was first appointed to the post in November, 1933, while Congress was in recess. He was reappoited when Congress convened and received a second-term appointment three years later. He resigned on September 1, 1938, to take the post with the insurance company. The President did not name a successor, but last fall asked the company for a "short-term loan" whereby Allen returned to District service to succeed himself.

lated that the Callahan brood might mean "a little competition for us."

The parents had known for some time that X-rays taken at Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital indicated Mrs. Callahan would bear five children.

Physicians said one of the apparent bony structures believed to be heads appeared somewhat smaller than the other four. This circumstance and the unusual nature of the case led hospital authorities to seek the advice of obstetricians at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore and the X-ray negatives were sent there for study.

The attending physician said Mrs. Callahan's health appeared good and she seemed likely to have no great trouble unless complications developed.

The Miami Herald announced tonight it had signed a contract for exclusive rights to news and pictures about the Callahans and the impending births, agreeing in exchange to provide hospitalization and medical care for Mrs. Callahan.

Managing Editor John D. Pennekamp said the contract also called for a payment to the couple but did not disclose the amount. He also said Mrs. Callahan was being taken to a hospital at once to "remove her from the excitement of a curious neighborhood."

Mrs. Callahan, the former Earlene Duren, of Amory, Miss., said she was the adopted daughter of E. L. Duren, a ticket agent for the Mississippi-Tennessee Railroad.

"I met Emory on a train from Springfield, Mo., to Birmingham, Ala., in November 193'," she said. "We corresponded for 18 months, while he stayed at his home in Thomasville, Ga., and I was in Mississippi."

Wallace Asks Investigation Of Transients

Migrants Big Part Of D. C. Relief Load, Secretary Says

By Felix Cotten.
Post Staff Writer

A Congressional investigation of the migration problem throughout the country, including the transient situation in the District and its effect on local relief, was recommended yesterday by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

"A large part of the relief load in the District," he declared, results from migration from rural areas of the South.

He revealed he had discussed the matter with Burdette G. Lewis, whose report on the local relief problem was submitted in the early part of 1939. Lewis dealt with the transient problem in his report.

Wants Broad Inquiry

Wallace was asked at a press conference whether he favored a resolution creating a five-man committee for a House investigaiton of the migration problem offered by Representative Tolan (Democrat), California.

He replied that he thought such an investigation would be constructive if the problem were tackled in its broader aspects and "without dramatizing particular situations."

It should embrace, he said, migration from congested rural areas to California, Florida, the cities of the Northeast, and the District relief load.

Tolan said Wallace's comments boosted chances for favorable House action on his resolution, now before the Rules Committee.

Loans Made to Families

Wallace said the Farm Security Administration was attacking the Far Western migration problem "at the root" by making rehabilitation loans to poverty-level farm families in Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Missouri and Kansas.

Loans and grants totaling $134,985,352 have been made, he said, to 394,961 families in these States. The object, he declared, has been to keep the families on the land. The FCA has spent $5,957,078 in aid to migrants in California.

Wallace said 119,568 families in these States have applied for aid, but have not received it.

The question of further aid will be considered, it was explained, when the House Appropriations Committee begins preparation of the relief appropriation bill for the coming fiscal year.

Funds Cut 20%

The President's January budget would allow about $125,000,000 for the FSA for the next fiscal year, a cut of about 20 per cent. Such an appropriation would permit loans, it was said, only to a fraction of the 119,568 who have applied.

Rehabilitation loans are usually to enable farmers to buy a mule, seed and plows and resume farming operations. At the same time, the FSA undertakes to give the farmer guidance to enable him to keep going.

Wallace made some caustic references to people who "own farms as a sideline." The sideline farmer, he declared, "is a kind of scab," since his "subsidized production" adds to farm surpluses. He admitted, however, many of them were sympathetic toward the poorer farm families and had become competent farm leaders.

Director Asks Peace in Tobey's 'Census Blitzkrieg'

In a whimsical letter yesterday to Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, persistent census foe, Census Director William L. Austin struck this note of Eastertide truce:

"Now that the little census blitzkrieg which you led so gallantly seems about to have spent its force, and since we are approaching the Easter season when the spirit of charity and forgiveness should prevail, I am writing to ask you to join with me in binding up the wounds."

He derided numerous statements of Tobey, and declared Tobey was wholly mistaken about some questions in the census, but appealed for Tobey's cooperation. "without any resentment for what has happened, for I realize that to err is human; to forgive divine."

Tobey retorted he is "long on hope and long on fight." He declared he would use every possible means to force a vote on his resolution to eliminate income inquiries from the questionnaire.

Senate Civil Service Committee Delays Ramspeck Bill Consideration Week or Two

By Edward Ryan.

A "stop light" was flashed on the Ramspeck civil service bill yesterday as the Senate Civil Service Committee decided to postpone public hearings on the measure. The delay, it was estimated, will be two or three weeks.

Chairman Bulow, of the Senate committee, announced the decision to postpone hearings had been reached in an executive session after several committee members had recommended the delay.

Reason for their action, it was explained, was that members of the committee felt they would be unable to give the necessary time to the civil service measure during the forthcoming debate on reciprocal trade agreements.

Supporters of the Civil Service measure said last night the committee's action, while representing a set-back, does not seriously affect chances of passage this session. It came as a blow, however, to Government employe unions who had seen in speedy passage a hope employes being furloughed would win Civil Service status in time to find new jobs through transfer.

The Senate Committee hearings are planned for further study of two House amendments, which would bar employes connected with the WPA, and those from States over their civil service quotas, from being covered by the Ramspeck bill.

Meanwhile, the President's committee for merit system improvement held an executive meeting in the Supreme Court Building to consider recommendations for extending civil service to Government professional workers and others. The committee, headed by Justice Stanley Reed, will meet again today, and it was hinted that further study will go into their report before it is ready for the President.

More than 35c employes furloughed from PWA have found other jobs in business and government through the agency's personnel office, according to E. W. Clark, acting PWA commissioner. He said that while those who have obtained jobs are only a small percentage of the furloughed, more placements are expected as a result of 5,000 letters and public appeals sent through the country.

In one corner of the Commerce Building the routine of business has been refined into as neat a little ceremony as you could find.

The act is always the same, and for years its only speaking role has been filled by Harvey J. Zimmerman, sprightly, 70-year-old, Census Bureau statistician, in charge of the cotton and oil division. He has time his part to exactly two minutes, his lines to a single word.

His assignment, recurring nearly 30 times a year, is to release the census figures on cotton and oil, and this is how it is done.

Zimmerman will be at his desk, facing an opaque glass wall. At 9:58 a. m. he rises, walks to the wall, and knocks. A door opens, and an arm thrusts out a large brown envelope. Zimmerman takes it, returns to his desk, and the door closes. He opens the envelope, arranges its contents, and after a moment goes out to a third room.

Here, eight or more silent men will be waiting. Along one wall is a battery of telephones, each one off the hook with line open. Opposite are as many telegraph keys. The men stand at attention behind their chairs. Zimmerman places one report, face down, before each man, returns to the center of the room, eyes his watch. At 10 a. m., he says "Go!" With that the figures begin rolling over the telephones and the telegraph keys are clicking. Zimmerman retires.

Yesterday it was the report on cotton ginned during 1938 and 1939; other days it will be figures on cotton consumption, or cottonseed products, awaited by the cotton industry all over the world. By the time Zimmerman is back at his desk the figures will be going up on the major exchanges.

Main task is to see that the figures are released to all who want them at the same instant. Final tabulation is made in the "lockup," a room whose walls have no ears. They are opaque glass, and in the final hours even the blinds are drawn shut.

Zimmerman has been chief statistician for cotton and oil since 1910. He succeeded Daniel C. Roper, later Secretary of Commerce, as director of the division. Eligible for retirement last year, he was permitted to continue by executive order, to save mixups during the census year. He plans to leave in September.

Rumor of Quints In the Blue Ridge Dies A-Borning

A report ran up and down the Blue Ridge Mountains last week that quintuplet girls had been born to Mr. and Mrs. John Wadell, of 1222½ Ilnor avenue northwest, Roanoke.

The rumor spread to College Park, Md., and from there to Washington yesterday. Investigation proved that five baby girls were born on leap-year day, February 29, in Roanoke Hospital.

The Wadells were parents of only one, Ina Jeanette Marie, who weighed 8 pounds 4 ounces at birth. But they are the parents of nine other children, and the oldest is 24.

Mrs. Ammann Dies; Resident Here for 35 Years

Mrs. Mazie Fontaine Ammann, widow of Adolph Ammann, former chief of the Old Loans an Currency Division of the Treasury, and member of a noted Virginia family, died yesterday at her residence, the Northumberland, New Hampshire avenue and V streets northwest.

A native of Woodstock, Va., Mrs. Ammann was the daughter of Capt. Nehemiah Fontaine, and niece of Capts. Mark and Richard Welch, of the Confederate Army.

She lived here for the last 35 years. Mr. Ammann died in 1934.

Mrs. Ammann leaves two sisters, Mrs. Katherine Ainslee and Mrs. William N. Skyles.

Funeral services will be at 8 p. m. Thursday at her home, with burial in Woodstock Friday.

A Combination
When you find a company as old in years of public service as ours is, selling an oil burner as old in years of satisfactory usage as A B C Oil Burners are, the combination is worth considering before you buy, because those two old timers must have garnered a lot of experience down through the years on how to render satisfaction to a pretty big crowd of folks. "It's in the bag!" says Mr. Flagg

Flagg was just a trifle worried. You see, his guest of honor is a Bigwig (you'd know his name if we told you) and Flagg knows that a lot depends on the evening's being a huge success. Observing the broad grin of satisfaction on Bigwig's face, Flagg is vastly relieved. (Note: Bigwig's cocktail, as you've probably guessed, is a smooth, mellow Four Roses Old-Fashioned. No wonder he's pleased!)

Gladys George Wins Another Faithful Fan

The Blonde Star Is Disarmingly Natural; 'Virginia City' Employs Two 'Sure Things;' Here and There With the Theater Folk

By Richard L. Coe,
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

MADAME DUBARRY, Carole Arden and Julia Packett perched on the edge of her chair and munched a fried-egg sandwich. But despite the fact that a few minutes before Gladys George had been all those other people for us, she was very much Gladys George in her National Theater dressing room between matinee and evening performances of the new "Lady in Waiting."

And by "very much Gladys George" we mean one of the most disarmingly natural young ladies in a profession where artifice is a highly-paid virtue. It was a dirty trick for us to invade Miss George's sanctum at such a time and we hereby apologize, but after having watched her Carole Arden in "Personal Appearance" for fourteen times we felt like an old friend. Fortunately for us, the blonde comedienne acted like one.

She told us about the little things, lines and business, that have already cut the running time of the Margery Sharp play some fifteen minutes. The elegant cast of troupers and Director Antoinette Perry are working furiously, all hours, to give producer Brock Pemberton a worthy reward when, later in the week, he leaves his New York hospital bed for a glimpse of the comedy. It was because Mr. Pemberton refused to consider anyone else for Julia that "The Nutmeg Tree" has been so long in reaching the stage. Not until Miss George was for a time free of Hollywood would he risk a production.

"But I love pictures," cries Du Barry-Arden-Packett-George when we curse the films for keeping her away so long. "I make swell money in Hollywood and these people who get big salaries and sneer at pictures . . . pff. Now that I'm free-lancing I'm getting along much better, too."

"Before I was in "Personal Appearance" I had a contract with M-G-M. I got a suspension for the run of the play, but when I went back to Hollywood, after working up to $1,000 a week for Mr. Pemberton, I was back at my stipulated contract of $450 per week. I'm not kicking about that, but I was rented out to Paramount then for $2,500 a week. I'm not kicking about that either. It's the parts I had to play. I began playing old ladies, character roles, and now when people meet me they say 'You look so much younger!' 'Younger than what?' I ask and they give me weights and measurements of Carrie, Madame X and those huskies. Pictures? I love 'em. I've got the best part I've ever had in Walter Wanger's 'The House Across the Bay.' It's small, but it's a honey."

Leonard Penn, so disarming that he calls himself Mr. George (because he's married to the lady), was in and out the while, solving autograph difficulties for the faithful at the stage door. He has a fine role in the play as a man of the flying trapeze, but this was subordinated to looking after his wife who, like many feminine stars, prefers to remain at the theater on matinee days.

Those ever astute Brothers Warner do a bright trick in "Virginia City." For some time now they have been at the head of the pack following the glories of the Old West, a territory which never heard of a Super Chief or a Sky Sleeper. In this, their latest salute opening tomorrow morning at the Earle, they employ the pioneer West as a background for a Civil War story, the second cinematic matter for which today's public seems to have a definite appetite. Errol Flynn and Miriam Hopkins are the stars in this Westerner without Indians, a lack which that wit Frank La Falce ascribes to the fact that the Indians were too busy in an adjoining lot to come on over. But "Virginia City" has enough action without the Redskins for any harassed Territory.

One other thing which impressed us about "Virginia City" was Randolph Scott's efforts as a captain of the Confederacy. For some reason we found ourselves wishing that somehow the South might win. He and Miriam Hopkins put up such a noble fight and Errol Flynn always wins anyway, that our sentimental money yearned to be put on the underdog. But like les freres Warner, we remembered our history. And E. Flynn. More about this rip-snorter in Saturday morning's review. (Adv.)

Additional proof of spring's something or other is a Postal Union (Thank you, New Universal Pictures), to the effect that the Mount Vernon Open-air Drive-in Theater is raking off the leaves for an opening which will very likely fall on Sunday, March 31. Manager Irving Shapiro, now at the Long Island Open Theater, will be succeeded this season on the Alexandria-Richmond Highway by Bill Monroe southward bound to this land of milk and molasses.

Again: The War Between the States

ERROL FLYNN AND MIRIAM HOPKINS

stars of "Virginia City," the Easter week attraction on the Earle screen opening tomorrow morning. The story combines the unabated vogue for films with a Western background and the current interest in Civil War history by telling a tale of Nevada in 1864 and a plan to save the Confederacy. The supporting cast includes Randolph Scott, Humphrey Bogart, Frank McHugh, Alan Hale and Guinn "Big Boy" Williams.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, March 20 (INS). Ernst Lubitsch has finally found his next movie idea and it's a honey. He will produce and direct a comedy called "Heil Darling!" Hitler and Goebbels and all that Naziism stands for are going to get the rib of a lifetime in a movie directed as only Lubitsch can direct such a story.

LOUELLA PARSONS

One of our better known leading men will play one of the two newspapermen who are stranded in Nazi territory and have to pretend to be in sympathy with Mr. Hitler. The payoff is when they promise to deliver America to Nazi Germany and come back here for that purpose. You can guess they turn out to be the two best spies in captivity for Uncle Sam.

I suppose it is all in the way you look at it whether the title "Bedtime Story" is something to get the Hays office riled or something to amuse the kiddies. But this, my friends, is the title of the next Cary Grant-Irene Dunne co-starring opus at R.-K.-O. Cary and Irene have just finished "My Favorite Wife" and the studio is so sold on the new Leo McCarey picture that it isn't surprising they are plotting an encore. In the meantime Cary is resting on a tramp steamer with an armful of books. When he returns in two weeks from the jaunt through the canal something definite may be decided about his romance with Phyllis Brooks, which was picking up when he left town.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Mary Anderson, Warners new cutie, is helping Eddie Albert forget Mexico and Jane Bryan; Helen Parrish will meet Forrest Tucker's family in Washington when she goes East on a personal appearance tour. Then—watch for a wedding flash; Nancy Kelly and Irving Cummings, jr., are colder than yesterday's newspaper. She has been seen stepping out with Bob Shaw, once Linda Darnell's heart beat. Linda, by the way, leaves for her first trip to New York tomorrow, chaperoned by her mother. The studio has made her 10 dresses and is she excited? The John Fords celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary last Saturday and many of their friends gathered to drink a toast to them. The guests numbered some of the stars he directed, as well as Hedy Lamarr, Gene Markey, Jon Hall, Frances Langford, Billie Dove and Bob Kenaston; Rosalind Russell, who had all her jewelry stolen in Florida, is leaving there and trying New York as a vacation spot.

Marie Wilson and Nick Grinde, who are so-o in love everyone wonders why the wedding bells haven't rung sooner, at the Florentine Gardens really cooing; Greg Bautzer, who was very unhappy after the Lana Turner-Artie Shaw elopement, is finding consolation in Elaine Shepard; Mary Pickford has invited her friends to Pickfair Saturday night for an Easter party honoring Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Frelinguysen, her house guests; Bonita Granville and Rand Brooks, who played Scarlett's first husband, an item; Mrs. Ray Milland has left the hospital but the baby, born prematurely, is remaining a week longer in the incubator.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, March 20.

Lunched with Freddie Bartholomew the other day, and, as usual, learned lots of things I didn't know before. Not that Freddie's precocious—he's just a darned clever kid. (And how he's growing.) Among other things, he told me the Derby started in 1780—he was wearing a scarf with all the winners, owners and dates on it. When Aunt Cissie commented that the sandwich she was eating should have been called an "explorer's sandwich"—you weren't sure what you'd find next—Freddie told us how they originated.

Seems Lord Sandwich played billiards and didn't like to bother about dinner, so would just grab some meat and a couple of slices of bread . . . And that's how sandwiches (and drive-ins) were born . . . Remember when Freddie first came to this country and what a perfect little gentleman he was? Well, here's one you haven't heard before. The Bartholomews went to visit the Gene Lockharts, and Freddie and June (a year younger) were playing in the garden. Suddenly the maid let out a horrified scream. Freddie had June by the neck and nearly choked her. She had asked him if he was a sissy, and how he resented that word! Said June, after he released her: "Oh, I see. You're not a sissy, just a toughie with an English accent."

Arthur (Dagwood) Lake and his wife, Pat Van Cleve, spent most of the night of March 14 cutting the family budget so they could build a house. Everything arranged, they retired early only to be rudely awakened at 9 by Arthur's business manager who said: "What about that check for your income tax?" Arthur paid it, of course, and as the manager was leaving, Pat called out: "Who was that, dear?" Arthur replied, "That, dear, was our house. It just left."

I saw Pat O'Brien, made up for the famous Knute Rockne. You won't believe it but the guy whose face has been the map of Ireland through more pictures than he can remember is now the perfect image of the rugged Norseman . . . The cast for our coast production of "Margin for Error"— the Broadway hit by Claire Booth Brokaw—reads more imposingly than the New York program. Lionel Royce, who is just about the most menacing gent in pictures today, plays the Otto Preminger role and Lionel Stander plays the Jewish cop, done in Manhattan by Sam Levene. And with Frankie Albertson and Fay Wray—that's plenty of box office draw.

Insurance underwriters, including a representatives from Lloyds of London, were on hand for shooting of "Maryland" when about $50,000 worth of horseflesh took the jumps in the steeplechase at Encino. And it was John Payne (of the Virginia Paynes, suh) and not a double, who rode "Pumpkin Seed" . . . Every year, when the ides of March roll 'round, director Irving Cummings serves notice on his studio that he's taking a day off. And that day is April 3—this will be his twenty-third wedding anniversary. He and his wife, who was Ruth Sinclair, noted actress of her day, get in their car and strike out for a honeymoon in the desert.

Three pages of stage and screen appear in Sunday's Post.

Tommies Like Ellen

Ellen Drew, American girl who went to England to appear in one picture, "French Without Tears," now receives more fan mail from the British share of the Maginot Line trenches than any native British actress, thanks to the record popularity of "French Without Tears" in its English release.

John Garfield In New Play Easter Monday

Film Star at National; Disney, Temple Pictures Head Holiday Bills

"HEAVENLY EXPRESS." John Garfield, Aline MacMahon and Harry Carey, stage players who have become celebrated in the films, return to the legitimate stage at the National Theater Monday evening. Their vehicle is a new play by Albert Bein, author of "Little Ol' Boy" and "Let Freedom Ring." Mr. Garfield's most notable successes were scored by appearances in "Four Daughters" and "Juarez." Miss MacMahon appeared in "Ah, Wilderness" and "Kind Lady," while Mr. Carey's most recent role was that of the Vice President in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." The production is under the banner of Kermit Bloomgarden, directed by Robert Lewis and with settings by Boris Aronson. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Earle

"PINOCCHIO." The widely-heralded Walt Disney feature-length cartoon, successor to the phenominally successful "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," was suggested by Collodi's famous story of the puppet. Disney has introduced a group of his own unique characters into the story among them Cleo, the goldfish; Figaro, the kitten; Jiminy Cricket, Pinocchio's conscience; J. Worthington Foulfellow, the fox, and Giddy, the cat. The Keith engagement will present nine showings of the Technicolor cartoon daily, the first at 8:15 a. m. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"VIRGINIA CITY. Errol Flynn and Miriam Hopkins costar in this Nevada story of 1864, when Southern sympathizers in Virginia City planned to send $5,000,000 in gold to supply the Confederate army and possibly win the war. Flynn is the Union officer, while Miriam Hopkins and Randolph Scott uphold the glory of the South. Humphrey Bogart, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh and Guinn Williams are featured. On the stage "Hey, Hey, Hay-Ride," presents the Diamond Brothers, comedians; Lester Cole and his singing Debutantes; Park and Clifford and the ever versatile Roxyettes. Opens tomorrow morning.

Capitol

"THE BLUE BIRD." Shirley Temple plays the leading role in this screen adaptation of the Maurice Maeterlinck fantasy. Filmed in Technicolor by Twentieth Century-Fox, the picture features Johnny Russell as Shirley's young brother; Spring Byington, Nigel Bruce, Gale Sondergaard, Eddie Collins and Sybil Jason. Jimmie Fidler, the Hollywood columnist, brings his melange of film stars as the holiday stage attraction, Washington being one of seven cities to view this stellar group. Olympe Bradna, Edith Fellow, Peter Lind Hayes, Mary Healy, Michael Whalen and Helen Mack are the vagabonding Hollywoodites. Opens tomorrow morning.

Metropolitan

"A CHUMP AT OXFORD." Laurel and Hardy are reunited in this comedy of two American street cleaners who capture a bank robber and request a scholarship to Oxford University as their reward. When the boys arrive at the hallowed university in their Eton jackets, their fellow students raise merry jingo with them. Harry Langdon, himself a comic of note, wrote the story. Forester Harvey, Wilfred Lucas, Forbes Murray, Frank Baker and Eddie Bordon are featured. Opens tomorrow morning.

Palace

"NORTHWEST PASSAGE." Spencer Tracy, Robert Young, Walter Brennan, Nat Pendleton and Ruth Hussey have the pivotal roles in this screen adaptation of the first portion of Kenneth Roberts' best-selling novel. Filmed in Technicolor, it concerns a pioneer trek westward. In its second week.

Columbia

"GONE WITH THE WIND." After seven weeks at the Palace, the Academy award winner comes back for a limited engagement at the Columbia. Vivien Leigh, Clark Gable, Olivia de Havilland and Leslie Howard are the stars of the Margaret Mitchell romance of the Civil War. The policy will be the same as that which prevailed at the Palace, with unreserved seats for the 9:45 a. m. and 2:45 p. m. showings and reserved seats for the evening performance at 8 p. m. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS." Another Academy award representative on the 1939 screens, this returns Robert Donat in the role which won him the award for the finest acting by a male player in 1939. Greer Garson is featured in the James Hilton story, which the author himself adapted to the screen. Only recently the film won the citation of the motion picture critics of America as the best film of 1939, a result made certain by the ineligibility of "Gone With the Wind."

Belasco

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION." The Civil War again, this time David Wark Griffith's version of 26 years ago. Lillian Gish, H. B. Walthall, Mae Marsh and Wallace Reid appear in the leading roles. The story was based on Thomas Dixon's novel, "The Clansman." This revival, begun out of town, was brought to the mid-city sector last week by public interest stimulated by the "Gone With the Wind."

Trans-Lux

"INFORMATION PLEASE." The newsreel theater is exhibiting the fifth in the popular new short subject series. Christopher Morley is the guest expert. "Flying Targets," concerning bird conservation and "Getting Your Money's Worth," depicting the used car business, are the other short subjects which support the 35 minutes of news reel clippings. Opens tomorrow morning.

Gayety

Atlas

"THE LITTLE TOUGH GUYS." Hally Chester and Harris Berger, starred in many of "The Little Tough Guy" films are the headliners opening a three-day engagement on the Atlas stage Sunday afternoon. comedy and dancing are their forte. Frank Hall returns to the Northeast combination house and the double feature screen attraction stars "The Little Tough Guys" in "East Side Kids" and Robert Montgomery in "The Earl of Chicago."

Howard

ERSKINE HAWKINS and his orchestra are the incoming headline attraction at the T street theater. One of the most highly touted trumpeters of the country, Hawkins has toured extensively, playing in theaters and ballrooms. The Peters Sisters are costarred in the stage revue. "On Dress Parade," with John Litel and the "Dead End" Kids, is the screen attraction. Midnight show Saturday. Opens tomorrow morning.

Hello, Mr. C!

ROBERT DONAT returned yesterday in his Academy Award-winning impersonation of the English schoolmaster in James Hilton's "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" at the Little Theater

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, March 20.

CRITICISM: Sir Cedric Hardwicke watched Charles Laughton emote before the camera. He nudged Thomas Mitchell, looked around to see that there were no eavesdroppers, and said: "Do you want to know what I think of Laughton?" . . . Mitchell nodded, and Hardwicke whispered, haughtily: "He's a screen actor" . . . When Hardwicke went before the camera, Laughton watched him, then turned to Mitchell, and said: "Do you want to know what I think of Cedric? He's a stage actor" . . . When both Laughton and Hardwicke had left, Mitchell told a companion: "Do you want to know what's wrong with both those men? The trouble with them is—they're not Irish."

WEALTH: The Marquis de Cuevas, who married John D. Rockefeller's granddaughter, will have to reduce the vast number of charitable donations he has been making ever since his wife inherited the Rockefeller estate . . . Her father, Dr. Charles A. Strong, died recently, and bequeathed the bulk of his fortunes to a foundation. But to his daughter he left a villa in Italy—a place which no longer will be occupied but upon which Italy has assessed a high annual tax. With that nonprofit inheritance went a paternal admonition that she must retain all the servants who had been employed there for so many years, and who were dependent upon those jobs for sustenance. And there are 22 servants.

REHEARSAL: John Garfield is very much enthused about the prospects of his new play, "Heavenly Express" . . . He rehearses his role all day, until midnight . . . "It's a good role, "Garfield assured, "and I know my part. I knew my part after two days. I know it backward" . . . "Then why do you have to rehearse so much?" he was asked . . . "Because," Kermit Bloomgarten, the producer, explained, "he recites the lines backward."

SONG: Some of the native singers in Nassau last week gathered in front of the hotel, on the beach, and sang native tunes to the guests . . . . "The same old songs," one of the guests complained. "You've been singing those same songs for five years. If you don't change 'em, I'll write a new one myself" . . . "Think you can do it?" one native challenged . . . "Yes," replied Irving Berlin, "I think I can do it."

CHATTER: The Normandie and the Queen Mary Monday ordered enough food for their kitchens, to last for a month's trip. Their kitchens are full . . . Ernest Hemingway's new book concerns four days and three nights in a man's life. He's now working on the last day . . . The widow of Dr. Paul Ehrlich, the discoverer of "The Magic Bullet," has appealed for aid. Researchers have been able to raise only $6,000 for the impoverished lady, whose property was confiscated by the Nazi government . . . Johnny Broderick, Broadway's detective-hero, will win new laurels soon . . . Dorothy Lamour rushed back to Hollywood Sunday, and refused to pose for news-cameraman, because the operation left some marks on her face.

COMPROMISE: Michael Todd's "New Orleans" show-place, at the World's Fair, will feature a novelty—an orchestra of 12 mechanical, man-sized dolls, which will play the latest tunes . . . Todd, whose "Campus Ballroom" will furnish employment for many musicians, wondered whether the Musicians Union would object to these musician-dolls. He discussed this with Jack Rosenberg, head of Local 802 . . . "What? Twelve dolls—putting 12 of our men out of work?" Rosenberg asked, feigning alarm. "Let's compromise. Cut it down to eight dolls—and it'll be okay."

Senate Orders Wire-Tapping Probe Reaching Into States

Private New York Detective Agency Is Accused by Senator Green of Making A Record of High Officials' Discussions

By the Associated Press

An investigation of wire tapping which may have political repercussions in several States was voted unanimously yesterday by the Senate.

In approving a resolution for the investigation, introduced by Senator Green (Democrat), of Rhode Island, the Senate authorized expenditure of $15,000. It was expected that Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, of the Interstate Commerce Committee, would name a subcommittee within a few days to conduct theinquiry.

Green declared that the wires of "public officials and responsible private citizens holding high political office had been tampered with" in Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Massachusetts. He said a private New York detective agency was responsible for placing recording devices in certain places in these States

In Rhode Island, a Federal grand jury has been called to investigate charges that the lines of Mayor McCoy of Pawtucket, and of the State's Attorney General Jackvony, had been tapped.

It was reliably reported that several Justice Department invetigators recently had been sent to Rhode Island to aid in the investigation.

It also was learned that some Western States might be involved in the investigation. Among those named were Colorado and California.

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, commented that "wire tapping is outrageous, and investigations like this should help to put a stop to it. There's no reason why a man can't go about his business without someone else snooping on him."

I average 35,000 miles a year, so economy counts heavily with me. I've driven my 1940 Packard (my 53rd car) 17,460 miles in 6 months and haven't spent $5 on it, except for gas, oil and lubrication. Gas mileage is better than on small cars I've owned – averaging at least 17 miles to the gallon.

COMPARE ECONOMY—YOU'LL PICK PACKARD!
Packard, of all manufacturers, has the fastest-growing family of owners in America.
And the big reason is—greater owner satisfaction . . . in value, in performance and in all-around economy. Packard urges you to compare . . . check . . . demonstrate it against other cars. You'll find it's 1940's standout—a big car that costs little to run. Study the comparative service costs at the right—then see your nearest Packard dealer now.
Now, more than ever—ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

"In 13,780 miles, including a trip through Mexico, I've spent only $1.60 for mechanical work . . . The roominess and riding comfort of our 1940 Packard have exceeded our fondest expectations." Dr. F. P. Cross, Altadena, Cal.

"After considering the 'usual' cars I decided to purchase a 1940 Packard. In a road check of 1,700 miles my One-Ten averaged 17¼ miles per gallon." J. C. Leitch, Dickeyville, Md.

The Nichols Bill

Presumably the House District Committee approved the Nichols tax bill so hastily in order to save Washington from financial embarrassment. Congress rejected a similar combination of sales and income taxes last year. The committee seems to have concluded that, in spite of the prevailing dislike for sales taxes on Capital Hill, this is the only reliable untapped source of revenue left to the District.

Obviously the committee is trying to escape a dilemma. In doing so it has taken what appears to be the course of least resistance. If Congress will accept Representative Nichols' bill as a substitute for the present income tax, it will temporarily solve the local revenue problem. But it will not give the Nation's Capital a satisfactory revenue system.

The committee appears to have little interest in plans to modify the income tax so as to make it workable, in spite of the recent Court of Appeals' decision in the Sweeney case. It is true that extension of the levy to incomes earned in the District by nonresidents would make it applicable to the salaries of Congressmen. In the minds of some, that may be the strongest argument against Representative Bates' proposal. But members of Congress will also pay the sales tax if the Nichols bill is enacted.

The same is true of Government employes who maintain legal residence in the States. This large group of citizens would be put under pressure to give up their votes to avoid paying taxes to two local governments. The real problem for Congress is to iron out this difficult issue of triple taxation instead of merely adopting an expedient that would perpetuate such inequities.

While the House Committee has acted promptly to cut through a difficult problem, adoption of its plan would certainly create new difficulties for the future. If the House and the Senate District Committees do not give more thought to the implications of this bill than the House Committee has done, the question of a permanent revenue system for Washington will certainly arise to plague future sessions of Congress.

The Allies React

If Hitler ever believed that Finland's capitulation to Russia would weaken or destroy the determination of Great Britain and France to fight on to victory, he is today a sadder and wiser man.

Finland's surrender was without question a serious blow to the prestige and the prospects of the Allies. It closed off a possible means of circumventing the formidable barrier of the Siegfried Line. It made potentially available to Germany the Russian resources which were being used up in warfare. And it has developed the possibility of a German-Russian-Italian entente which could only be viewed by French and British leaders with the gravest concern.

But the new situation, instead of making Great Britain and France eager to grasp at any peace straw held out by the Nazis, appears only to have stiffened the Allies. Both the British and French governments have, during recent days, been criticized by their publics for not prosecuting the war with sufficient vigor.

In France this criticism yesterday reached a point where, after a large number of deputies had abstained from participating in a vote of confidence in the government, Premier Daladier resigned. M. Daladier may not be out for good, nor even long. But in any event the next French government will be one pledged to the greatest possible war effort.

In Great Britain the result of such criticism has taken the form of prolonged, dramatic and apparently successful air raids on the German naval and air base at Sylt. With this action, Saturday's attack on Scapa Flow has been avenged and the British have given evidence that they are prepared to take the initiative in large-scale air fighting.

In view of the Allied state of mind, as exemplified b ythe debates in the French and British parliaments, by M. Daladier's resignation and by the raid on Sylt, there does not appear to be any immediate prospect of a negotiated peace satisfactory to both sides. As a peace mission, the Welles visits to Rome, Berlin, Paris and London must, therefore, be written down as a futile gesture.

As a voyage of exploration and discovery into the state of mind of the belligerents and of Italy it was, however, a clear success. Mr. Welles has certainly kept his eyes and ears open, while maintaining throughout his trip an attitude of impeccable discretion. He returns to this country in a position to enlighten President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull regarding many fundamental aspects of the war.

In the meantime, however, events have anticipated his forthcoming report in one major particular. They have shown that the flood waters of war are rising rather than falling, with no landing place visible for any dove of peace.

A Dangerous Measure

The conflict over the policies to be pursued by the Farm Credit Administration, which has resulted in the resignation of several leading officials since the FCA was transferred to the Department of Agriculture, may shortly shift to Capitol Hill. For the House Committee on Agriculture and the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency now have before them a highly controversial measure known in the House as the Jones bill. Albert S. Goss, who resigned as Land Bank Commissioner last week, mentioned this bill as typical of a tendency to "try to solve the farm problem by lending more and more money. And each new bill," he added, "gets softer and softer."

Yesterday Mr. Goss appeared before the House Committee on Agriculture and pointed out numerous "soft spots" in the Jones bill. He objected particularly to a provision abolishing the requirement that farmer borrowers shall subscribe to the capital stock of the land banks, or of the farm loan associations through which loans are made. In Mr. Goss' opinion this section of the bill would destroy the basis for successful cooperative endeavor by removing the financial stake which farmer borrowers now have in maintaining sound lending operations.

The bill also calls for a permanent reduction to 3 per cent of the rates of interest charged on Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner loans. Since a large percentage of the commissioner loans are issued on the basis of second mortgage security, up to 75 per cent of the appraised value of property, heavy losses from delinquencies are naturally anticipated.

The 1 per cent spread between borrowing and lending rates allowed under the bill to cover costs of administration and losses is considered most inadequate by Mr. Goss. However, if the banks are to be deprived of their capital stock, as the bill requires, and forced to make loans on an uneconomic basis, losses will ultimately have to be borne by the Government in any case. Anticipating that necessity, provision is made for Government guarantees of the land bank bond issues. Outstanding bond issues are to be refunded as speedily as possible to take advantage of the somewhat lower interest rates made possible by these guarantees.

Mr. Goss believes that if the land banks were permitted to operate on an independent basis, preserving and strengthening the cooperative features of the system, they would eventually be able to market their bonds on as low a yield basis as the Government itself. But a good market for unguaranteed land bank issues can only be built up by following sound lending policies that make it unnecessary to rely upon the Government to shoulder losses.

In numerous other ways the Jones bill would remove essential safeguards against loss. It would give the farmer a right to demand readjustment of his debt, if payments due exceeded the normal farm income available to meet such payments. Thousands of borrowers might take advantage of this provision in times of depression to demand a scaling of debt charges, even if fully able to meet their obligations. Adjustment of debts, when made, should take account of the circumstances of individual debtors. This bill is an invitation to indiscriminate, wholesale debt scaling.

The bill also prohibits foreclosures or suits for deficiency judgments if the debtor conveys the mortgaged property to the lending agency. By thus relieving borrowers of all personal responsibility for debts, the bill would enable solvent individuals to evade their obligation to pay in full. Deficiency judgments are seldom resorted to, but the knowledge that they may be protects lending agencies against borrowers who deliberately try to evade their obligations.

Thus, as Mr. Goss pointed out yesterday, at every turn the Jones bill increases the potential losses of the land banks and puts obstacles in the way of recovery of amounts due from solvent borrowers. At the same time it provides for greatly increased concentration of power in the hands of the governor of the Farm Credit Administration—a tendency which runs counter to wise efforts to decentralize administration.

If the new Farm Credit Administration wishes to pursue an ultra-liberal credit policy without regard for the cost of operations, the Jones bill provides an ideal method of achieving its ends. But tampering with the farm credit system will not solve the country's farm problem. And it would destroy many admirable features of a system that has been in process of development for a good many years.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that the House and Senate committees will consult experts familiar with the workings of the present system before taking action on this wholly disruptive measure.

To The Point

Senator Clark, of Missouri, asserts that James H. R. Cromwell should be recalled for his speech in Toronto on Tuesday night. In this the United States Minister to Canada observed that a policy of neutrality "is no good reason why we should not face the facts and weigh the issues which confront us."

A few other Congressmen, in both Senate and House, are inclined to be critical and Secretary Hull, saying that he did not see Mr. Cromwell's speech before delivery, has asked the Minister to send him an official copy.

The Secretary of State will find the document a readable and impressive piece of writing. And he will find it, moreover, wholly in line with the attitude taken by the Administration at the outbreak of the European war. As President Roosevelt said in his radio address on September 3: "I cannot ask that every American remain neutral in thought. . . . Even a neutral has a right to take account of facts. Even a neutral cannot be asked to close his mind or close his conscience."

In his Toronto speech Mr. Cromwell took exception to some of the current utterances to the effect "that there is in actual fact little to choose between one belligerent and another" in the present war. The Minister to Canada pointed out that, on the contrary, the issue is much as it was at the time of Abraham Lincoln's "house divided" speech. Germany, said Mr. Cromwell, fights for a slave economy. The Allies are fighting "for the perpetuation of individual liberty and freedom."

Perhaps it would have been more clearly in accord with diplomatic etiquette if Mr. Cromwell had preferred to utter sweet nothings instead of speaking realistically to his Toronto audience. But most people will agree with Senator Pepper's pleasure that some home truths were spoken publicly, even by an American diplomat, and also with this Senator's conclusion that the Cromwell speech merely said "what everybody knows."

Everybody knows that the Allies, far more than the Nazis and Communists, are fighting for the preservation of human values and democratic institutions. But so much sheer nonsense has been talked about propaganda that some have almost come to believe it contrary to American interests to hear the unvarnished truth. That Mr. Cromwell's excursion in this field will hurt him with New Jersey voters, should he decide to campaign there this fall, is greatly to be doubted.

Degree Of Fever

L'affaire Roosevelt-Farley is reminiscent of Stephen Leacock's horseman who galloped off madly in all directions at once. Perhaps that horseman was a politician on the eve of a national convention.

Recently the President was reported as saying that he would not run for a third term. If he had said merely that, the Farley camp would have had cause for jubilation. For with the President out of the running, the door would seem to open wider for the genial Postmaster General.

Actually the remarks attributed to the President produced anguish in the bosoms of the Postmaster General and his supporters. For in that same statement in which Mr. Roosevelt was reported to have shut the door on a third term for himself he was also quoted in a manner shutting it on a first term for Mr. Farley.

This anguish has now been assuaged by the President's forthright, if somewhat belated, statement that the remarks attributed to him regarding Mr. Farley were made out of whole cloth. By this statement Mr. Roosevelt seems to have given the Postmaster General carte blanche to go ahead with his preconvention plans. And this the latter yesterday said he is doing.

But while moving in the direction of Mr. Farley, the President also moved simultaneously in exactly the opposite direction. To some, at least, he suggested that he has not eliminated himself as a possible candidate. And if that is the case, the hat which Mr. Farley has thrown into the ring is so much millinery.

Which all leads to the sad conclusion that the Nation, as well as the President, may be suffering from a touch of temperature.

Our War Debts

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The empires of Europe, to which America loaned over $14,000,000,000 in the first World War, have no intention of paying back anything in cash. None of them has repaid these 20-year old obligations except Finland, which has met its semiannual payments regularly—although it may be noted that even Finland's principal was cut in half as an accommodation—and Hungary and Greece which have made small interest payments.

The only feasible method of settling the controversy seems to be the plan of Senator Lundeen—cession of the British and French West Indies to this Government in part payment of British and French war debts, and attachment of deposits of Germany, Italy and other debtor countries in American banks.

When the recent incident occurred, of the seizure of American mail by British officials at Bermuda, it was frequently remarked that there would have been no such event if Bermuda had been an American possession. With war of unprecedented cruelty and bitterness raging in the Old World it is plain enough that the ownership by any belligerent nation of Caribbean islands or other land on or off the coasts of the Americas is fraught with danger.

At any time a crisis may arise in the West Indies that would be likely to ensnare the United States in European strife, no matter how conscientiously we might seek to maintain a policy of neutrality and isolation. The peril of alien ownership of the lands in question is too great.

Finally, if the agitation for liquidation of the long overdue debts of the first World War fails to recover a single penny in cash or a single penny's worth of acreage, it will have accomplished a most worthy result in the economy of the universe, if, by reminding the American people of the financial losses which, on top of moral, mental and physical losses, they suffered from what Scott Nearing so appropriately branded "The Great Madness," it lashes our citizenry into a white-hot determination that "It Shall Not Be Again!" To Prevent Ruin

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A short time ago I asked through your columns, "Do the governments of Europe dare to stop the war?" thereby returning about 70,000,000 workers to an industrial system quite obviously incapable of absorbing them.

Let me now ask, "What can be done to prevent ruin if such a course is followed?"

It is widely admitted that a more fair and equal distribution of the wealth and incomes of these nations (and of the United States) is necessary to prevent a resort to the putting into acion of that phrase of our Declaration of Independence "When in the course of human events it becomes necessary."

What means can be used to insure such a distribution?

Let me suggest the taxing system, one of the foundations upon which all government depends, can be used to insure such a distribution.

By exercising the right to tax to the extent of absolutely limiting incomes to a point that will prevent excessive or unwise accumulation. And the stepping up of tax rates on all incomes to finance unlimited employment at a wage that will assure such a standard of living as each nation may deem advisable for its working classes, or through their purchasing power to furnish a market for its industries.

No great nation in history ever went to pieces when its wealth was distributed among its people with any fair degree of equality. On the other hand, no nation has lasted long after the bulk of its wealth had accumulated into the hands of a few individuals.

Refugees And Immigration

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The American Defense Society has long continued to insist that "Defense" of our country is not only the protection of our Government, but of our people as well, and to that end believes the time has come in which it is necessary for us, as a people, to take a positive stand with respect to immigration.

With 1 out of every 13½ of our own people out of work, we believe it ill becomes us as a Nation to increase the ratio, which we shall surely do if we continue to keep our doors open to the alien.

Our people are now, and will continue to be, sympathetic to the victims of a war-torn world who have been and even now are being persecuted, banished and rendered homeless by acts of savagery and brutality which are without parallel in history. But are our American people and these United States the only ones who can offer the oppressed a refuge?

We have not noticed that other of the Americas either have or are now urging these refugees to come to them, and yet they have land to spare and few if any, of them are faced with an unemployment problem such as ours.

We are informed that the Senate of the United States will shortly take up and consider the problem anew, and our people may well give serious thought to it. It in reality becomes a personal question to each of us—are we prepared to bring strangers into our family, do we want to increase the number whom we shall feed and support, and shall we provide additional competition for our own labor?

Charitable we have been and will continue to be, but we should be careful lest we deliberately place ourselves in a position where it will become impossible for us to extend it. LESLIE J. TOMPKINS, Chairman, Immigration Committee of the American Defense Society, Inc.

New York City, March 18.

Statistical Rumpus

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The prevalent statistical rumpus over how many Americans are unemployed brings somewhat strikingly to recollection of many still around, who then were on the scene, that "parade" of distinguished and disputing alienists past the witness stand during the course of a celebrated New York murder trial, near the turn of the century and, also, the Richmond, Va., colored Baptist preachers' debate in 1903 on "Can a Sinner Pray?"

When it was all over in New York the man in the street was quite convinced of the murder-defendant's "looniness"—even though the defense matched expert testimony of every affirming alienist offered by the State with testimony equally as expert of other alienists who testified to the contrary, and the jury was unable to reach a verdict.

Down in Richmond the clergymen first argued, then raved, ranted, to get nowhere—except to the point of exhaustion; when there unexpectedly came forth a shoemaker, one Dennis Rax, who gave attest to the efficacy of a sinner's appeals to the throne of grace. Said Brother Rax: "I knows that Gawd'll hear a sinner pray 'cause he heered me; and I done been converted and baptized four times!"

When in the 1920's George Rothwell Brown was doing a front page column in The Post he aroused the ire of the then Secretary of Labor by writing that the Secretary's unemployment tabulators had counted among the loafers those employed persons who, out to lunch, would pause to read from The Post's bulletin board. Statisticians somehow don't seem able to get along with other professional folks.

RIENZI B. LEMUS.

Mr. Pegler On Education

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Early in February your paper carried a column by Westbrook Pegler in which he stated and attempted to prove that "there is altogether too much education in the United States."

Mr. Pegler thinks that "the American people are, at a rough estimate, ten times as educated today as they were in 1900, they are also ten times as miserable, or anyway, think they are."

Statistics gathered by governmental agencies in 1936 indicate that, for all practical purposes, 8 to 10 per cent of our people are today cut off from communication by the written or printed word. If we were ten times as uneducated in 1900 as we are today, then we were a Nation 80 to 100 per cent illiterate (for all practical purposes) 40 years ago.

Mr. Pegler should not allow his irritation with his tax bill to make him slipshod in the figures he syndicates in papers throughout the United States!

Again Mr. Pegler errs grievously when he indicates that in plans for revising education so as to make it fit today's needs ". . . . There is no process of selection, and none seems to be possible under the American system if this assistance is to be a public service."

This statement is wholly without foundation. As the Educational Policies Commission points out in its latest report, "Education and Economic Well-Being in American Democracy," selection does occur now in our educational system. Among other recommendations this report states that lack of money should not be permitted to keep advanced education from those of superior intelligence.

Why does the commission recommend this? Because our human resources are valuable. Why waste them?

We believe that education contributes to the well-being and happiness of the common people, and we are prepared to debate that thesis with Westbrook Pegler or any other lucky man whose income is in the upper brackets and who takes the position that the thing to do is "keep 'em dumb."

Education in this country is neither so good nor so universal nor so free as we like to believe. It needs careful revising to fit today's needs. It needs better distribution. More money is needed for it. Over a period of five to ten years, beginning now, we should gradually raise our investment in public education.

From the editorials and comments which have reached the Educational Policies Commission since we released our report on February 27, we believe the country is with us. We do not say that improved education alone will solve all our economic problems, but it will certainly help. The improvement of human abilities is the basic attack; the combination of well-integrated fundamental and vocational education is something which America in 1940 must have for economic and civic efficiency. WILLIAM G. CARR,

Secretary, Educational Policies Commission.

Old Georgetown Shops

Georgetown has never been trade-minded. Even those of us whose memory reaches back to the 80's and 90's can recall no marts of trade in the then sleepy town.

In those earlier days there were a few shops chiefly scattered along High street and Bridge street that supplied the peoples' needs in the way of steak and potatoes, needles and pins.

But for real shopping one took the Bridge street cable car or the West street trolley to be whirled in the course of three-quarters of an hour to the "city," to alight at the Boston store, as Woodward & Lothrop's used to be called.

Among the shops in Georgetown, however, that competed with this rival was that of Mr. John Smoot, located on the south side of Bridge (M) street near Congress (Thirty-first street). Mr. Smoot, a vestryman of St. John's Church, could supply the ladies of that congregation—and others—with excellent dress material as well as long-sleeved undershirts, long drawers, black stockings, etc. But this emporium has long since closed its doors, leaving no second generation to carry on, as some of the others have done.

In fact some of them have continued business unto the third and fourth generation, one of which was Freeman's, closed only a year or so ago.

Grandfather Freeman's was a tiny, one-room place that was entered by two steps down from the street, very rickety steps, very tremulous floor, very querulous bell that tinkled a warning to the proprietor. So heavily laden were the shelves and tables with slabs of gray sateen, boxes of O. N. T. spool cotton and tiers of gingham aprons that a customer often felt as if the entire stock were about to fall on her head.

Pioneer Freeman met with such success that he soon blossomed out into a larger store. Ladies on their way to Lenten service at St. John's or Holy Trinity found it such a convenience to drop in there for the notions they needed rather than go all the way down the hill to Mr. Smoot's.

Another shop of the early days was a little off the beaten track, on Dumbarton avenue, near Green (Twenty-ninth) street. This was "Miss Ashford's," where the public was served not by one but by three spinster ladies of that name. Here, in addition to the usual assortment of "notions," a small person might buy many a mouth-watering sweet.

One of the proprietresses of this establishment was stout, was afflicted with a goiter and was very deaf. Another whose angular face bore several moles, had a temper that showed itself in screamed injunctions to the hard-of-hearing sister. While a third, more blessed in looks and disposition, was the one most often appealed to by timid young customers. First names they must have had, but they were so much a part of each other and of the store that there was no distinction in calling them. They were just "Miss Ashford." Each wore a dull-colored calico dress with a large enveloping apron.

Every day at dusk a wooden, lead-colored shutter was bolted outside the little display window facing on the street, securing the place against robbers, and up to 1900 the store was lighted by kerosene oil lamps such as "the three old maids of G" had used for the previous 50 years or more.

But the headquarters for choice confectionery was Stohlman's, yes, even as far back as that, in the same spot on High street as it is now managed by the third or maybe fourth generation.

Years ago it consisted of a main room, where there were display cases of cakes and candies, while behind this, one step up, was the "ice cream parlor."

It was the delight of Georgetown children to go to Stohlman's for a cool treat on summer afternoons. Once seated at a marble-topped table with your friend in this windowless, stuffy room, where festoons of fly-specked tissue paper, red and green, hung over your head, you tried to decide what sort of ice cream you wanted. Your order was taken by the one servitor of the place, a Negro dwarf named Joe, who always seemed to appear from nowhere with a Jack-in-the-box agility, dignified and uncommunicative.

The writer's cheeks still burn when she recalls an embarrassing moment suffered in this place when Joe presented to her and her chum a bill for 20 cents, price of two saucers of ice cream, when we expected it to be 10 cents, the amount we had, and no more. Looking at each other aghast, we summoned courage to ask Joe if he hadn't understood us to say "Two five-cent saucers," but he replied:

"They ai'nt no fi' cent he'ps," and turning, disappeared behind the chenille portiere. The outcome of this tragic adventure was that the braver of the two, after swallowing the last mouthful of ice cream, on her way out stopped at the counter in the front room and timidly asked the lady clerk to "please charge the ten cents we didn't have to my mother."

A little south of Stohlman's, on High street, at the corner of Prospect, there was Tribbey's buggy and wagon shop, with its unique style of advertising that literally transcended the window displays of its neighbors. A once perfectly good buggy was placed on the roof of this three-storied skyscraper and remained there many years to attract attention far and wide to the products of the place.

On the east side of this same block there was a dyer's and cleaner's establishment (name forgotten) in whose dusty window stood perennially a wooden pig, painted white with ostrich feathers of various colors stuck in holes in his back. It was supposed to be a tempting bit of artistry, showing the dyer's skill, but it only made some of us think of the song of the owl and the pussycat, of the pig "with a ring in the end of his nose":

"Oh, pig are you willing To sell for a shilling?" etc.

Georgetown was that sort of a place in the 80's and 90's.

New Arabian Nights

LET US BEGIN with the Hoffman twins, Ruth and Helen, the pair of big girls from St. Paul who, two years ago, wrote "We Married an Englishman." It was Ruth, to be sure, who married Douglas Brooks, the English engineer of the Garden of Eden in Iraq; but whither Ruth went, there went Helen, also. In their new book, "Our Arabian Nights" (Carrick & Evans, $2.75), they tell of lodging in Baghdad and in the harem-tents of a hospital sheik, up-country from Mosul.

They loved it, and their delight bubbles over in the pages of their book, both in the richly Hoffmanesque drawings and in their gay stories—of the exigencies of automobiling in Baghdad, where butchers at work occupy the posts elsewhere assumed by traffic officers; of house-hunting and furniture designing in the City of Haroun-al-Raschid; of Sheik Fulan, who thought their orthochrome "movies" of his palace superior to Greta Garbo's films; of the problems of pets, particularly a pet pig in a Moslem city; of the Arab language, every word in which has five meanings—the original meaning, its opposite, a poetical abstraction, something to do with a camel, and something too obscene to be translated, and of the comfortable routine of life in a Bedouin's harem. (The sheik lived in a tent, but had a shiny new automobile, ice sent three times a week from Mosul, and an Exakta camera.)

Incidentally, reading this gay tale, you may learn a lot about Iraq, some semisociological, some pleasantly trivial. If you want to telephone to the royal palace in Baghdad, you turn to the letter "K" in the telephone directory and there you find:

King—Baghdad 194.

FEW MEN HAVE ever been so extravagantly overrated, even by themselves, as was Oscar Wilde; few have been as wildly lampooned or as brilliantly caricatured; only D. H. Lawrence in our own day has given rise to such a posthumous bitterness among his disciples. So the balance which Frances Winwar maintains in her "Oscar Wilde and the Yellow Nineties" (Harper's, $3.50), is an achievement.

He stood 6 feet tall and apparently really had "red, rose-leaf lips;" there was never any doubt about his wit, even among those who studiously traced his sources. Only Whistler ever outquipped him. ("I wish I had said that," Oscar remarked at a friend's mot; "You will, Oscar, you will," interjected the painter.) And when Victoria's England was at its stodgiest, Oscar Wilde played the role that "Patience" has preserved for us. His fame crossed the Atlantic, and so did he, to inform reporters that he was disappointed in the Atlantic, and the customs men that he had "nothing to declare—except my genius." Then, at the peak of his fame, he fell, more publicly than even another writer fell, to the depths.

It may be that Miss Winwar overrates his jeweled way with words; it may be that she is herself a bit Victorian in her judgment of the sin which brought him "lower than the lowest criminal." She is frank, which is a virtue; she admires the man at bay on the witnessstand, when that bigoted old fox, Edward Carson, was harrying him.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

After Seven Years

THE NEW DEAL ended seven years in office the other day. But to the Republicans it seems longer than that.

It's a long time to be on a detour.

Seven years ago Franklin D. Roosevelt took over America. And he's still reluctant about giving it back.

To the rugged individualist it doesn't seem a day over 50.

When the Democrats swept into Washington there had been a stock market crash and a business collapse. (That was away back when a weak market and a business collapse were novelties.)

The people were frightened, desperate and crying "Help, or we perish!" They thought it was optional.

F. D. Roosevelt was the man of the hour, and not even the Manufacturers Association was hissing. "We have nothing to fear but fear itself," declared Mr. Roosevelt. Which was plenty.

The voters demanded action, and they got it. And they are still getting it, with no time out for adjusting the compass or locating the radio beam.

Roosevelt promised a balanced budget, strict economy, a cut of at least 25 per cent in Government expenses and an end of high taxes. But he didn't say when.

"Taxes are paid out of the sweat of every man's brow," declared the President. But that line was taken out after the opening night.

But we got beer back right away. And the right to get a highball in a cafe instead of off a boat.

First came the era of initials. The NRA, the AAA, the WPA, the PWA, the SEC, the CCC, the TVA, the NLRB and all the others. We got the Blue Eagle, the Black appointment, the Brown taste and the Red light.

We got the sit-down strike, double-header Thanksgivings, the 59-cent dollar, the purge, the baby-faced Supreme Court, the Stock-Market-Any-Child-Is-Safe-In, the C. I. O., the S O S., the P. D. Q. and the best system of six-lane highways any sheriff could attach.

Business got better, but there was no profit in it.

Industry totaled up after a banner year and found it used to do better under a deficit.

But the voters loved it, and Mr. Roosevelt was reelected everywhere except Maine, Vermont and the Union League clubs.

The people looked to Washington for everything from a regular job and free wheeling to an individual swimming pool and a girl to help with the ironing. After seven years the question, "Where are we?" is still unanswered, but on a carrousel it seems relatively unimportant.

Now we are around to another election year. The Democrats are confident that the voters never repudiate a picnic. The Republicans are confident that folks always tire of a marathon dance if it lasts long enough.

We shall see what we shall see. And we may even find out who's running.

Mr. Lindley's Revelation

By Mark Sullivan

The Real "Quandary?"

DEAR, DEAR, we really must get this straightened out. It's a rather important aspect of the Presidential campaign now developing. Besides, this column reprinted something which President Roosevelt now says wasn't true. So that must be corrected.

It began March 4, with publication by Mr. Ernest Lindley in The Washington Post, of what was said to be a conversation between President Roosevelt and a Southern Democratic Congressman who called on him. In this conversation—I suppose we must now say "alleged c o n v e r s a t i o n"—Mr. Roosevelt was said to have said:

That he did not expect to run for a third term.

That he thought Secretary of State Cordell Hull would be a good man for the Democrats to nominate.

That for Vice President there was much good material; he mentioned Senator Wheeler, of Montana, Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and Mr. Paul McNutt.

That—this was in answer to a question from his visitor—it would not be expedient to nominate Postmaster General James A. Farley for Vice President. That Mr. Farley is a wonderful fellow; no one better deserves recognition by the Democratic Party. That Mr. Farley has done more for him (Mr. Roosevelt) than any other living person. But—that nomination of Mr. Farley (who is a Catholic) would stir up religious prejudice such as worked against Al Smith in 1928.

All that was printed by Mr. Lindley. That it came from him made strongly for belief. Columnist Lindley is a New Dealer, one of the best, with a much better mind than the run of them; with some touch of their school-teacherish trait, but free from the harsh dogmatism of the cult, and free from the extreme radicalism of some; free also from their sometimes over-smartness. Besides, Mr. Lindley has a personal relation to Mr. Roosevelt which made strongly for reliance upon his story. He is, they say, close to the White House family; has written a friendly biography of Mr. Roosevelt; was chosen by Mr. Roosevelt as one of the governing body for that new library on the Hyde Park estate which is to house Mr. Roosevelt's papers. (Surely Mr. Roosevelt would not choose an inaccurate person to be a trustee of his papers.) Mr. Lindley's relation to the White House was intimate—the veracious Mr. Raymond Moley, aforetime the most inner of the inner circle, wrote in his premature memoirs that on one occasion Mr. Roosevelt "was at work putting the finishing touches on a fine speech that Ernest Lindley had drafted for him."

SO, COLUMNIST Lindley's account of what Mr. Roosevelt told a visitor was taken most seriously, and made a sensation. It was widely quoted and commented on—this column reprinted part of it. But now Mr. Roosevelt, at his press conference, says it wasn't true, not a word of it. It was all that which you describe by a three-letter word followed by "out of the whole cloth."

That made another sensation. At once, Mr. Lindley was queried—what had he to say? Regrettably from the point of view of amity in high places, Mr. Lindley does not retract. He says that after he printed his story, "five prominent Democrats, three in Congress and one in the Administration," told him, in effect, that they had had similar conversations with the President. In stating his present position, Mr. Lindley says he got the story "from sources whose reliability I have no reason to doubt." That present-tense verb, "have," implies that Mr. Lindley continues to believe his sources—Mr. Lindley is a scholar who knows the shading of tenses. (Tut, Mr. Lindley, you oughtn't to do that. You ought to know that when the President says a thing didn't happen, it just didn't happen—that's all. It was just something s o m e b o d y dreamed.)

My own intuition is that it wasn't the mention of Mr. Farley's religion that caused all the commotion. That is a commonplace of chat about politics. I'll bet Mr. Farley himself discusses it. Everybody who talks about the Democratic situation—and who does not—everybody who discusses the chances of the various Vice Presidential possibilities, speculates on whether Mr. Farley's religion would cut any figure. Many think it would not, to any material degree—certainly not as much as in the case of Al Smith in 1928, when the idea of a Catholic on the National ticket was new. Often, the first person who does a novel thing, arouses hostility—pioneers are frequently crucified. But often the second person who tries it encounters no great hostility.

What disturbs Mr. Roosevelt, one may guess, is not the matter of religion. It is the implication of a defect in his loyalty to Mr. Farley. Mr. Farley has been utterly loyal to him. Mr. Farley's whole conduct of his career has been governed by one question: "What does the chief wish?" or "What would serve the chief's ambition?" If now Mr. Farley has an ambition of his own, the obligation on Mr. Roosevelt to give him a corresponding loyalty is pretty strong.

If I had the literary felicity of Gen. Hugh Johnson, I would say that that is the ants in the pants of Mr. Roosevelt's conscience. And these ants will continue to bite him until he can come to decision. He can't come to decision about Mr. Farley until he comes to decision about himself. For he and Mr. Farley come from the same State. Both can't be on the Democratic ticket. If Mr. Roosevelt runs for President, Mr. Farley can't run for Vice President, and vice-versa. If Mr. Roosevelt were to make it known, now, that it's okay for Mr. Farley to try for the Vice Presidential nomination, that would be a signal that Mr. Roosevelt himself is not going to try for President. That signal, Mr. Roosevelt is not ready to give.

Was it the question of his religion or of something entirely aside from it that caused all the commotion? See Mark Sullivan's observations today on the Lindley-Roosevelt dispute

In Austria Today

By Emil Lengyel

An Interview With Prince Otto

"AN UNDERGROUND revolt is smoldering in Austria against Germany and not merely against Hitler," Crown Prince Otto of Habsburg, pretendant of the Austrian throne, told me in an interview at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel of New York. "Emperor" and "King" Otto, as he is known to his followers, is in America to "study Federal institutions." He had tea with President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House a few days ago. Yesterday he spoke off the record at a National Press Club luncheon.

"How do we keep in touch with Austrian public opinion? Twice a day we broadcast Austrian news through the French official radio system. In addition to these 15-minute programs, we have 2½-hour programs every day over a secret station somewhere in France. We keep the whereabouts of this station a secret, because we do not want to call to it the German fliers' attention."

"Since the day we started these programs," the crown prince continued, "we have been flooded with letters from all over Austria. They are smuggled into Switzerland, Holland, Hungary and Yugoslavia—from there forwarded to us in France. We are also in touch with Austrian underground organizations.

"We know from all these sources that the Austrians are opposed not merely to Hitler but to all Germany. To them it would make no difference if the Fuehrer were replaced by the Kaiser or a military dictator. They want to be citizens of a free, independent Austria.

"AT FIRST the Reich sent Austrian troops to the front, but they deserted promptly. Now Austrian troops are kept in the interior of the old Reich—Thuringia, for instance. Only a small fraction of Austrians are conscripted for service. Vienna is the headquarters of the Fifth Army Corps, which is supposedly Austrian. In reality it is Prussian. The Nazis have set up regiments named after Austrian cities: Innsbruck, Graz and others. They are manned predominantly by soldiers of the old Reich—Bavarians and Thuringians."

"The Austrians are completing their underground cadres of revolution," the crown prince continued. "This revolution, however, will not break out just now. It would be suicide to revolt against a government as strong as Hitler's is today. All political rulers have their ups and downs, and Austria is awaiting a more auspicious moment. Last December Hitler had one of his weaker moments. People are afraid of the winter and hunger. The German police were less brutal and public officials were more human—sure signs of weakness in a dictatorship. Even then the Nazis were not weak enough for our followers to risk an outbreak. The worst of the winter is over and the Reich expects great events to break. This is not the time to start a revolution. But if Hitler is beaten in the field . . .

"Sooner or later he will plunge Germany into a disastrous adventure. Hitler is a voracious reader of Napoleonic literature, and he believes he is at least as good as Napoleon was. Usually he makes his general staff prepare several plans of military operation—a dozen, let us say. Then he retires into his 'eagle's nest' in the Bavarian mountains and is lost to the world for weeks. Suddenly he reappears and issues orders that one of the plans should be executed, sometimes with modifications. The plans of the Polish campaign were brilliant, but Hitler's 'hunch' may not always work. Austria is waiting for a failure."

WILL the Allies fight for Austria's independence, as they say they are fighting for the independence of Czecho-Slovakia and Poland? The answer of the crown prince was prompt.

"President Lebrun of France specifically stated in his message to the Belgian King last November that his country demanded the independence of Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland. We hope that Austria's liberation will be the war aim of Great Britain as well. Several members of the cabinet are most sympathetic to our cause."

I asked the crown prince about the chances of warlike complications in the Danube Valley. Will Germany swallow Hungary, as she has done with her three neighbors?

"The Hungarian government is playing its cards very skillfully," he answered. "As a matter of fact, it is playing a much better game than the German republican and Austrian governments did. It is suppressing the local Nazis, which neither the Bruening cabinet of the Reich, nor the Schuschnigg government of Austria dared to do. It has introduced a fairly mild set of anti-Semitic laws to keep the Germans quiet. It is playing off one dictator against the other. Just the same, it is playing with fire because it does not help the Hungarian peasants. They will turn to the Nazis if they do not get what they want. Vast estates are choking them to death. Even worse than the large estates are the entailed property, which cannot be sold under any circumstances. A large number of the Hungarian peasants are on the bare subsistance level, and their government should give them land. That is the way to keep the Nazis away from them."

THE FUTURE government of Austria, in which the crown prince is particularly interested just now, must be democratic and parliamentarian. "I am in touch with the Socialists," he continued, "and the Christian-Socialists. I have the cooperation of the former 'Heimwehr,' 'Home Guards' and the 'Landbund,' peasant league. Ours must be a social-minded government of the people."

"The 50,000,000 inhabitants of the Danube Valley can live only," the crown prince said, if all the countries in it can agree to cooperate. For 650 years most of their ancestors lived under Habsburg rule, and they lived better than they do now. Disunity would open the door to Stalin and Hitler. The people of the Danube Valley know that their livelihood—their very life—is linked to this solution. I have come to the United States to see your Federal Government in operation."

The crown prince revealed in this interview the steps he had taken to help Austria retain her independence. He wrote to Chancellor Schuschnigg in February, 1938, calling his attention to the imminent danger of German occupation. He was not anxious to serve Austria as her Emperor, he wrote in that letter. He was ready to accept the republic and serve as prime minister under the authority of the President.

"The only way to save Austria's independence," he wrote, "is to fight for it. Great Britain and France will fight for us if they see us seize arms for our defense."

Chancellor Schuschnigg was of a different view. He said that Austria could not afford to fight unless it was sure of English and French support. Mussolini was too busy with other problems. The war in Ethiopia had just ended, and he was engaged in Spain. He was disgusted with the French and English because of their sanctions policy and did not want to pick any chestnuts for them out of the fire. And he did not like Chancellor Schuschnigg. Hitler took Austria two years ago.

Interned Graf Spee Sailors Transferred To Interior

Copyright by New York Times

BUENOS AIRES, March 20.—The Argentine government has begun internment of the scuttled Admiral Graf See's sailors in provinces far from Buenos Aires. A group of 100 dressed in civilian clothes and accompanied by police representatives and two interpreters departed for Cordoba province today. Another 100 were sent to Mendoza province on Monday.

Similar groups will be sent to other provinces as rapidly as Argentine navy tailors complete their civilian outfits. The men are provided with an identification document which enables them to draw three pesos (approximately 95 cents) daily from the nearest postoffice until they find employment. It is expected they will have little difficulty in finding employment among the large number of Germans in the interior and that they will eventually be absorbed into the national life.

The men being interned in interior points are warrant officers and sailors.

Our Unpopularity In Argentina

A German Immigrant To That Country Analyzes It

By Fritz Schnabel.

Buenos Aires.

IN NOVEMBER, 1939, representatives of the United States' Government arrived in Buenos Aires for the final discussions of a commercial treaty. At the beginning of January the Argentine Foreign Minister as well as the United States' Government published statements indicating the failure of these negotiations.

Either this conference was badly prepared or, and this is the Argentine view, the United States' delegates had no intention of coming to an agreement. It is alleged that Argentina has offered more and more but that the United States' delegates conceded less and less. People here think that the American President was hampered by the course of the inner political events in his country and was not able, in view of the approaching elections, to interfere in favor of a satisfactory solution.

BOTH GOVERNMENTS have emphasized that the negotiations were broken off without ill feeling on either side, but nevertheless, many Argentinians continue to believe that the United States does not understand Argentina and her problems.

Argentina's policy has always been to increase her agrarian exports in order to be able to pay for her imports of industrial goods, external debts and interest. If the Americans say that they are discriminated against in the Argentine market and that they want the same treatment as, say, the English, then Argentina replies that discrimination does not exist. The exports to the United States are much below the exports to England, but this is the consequence of the American trade policy and not of Argentina's will.

The Argentinians prove easily that the balance of payments between the two countries is heavily against them and that they cannot afford to pay the differences in gold. If the Americans point out that there always was such a deficit in the bilateral balance of payments but that the difference has been paid and ought to be paid by multilateral trade, then the Argentinians explain that much against their liking, conditions of world trade have changed. Multilateral trade unfortunately has gone to the dogs; they are forced to adapt themselves to new world conditions and, therefore, they must insist on the principle of buying from those to whom they sell

These are questions partly of statistics, partly of principle. But whatever the experts have to say on the matter, it seems pretty clear that a compromise is the only solution. Argentina made a generous move toward compromise when she offered to leave out of the negotiations the delicate problem of her meat exports. But why, Argentine asks, cannot the Americans make satisfactory concessions regarding Argentina's other agrarian products? Such concessions would scarcely do harm to the American farmers but would, owing to the cheapness and the quality of Argentine products, be of benefit to the economic life of the United States as a whole.

THERE IS another point of friction between the two nations, perhaps less important than the first, but one which cannot be overlooked. It's Argentina's political situation and ambition.

Argentina's foreign policy is dominated by the wish to preserve her complete diplomatic independence and to regulate her relations with other countries strictly according to her own judgment. She does not consider herself exclusively an American power but an international one. She has her special and intimate relations to Great Britain, friendly relations to France and to other European powers and her active policy in the League of Nations concerning Russia proves that even in questions where she is not vitally interested, she has to say her word and wants to be heard.

As to the American continent, obviously Argentina is and wants to remain the dominant state in the South. She therefore tends to check any predominant influence of the United States in Latin America. She does not want a change of the present political and military balance of power in the southern sphere. When in 1938 Brazil was willing to accept from the United States warships as a loan, Argentina's reaction was significant. And if there is a tendency to form under the leadership of the United States a more or less unified bloc of the South American states, then Argentine will think twice whether and how far she will participate.

President Roosevelt and his Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull are very popular here. Their visits to this country and their endeavors to have their good neighbor policy followed by actions are highly appreciated. But there is still an undercurrent of suspicion which makes the political and economical cooperation between the two countries sometimes difficult.

THERE IS another resentment towards the United States and the Americans, the roots of which go far back. And this brings me to the psychological problem which, in my opinion, should not be underestimated. Why are the Americans so unpopular in Argentina?

But have I, as a German and voluntary immigrant to this country, the right to state publicly what many sincere Argentines and Americans have told me? Can I, as a Protestant, understand a Catholic country?

For 12 years, I have been a League of Nations' official (chief of printing and publications' department) and whatever the shortcomings of the Genevese institution it was an excellent training school for international cooperation. Convinced that better relations between Argentina and the United States would be of great mutual benefit, I dare to write on this delicate subject.

Argentina's failures have often been discussed in the United States. But is only Argentina to blame? Is there not a lack of understanding in the States? Representative Argentinians, as well as Americans with great experience in Argentina, agree that the United States has hitherto failed to make their country, their culture, their political aims sufficiently known here.

There is no great European power that does not try to acquaint the Argentine with its culture, science and economic life. The United States has made a move in one or another direction but no concentrated effort is visible. Exchange of professors and students, traveling facilities for the Argentine businessmen, scientists, journalists, students, do they exist? Perhaps, but only a few initiated know about them and they rightly say what has been done hitherto is not sufficient.

In Buenos Aires are at least four good French bookshops, eight German and only two dealing with English and American literature. Many American standard books are not available here. Some farsighted United States' publishers initiated last year an American book exhibition in Buenos Aires. The American Embassy gave every possible help. Visitors to the exhibition showed the great interest in American literature, but owing to lack of interest of some leading American publishers, many representative books were missing. Thus, the exhibition was not a fair representation of American culture.

Very wisely the English trade commissioners suggest sending to Argentina only people knowing Spanish. United States' representatives, Government's officials or businessmen often arrive here on important missions, not knowing the language. Trained interpreters are scarce and even the best interpretation cannot replace a frank heart-to-heart talk.

WHY IS the English businessman more successful over here than his North American colleague? The English came about a century ago as pioneers to this country and have done much to develop it. They have always taken a long view with regard to their investments, adapting themselves to the special economic and psychological conditions of this country.

The Englishman comes to Argentina not as if going to a backward colony. He tries to understand Argentina, he wants to make his business relations a most friendly and lasting affair. Some of the United States' businessmen, however, were too eager to snatch a quick profit and in a crisis (inevitable in this country) the Englishman usually shows understanding and patience. Many Americans, however, got frightened and wanted to clear out immediately, panic stricken. Thus, the Englishman neither loses money nor sympathy, while many Americans have lost both.

PRESIDENT ORTIZ

Why are his countrymen so resentful of the United States?

It is no secret that due to the lack of experience many American firms have lost heavily here. They not only paid too high a price for whatever they had bought up, well-founded complaints of the Argentina customers prove that they also showed little understanding of their customer's mentality.

WHEN THE American Government increased the customs duties on Argentine meat it was a heavy blow to the Argentine agrarian interests. But when the United States introduced the so-called "sanitary regulations," it was a personal offense to every—literally every—Argentinian. If there is anything these people are proud of it is, rightly, their meat production and these regulations not only were believed to be a patent piece of hypocrisy but a hit in the face no Argentinian has yet forgotten.

Well-meaning American visitors arrive here and if they would know the result of their public or private speeches, they would get a shock. It is not a pleasure for the Argentinians to read that a representative American had said: "We take back the idea that Argentina is not so bad." Nor is it a step closer to cooperation between the two nations if at a public luncheon a director of an important American publishing firm, after misinterpreting some statistics, speaks of the "advisability of terminating the policy of patience," threatening Argentina with the "imposition of penalty tariffs."

EVERYBODY coming to this country has to learn patience. The climate is one reason for it. But the American visitor usually arrives here in a hurry, travels in a hurry and, I am afraid, judges too hurriedly. Many farsighted Americans agree with me that Argentina offers good opportunities for the American businessman. But Argentina is a young nation and I am convinced the thoroughly trained, unbiased young Americans will succeed where the older generation failed.

The war binds already North and South America closer together. Necessity, combined with good will on both sides might help to achieve a better cooperation which—there can be no doubt— is in the interest of both countries.

Here Are the Proper Spring Shoes for New Hats, Casual Felts for Oxfords, Witty Hats for Wedges

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

Heels and heads are the two most important features of this year's Easter parade. In between lies a suit, coat or dress that is conspicuous by its quiet simplicity.

Designers of both economy and luxury clothes have at last hit upon nice wearable outfits with no extreme innovations, which leaves more space for concentration of news in footnotes and headlines. Behind the Easter bonnets themselves lurks excitement, as witness Sally Victor's Flemish sailors which have sophisticated head fitting crowns perched under innocent turned up brims. Miss Victor's nuns coifs represent picturesque headline appeal, too, as do spring's bumpers, postilions and sharply pitched shovel brims.

Take the three chapeaux above, for example. Three vastly different types are shown—first the slightly silly but wholly personal little felt by that mad hatter, Elizabeth Hawes. She puts a pigtail of braided grosgrain on the back of the Brewster felt, left, above. Centered is John Frederic's elegant afternoon hat of glistening straw braid, its twisted circles resembling doughnuts, the veil softening the culinary influence, however. At right is the casual classic for the conservative, a beautifully tailored Fenwick felt of Erin green with a squared-off crown, suede belting and feathered edge.

Each hat does something for the shoes with which it is teamed here. The wedges at left have occasioned more footnote comment than any other single shoe of the season—so logically enough they are matched off with the gay young Hawes "attention-getting device." Wedges appear now in sports, daytime and evening versions in heights from one to three inches. The wedges pictured come from a local shop, as do the other shoes, and are in Blue Jacket blue, with white and blue patent inlay.

The sleek, well-bred afternoon shoe, in black gabardine and patent, is in a graceful step-in style, urbane enough for the 'doughnut hat." The walking oxfords at right are as traditional and comforting in their lastless chic as the felt above them. They are of milk chocolate colored lizard calf with military Cuban heels.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—We are all delighted that one of our best friends, Billie Burke, is now a grandmother. Her daughter, Patricia Ziegfeld, is the mother of a seven-pound daughter. Patsy, to my eyes, is the image of her distinguished father, the great founder of the "Follies," and has little of the fragile beauty of Miss Burke when she was a young and beautiful leading woman for John Drew 30 years ago. However, this is strictly a good wish to young Patsy, the wife of William Stephenson, the New York dance instructor who taught Billie's daughter her first steps on the floor.

The newest glamour girl among the authors is Osa Johnson, widow of the famous explorer, who jointly made a series of African explorations and caught them both on film. Osa, looking pretty as two pictures, has been in town the last few days preparing for a new trip to middle Africa, and making an occasional speech to groups of other authors. Peering intently at the attractive and even snappy Osa, I have a serious hunch that she will not be a widow for long. This, I admit, is merely a guess. But she certainly looks lovely and alluring.

The biggest hit in Florida this winter has been scored by the social Rosalind Russell, who has taken a brief vacation from the films and has spent the time in Palm Beach with her sister. In no way was Roz's visit to the fancy resort a publicity stunt. She just got a bit of time off from her duties in the jute mills of Hollywood, and decided to spend it on the Gold Coast of Florida.

Abdominal Exercises Big Aid to Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

TAKING your weight off your feet when you exercise is an excellent rule for the very heavy person.

If your weight is far in excess of normal, you cannot go in for strenuous exercises of any kind. Rope jumping, back-bending movements, and forward bending to touch fingers to toes are not for you!

Nevertheless, you cannot get by without any exercise. And you particularly need exercises to tone the all-important abdominal muscles. That front group of muscles is the weakest spot in the entire waistline. Certainly they are weak if fat has accumulated, for fat and muscle cannot occupy the same space at the same time.

Tightening Needed

Anyone who is carrying a considerable amount of excess weight usually carries a good percentage of it in this area. As the fat is removed, it is of the utmost importance that these muscles be strengthened. Otherwise the organs which have been partially supportd by fat will tend to sag.

But the exercises for this purpose need not be strenuous. The following movements are simple but easy enough for anyone to do:

POSITION: Lying flat on the back, knees flexed, soles of feet flat on the floor.

MOVEMENT: The exercise is simply to pull up and in, starting with the lower abdominal muscles and continuing the upward pull of the muscles until the small of the back is pressed flat against the floor. Hold, then slowly release. Repeat 10 times.

Book Put on Abdomen

Now try the same thing, but this time with a fairly heavy book placed on the abdomen. The movement is to raise the book by pushing up with the abdominal muscles, and lower it by pulling up and in with the muscles. Perform the exercise slowly. Repeat six times; rest, then repeat another six times. That's enough for a starter. Later you can perform this exercises as many as 40 times, resting between each 10.

From the same position, lying on back with knees flexed, bring one knee up to the chest, easily at first and then a bit more forcefully until one hip is raised slightly off the floor. Start with five counts, alternating knees at the end of the five counts. Later increase to 20 counts.

Exercises Not Strenuous

Now, roll over on the side, and from this position bring one knee up toward the chest. Repeat six counts, change sides and bring the other knee to chest.

All the above exercises are effective without being strenuous. They will help to tone the muscles of the abdominal wall and to improve health and figure. If there is any question as to whether or not you should exercise, however, ask your doctor to approve these exercises before you attempt them.

Today's Health Talk

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

The name "mastoid disease" is derived from the bone which you can feel behind your ear. The mastoid bone or, more properly, the mastoid process of the temporal bone, is a smoothly spherical protuberance. It is not solid, but hollow, honeycombed with cavities which are lined with mucous membrane and are connected with the cavity of the middle ear. This anatomical connection is what causes the mastoid to become inflamed when there is infection of the middle ear. Pus (matter) may form.

Infection of this sort involves children more than twice as often as adults.

How can you tell when the mastoid is affected? There is no sign that is distinctive, but there are a number of signs which indicate that something is wrong. Swelling and tenderness behind the ear are generally present. Pains on one side of the head are an early symptom. Fever is always present.

Taken in connection with a discharge from the ear, swelling and pains in the mastoid region are good causes for intelligent anxiety.

The danger of mastoiditis is not the formation of pus alone, but the extension of the infection to the brain or meninges. Therefore, the ear surgeon wants to evacuate the pus at the earliest possible time. He must be cruel to be kind. The mother or father of the sick baby is not always able to understand this, but what the doctor does is the best sort of preventive surgery.

She—Pour face is so familiar, Mr. Periwinkle. I must have met you before.

He—We—ll I don't get around a great deal—especially since we've moved out to Rosebud. Now my wife——

She—Maybe I've seen your photograph in the paper. Don't you sing . . . or act . . . or something?

He—No. I'm with Grubb and Stake, cement.

She—I suppose it's just that I felt I knew you. Don't people sometimes strike you that way?

He—We—ll no, I can't say that they do. Though I seldom forget a face.

She—You look as if you spent a great deal of time outdoors, Mr. Periwinkle. Do you golf?

He—No! I get all my exercise right in my own yard.

She—How exciting!

He—Yes! Can you guess how many dandelions I dug up last summer?

She—I haven't the slightest idea.

He—Seven hundred fifty-seven thousand three hundred and forty-two!

She—No!

He—Yes! I have it right here in my notebook—oh, I forgot. It's in my other suit.

She—Don't you adore the country?

He—Oh, yes. Of course, in winter the gas bills are a little stiff.

She—You know, I think that something definitely happens to people when they get too far away from the soil.

He—Now, for awhile my gas was running about 4,000 feet a day.

She—I always feel that it expands one just to be able to look at the horizon.

He—Do you know how much my gas cost during that cold spell? . . . $2 a day!

She—It must have been a veritable fairyland during the snow.

He—Yes. You know, another year I think I'll burn fuel oil.

She—Mr. Periwinkle, I wish you'd tell me what's going to happen in Europe?

He—Well, of course—with this man Hitler—almost 'anything's likely to happen.

She—Doesn't this war depress you terribly?

He—Oh, yes. Of course I've been pretty busy with my taxes lately.

He—Yes. Don't you think life is simply getting to complex?

He—Yes. Do you know that in my reassessment they trebled the value of my property?

She—I suppose the whole thing is, our lives are too crowded with nonessentials.

He—Yes. Everybody's being taxed to death. The power to tax is the power to destroy!

She—But, of course, you do enjoy the vistas out there?

He—Oh yes. Our whole taxpayers' league in Rosebud is up in arms.

She—Of course, that's one thing about an apartment——

He—Say, I'd as soon be dead as live again in an apartment.

She—Don't you think that perhaps we're all getting too soft?

He—Yes. And another thing that ran costs up on me this year was that I had to put on storm windows.

She—Mr. Periwinkle, I'd like to ask you the question I just asked Mr. Smirker. What do you first notice when you look at a woman?

He—What? . . . Oh, we—ll I don't know . . .

She—I'm always interested in learning what men think of women.

He—Well, of course, I'm so busy . . . Another thing, I've been putting in my seed beds.

She—No!

He—Yes! I've started my tomatoes . . . and my lettuce . . . and my cabbages . . .

She—Don't you think it really does something to people to watch things grow?

He—Yes. I wish you could have seen my lima beans last year.

She—You sound so very creative!

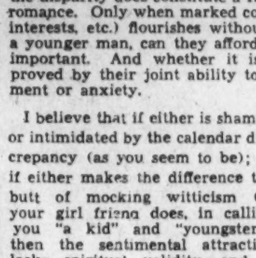
He—And I had three roasting ears!

She—How exciting!

He—yes, came up wild . . . But I'm really going to have a garden this year.

She—How nice! Speaking of gardens, aren't those roses in the centerpiece exquisite? You know roses do something——

He—You know what I did last week? I put in all my potatoes!



Mary Haworth's Mail

Six Years Younger Than Girl He Loves, Boy Wonders Whether to Tell His Age or Ignore the Disparity

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young man 19 years of age, deeply in love with a girl who is 25. She knows I am younger than she, but she doesn't know how much younger, because when she mentions age I change the subject, as I am very sensitive about the difference in our ages. She is very considerate of me and tells me that she loves me, but she acts quite unconcerned at times. I have told her that I have nothing to offer her except my love and she says she is satisfied with that. Also, she doesn't let me spend anything on her, so I feel that she does really love me.

Now, these are my questions: Should I tell her my real age? Do you think I am attaching too much importance to the age angle? Or do you think she is too old for me, even if she were willing to accept the difference in our ages? When she calls me "a kid," or youngster"—as she sometimes does—what should I say? Please consider this problem seriously, as I believe that in doing so, you will be helping many fellows my age who are worrying about much the same thing. V. C.

DEAR V. C.: Since both of you are, apparently, acutely conscious of the ((shall we say, wrong-sided?) difference in your ages, obviously the disparity does constitute a rather serious handicap to your tentative romance. Only when marked congeniality (i. e., kinship of spirit, tastes, interests, etc.) flourishes without effort between an older woman and a younger man, can they afford to assume that the "age angle" is unimportant. And whether it is unimportant, fundamentally, is best proved by their joint ability to accept the figures without embarrassment or anxiety.

I believe that if either is shamed or intimidated by the calendar discrepancy (as you seem to be); or if either makes the difference the butt of mocking witticism (as your girl friend does, in calling you "a kid" and "youngster") then the sentimental attraction lacks spiritual validity, and is primarily sensual and superficial. Nearly everyone, nowadays, knows married couples where the wife is the older; and when such marriages are happy (as they often are) husband and wife seem (and no doubt have grown to be) genuinely forgetful of the latter's seniority. And the same should be true of sweethearts, who sincerely believe they were "meant for each other," despite an ill-timed age difference.

Therefore, my advice to you is to put your romance to the test of Truth. Since the "age angle" bothers you—making you feel an unseemly pretender to the girl's hand—the only way of learning how you rate with her, as a masculine personality, is to tell her in downright manner that you are six years her junior, but a seriously intended suitor, even so. The ensuing discussion will give you a clear insight into her reactions to the unalterable facts; and more importantly, will set you free of false pretenses, so that you can "be yourself" with her, and in that way discover what, if anything, you two have in common on the mental plane. M. H.

'Skinny' Girl Asks How to Gain Weight

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 15 years of age. You hear a lot about fat teen-age girls, but very little about the skinny ones. My problem is this—How can I put on about 10 pounds? Sincerely, M. W. K.

Consult Diagnostician; Keep Regular Hours

DEAR M. W. K.: It would be rank presumption for anyone other than a medical diagnostician to try to tell you how to "put on 10 pounds." "Skinny" persons, even as "fat" ones need a thorough physical check-up for the purpose of determining whether their eating habits or their digestive apparatus is at fault. Have you ever undergone that unique performance known as "taking a metabolism test?"

It seems that a "metabolism test" is an indispensable diagnostic aid in locating the causes of underweight or overweight; since it demonstrates the efficiency, or inefficiency, with which the body consumes the fuel (or foods) supplied. "Skinny" persons, very often, are hyperthyroid individuals, who need glandular medication to promote healthful digestive functioning.

However, I am reminded of the case of one girl (now a young matron, incidentally), who has been a bantamweight all her life, with the exception of two years (between the ages of 13 and 15), which she spent in a convent boarding school—during which interlude she became an apple-cheeked "butter ball." She was as mystified as her family was pleased by the transformation. And she and they could only attribute it to her placid routine of inflexibly regular hours, for meals, recreation, study and sleep. So maybe there's a moral for you in her short-lived experience as a plump young maiden.

But the best advice I can give you—that implied above—is to take your problem to a good diagnostician. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Soda for Oven

To keep the oven clean, wash it frequently with hot soda water—a tablespoon of soda to a quart of water. After using the oven, leave the door open until it has dried out. This helps avoid rust and stale odors. Always clean up foods that run over as quickly as possible.

Older Woman Needs Delicate Make-up Shades

Here's a make-up chart created especially for the older woman's guide in selecting the proper shades of cosmetics:

Pale sallow skins, blue, gray or green eyes should choose peach, pinkish or rachel tone face powder; rather light blush rose rouge (avoid a dark, purplish color); light eyebrows should be darkened with brown eyebrow pencil. For evening, touch pale lashes with brown or blue mascara.

Pale sallow skin, brown or black eyes: Select peach or pinkish rachel toned powder, rather light blush rose rouge (avoid a dark, purplish color) and with brown costumes, use a light coral or orange red rouge; black mascara and eyebrow pencil.

Decidedly sallow, rather dark skin, eyes of any color: Use a rather dark powder with enough red in it to give a healthy glow, clear red or orange red rouge and lipstick. For light eyes, use brown mascara and eyebrow pencil and for dark eyes, use black.

Ruddy complexion, rather fair, blue gray or green eyes: Choose a light rachel with pink in it called natural but beware of the bright baby pink-shades. Sometimes a yellowish peach shade of powder is good. Use no rouge and apply rose lipstick, brown mascara and eyebrow pencil.

Dark ruddy complexion, brown or black eyes: Use pinkish tan powder, leave off rouge, apply a medium-dark red lipstick, black mascara and eyebrow pencil.

'Escape' Tones In Nail Polish For Spring

Colors give you the feeling of "escaping from it all" without the chore of packing up your trunks. If you've a touch of spring fever, find yourself a bright, glowing shade. Use it in your costume and try it on your nails. The idea is so sound psychologically that stylists and cosmeticians are building up an entire series of products on that theory.

Three new shades of nail polish termed "escape tones" have been introduced recently as a stimulant for old clothes and wandering feet that are chained to the domocile. "Spring Fever," a blue-flame, red clear, is a panacea for the yearning for hills that can't be reached. It is best when worn with the new hard blues, yellows and pinks that predominate in many costumes.

"Whimsy," an innuendo of a color, faint and delicate, is an excellent polish for the times when you are too busy to change your nail lacquer, for its goes well with everything. "Hot Pink," a sun-warmed watermelon shade, is a hand pick-up for the beginning of your sun tan.

Sunday Night Supper With Guests Behind the Scenes

EASTER week-end usually brings guests to most households. Although there may be elaborate Easter breakfasts and dinners too, yet when Sunday night rolls around food is usually on the schedule. Maids are usually not in, but guests are very willing to assist in any culinary operations. If the kitchen is the base of preparations, the guests should be allowed behind the scenes. Recently it has been very popular to divide guests in groups, giving each a recipe and certain ingredients, and starting a contest to see which makes the better job with the furnished materials. The following menu is one that can have several to help in assembling the supper. Recipes for the cocktail and Chicken a la King are also given.

Supper Menu

Ronrico Cocktails

Chicken a la King — Potato Salad

Lettuce Sandwiches

Toasting Bread — Butter

Relishes — Nuts — Cheese

Chocolate Layer Cake

Coffee

Ronrico Cocktail—To 1½ ounces of Ronrico Rum add 1 spoon sugar and 1½ ounces limejuice. Add cracked ice and shake well.

Chicken a la King—Cut into dice 1 cup cooked chicken, ½ cup sauted mushrooms and ¼ cup canned pimiento. Melt 3 tablespoons chicken fat or other shortening and stir in and blend well 3 tablespoons flour. Add slowly, 1½ cups chicken stock or cream. When the sauce is smooth and boiling, add the chicken, mushrooms and pimiento. Reduce heat and add 1 egg yolk. Stir and permit this to thicken slightly. Add 1 tablespoon sherry. Serve at once. To reheat place the chicken in a saucepan over boiling water.

Twin Authors Guests At Tea-Time Gathering

Helen and Ruth Hoffman, Who Wrote 'We Married an Englishman,' Honored By Mrs. Moran and Mrs. Geaslin

By Hope Ridings Miller

TWIN AUTHORS AS HONOR GUESTS, a couple of popular hostesses, and two recent books up for discussion made a tea-time gathering at the Mayflower yesterday afternoon something to write home about. Mrs. Edward C. Moran, jr., and Mrs. Bon Geaslin gathered in a few friends to meet Helen and Ruth Hoffman, twins who spent the past two days in Washington. They came here especially to autograph their latest book, "Our Arabian Nights," at a local store.

Mrs. Geaslin and Mrs. Moran met Miss Helen Hoffman a few seasons ago when all three were on a Mediterranean cruise. Miss Hoffman later went to Iraq to join her sister and the latter's husband in Baghdad. The Hoffman girls, who hailed originally from Minnesota, have spent much time in New York, where Miss Helen Hoffman still makes her home. Her sister Ruth married an Englishman a few years ago and has lived in Baghdad most of the time since.

The first book written by the Hoffmans was the best seller, "We Married an Englishman." Miss Helen Hoffman yesterday made it clear that the "we" in the title is "purely editorial."

The story of how the two American girls went abroad and met the man whom one was to marry is a fascinating one. At that time they were in Europe on a sketching tour and had gone down to Egypt for some local color. The Englishman in question was there on business (he is a very successful engineer). The romance flowered in Cairo and the marriage took place shortly afterward.

THE HOFFMAN TWINS returned to America the past November, coming over with a boatload of refugees. The sisters frote the final 30,000 words of their latest book en route and had planned a third book by the time they reached New York. Scheduled to be printed in June, it will be a book for children, based on the life of a Bedouin boy.

Attractive, scintillating and smartly dressed, the two arrived at yesterday's party trimly attired in dark blue tailored suits, set off with frilly lace blouses and breton sailors. Both confessed that they rarely dress alike, "only when we are on parade as twin authors," said Helen Hoffman.

OTHER PARTIES on the calendar included two ladies' luncheons. Mrs. William Bankhead, wife of the Speaker of the House, was guest of honor at a small luncheon given by Mrs. Lister Hill, wife of Senator Hill. Besides the fact that both hostess and guest of honor are from Alabama, they have something else in common—an interest in art. Mrs. Bankhead is a sculptress and Mrs. Hill says modestly that she "dables in painting."

The party was held in Mrs. Hill's apartment on Massachusetts avenue. Easter lilies decorated the table, and at each guest's plate was an old-fashioned nosegay of spring flowers.

Gathered to meet Mrs. Bankhead were Mrs. Hugo Black and Mrs. William O. Douglas, wives of Supreme Court Justices; Mrs. William Smathers and Mrs. Robert LaFollette from the Senate circle; Mme. Emanuel Lombard, of the French Embassy, and Lady Chalkley, of the British; Mrs. Patrick Hurley and Mrs. Carroll Morgan.

MRS. HENRY A. WALLACE, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, was the ranking guest at the luncheon given by Mrs. Raymond Clapper, whose husband is the well known newspaper correspondent. The party was held at her home in Chevy Chase, and the guest of honor was Mrs. Bulkley Griffin.

The hostess denied there was any political significance in the little pottery donkey in the middle of the table, though most of her guests were Democrats. The animal drew behind him a cart filled with spring flowers.

Others present were Mrs. D. Worth Clark, wife of Senator Clark; Mrs. Henry F. Grady, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State; Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mrs. J. Fred Essary and Mrs. Irene Caldwell.

Wife of Envoy From Australia Arrives in D. C.

Mrs. Casey's First Day Here a Busy One; Inspects Legation

Yesterday was indeed busy for Mrs. Richard G. Casey, wife of the new Australian Minister, who arrived from the West Coast by plane in the morning. Aside from getting settled in her Shoreham apartment Mrs. Casey had to look over the legation, which has just been leased. The house is at 3117 Woodland drive.

The Casey's choice is a happy one, for the red brick colonial home, fronted by large white pillars, is surrounded by grounds about a block long. Large trees dot the lawn which is enclosed by a brick wall. The interior of the house will be excellent for entertaining as the rooms are large, the drawing room particularly so. As yet no arrangements for the situation of the chancery have been made. At the moment the offices are at 1811 Twenty-fourth street. The Caseys will remain at the Shoreham until they occupy the house the first of next month. The house formerly was the home of Col. and Mrs. George S. Patton, jr.

Bound to be delighted with the spacious grounds are the two Casey youngsters, Jane, aged 11, and Donn, 8, who arrived with their mother yesterday. Mr. Casey who preceded his wife by several weeks, flew out to the coast to meet her when she arrived and escorted her here.

Looking as fresh as a daisy, petite blonde Mrs. Casey received a barrage of photographers yesterday afternoon in her apartment at the Shoreham. She was neatly turned out in a black frock and matching hat trimmed in bright blue velvet.

Pan American Concert Monday

Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union, has issued invitations for a concert at the Union at 5 p. m. Monday.

Guest artists will include two internationally known Panamanian stars, Alfredo de St. Malo, violinist, and Carmen de Obarrio, pianist. Senor de St. Malo is the leading violinist of Latin-America and has toured all Europe and the United States. He attended the Paris Conservatory of Music on a scholarship. He will play on his rare Guarnerius violin, which was made in Italy in 1737.

Senorita de Obarrio, who is the only woman pianist ever to appear as guest soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra of Mexico, is well known on the West Coast. She is married to an American and they make their home in San Francisco.

Lady Broderick Is Guest of Honor At Luncheon Given by Mrs. Harold Sims

MRS. HAROLD SIMS gave a very pleasant luncheon Tuesday in honor of Lady Broderick, whose late husband, Sir John Broderick, was at one time Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy here. The Brodericks went from Washington to Cuba, where Sir John served as British Minister, and later to Argentina, where he was Ambassador.

The luncheon table was bright with delicate mauve and yellow iris, which reminded us all of the sins we have committed toward our gardens, mostly sins of omission. "Chick" MacCracken said that her garden "looks just like the Sahara Desert," and that she was going off immediately after luncheon to buy some shrubs for it.

Mrs. Edgar Prochnik, all in neat navy blue, was discussing with Lady Broderick the varied interests in the life of the mother of a debutante. Both ladies have first-hand information about this.

MME. MUNTHE DE MORGENSTIERNE, wife of the Norwegian Minister, looked pretty and spring-like in pale pink from hat to hem, and Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, with her lovely Cuban sun-tan, was a subject for the envy of Mrs. Pearsons Rust, who is a great golfer and loves the sun.

Mrs. Hare Lippincott, who puts in so much good work for the Red Cross, and Mrs. Mary Swiggart, who is expert at making bandages and teaches that art to the British ladies working at Friendship, were enjoying a moment of relaxation at Mitzi's luncheon. Mitzi herself never looked fresher, in spite of long hours of Red Cross work, and was smart in black accented by a wide bracelet and matching clip of jeweled flowers set in gold.

ONE OF THE LOVELIEST ladies in Washington is Mrs. Hallett Johnson, who arrived recently to spend the winter here, regretfully leaving her husband in Sweden, where he is United States Consul General. Hallett Johnson has been serving his country abroad for 20 years, notably in Spain during the recent war.

Mrs. Johnson has had an apartment at the Anchorage for the winter and will have her children there for their spring vacation, beginning the end of the week. Her elder daughter, Katherine, came out last year in Sweden where she went to court and attended the balls. Last summer she made her American debut at a dance at Bar Harbor, and is now looking forward to meeting some of her mother's Washington friends. The second of the two pretty sisters, Priscilla, soon will be a debutante, and their brother, Hallett, jr., is in school at St. Mark's.

THE MANY warm friends of Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor will be glad to learn that she is recovering from a recent operation which she underwent in Baltimore, and that she will be able to receive visitors before long. Wayne Taylor is, of course, still in Europe, where by all reports he is doing really noble work for the Red Cross.

COMMANDER ANTHONY COLEBY of the British Embassy has returned from a skiing holiday in Canada. The holiday was cut short by one of those unpleasant things, a strained knee.

SOMEONE TOLD ME a rather wistful little story of two middle-aged ladies who were busily rolling bandages for the Red Cross. One of them said timidly, "They say that French husbands are different from American husbands. You have a French husband. Tell, me, HOW are they different?"

The second lady drew herself up and answered a little stiffly, "I really can't tell you because I've never had but the one husband."

Frances Van Keuren to Spend Easter Week-End in New York

Miss Frances H. Van Keuren, daughter of Rear Admiral Alexander H. Van Keuren, Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair of the Navy, and Mrs. Van Keuren, will leave Washington tomorrow to spend the Easter week-end in New York City. She will be accompanied by her brother, Alexander H. Van Keuren, jr., who will go on to Providence, R. I., for the Easter holidays and will visit Mr. and Mrs. William Amos Powell.

On Tuesday, March 26, Miss Van Keuren, accompanied by Miss Geraldine Rhoads, will sail for Charleston, S. C., where she will spend the azalea season, returning to New York April 3. Miss Rhoads is the managing editor of The Woman, a digest magazine. She and Miss Van Keuren were classmates at Bryn Mawr. Young Mr. Van Keuren will stop off in Philadelphia after the Easter holidays for an extended stay before returning to Washington.

Admiral and Mrs. Van Keuren, who are now living on Twenty-second street in the block where the houses have recently begun to sink and crack due to nearby blasting, are anxiously waiting to move, which they hope will be soon, into their own home at 103 Bradley Lane in Chevy Chase. The Chevy Chase home, which has been leased, will be ready for occupancy in the near future.

Joseph Davies Returns to Capital

Joseph Davies, special assistant to the Secretary of State, has returned to Washington after a vacation in Palm Beach.

Mrs. Davies was hostess at a buffet dinner on Tuesday at Mara-Laco, her Palm Beach villa, in honor of the members of the Yale Glee Club, which gave a concert at the Biltmore there. W. Horton Schoellkopf, jr., of Washington, served as acting manager of the concert.

American Friends of Turkey, Others Fete Turkish Envoy

Going by train yesterday to New York, the Turkish Ambassador, accompanied by Mme. Ertegun, was honored last night at a dinner party given on the starlight roof of the Waldorf Astoria by the directors of those of the American College for Girls at Istanbul. The envoy and those of the American College for Firls at Istanbul. The envoy and Mme. Ertegun will remain in New York until the first of next week when they will return to the Embassy.

Cleveland E. Dodge presided at the dinner and introduced Dr. Walter L. Wright, jr., president of the two colleges in Turkey who has recently come to this country at the request of the Prime Minister of Turkey.

Attending the dinner were many directors of the American Friends of Turkey. Included in this group were Mr. and Mrs. John Finley, Miss Anita McCormick Blaine, Willard V. King, Rayford W. Alley, John Dewey, Frederic M. Thrasher, Hamilton Holt, Stephen P. Duggan, Abram I. Elkus, Asa W. Jennings and William G. Schram. Members of the board of trustees of Robert College are Stephen Baker, Myron C. Taylor, Henry Sloane Coffin, Bayard Schieffelin, John Lyle Harrington, Collins P. Bliss, George W. Perkins, W. Randolph Burgess, Sherlock Hibbs, Frank P. Shepard and Frederick H. Schauffler.

B. K. Wheelers To Go to Coast

Senator and Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, will leave Washington Saturday or Sunday for Los Angeles, to attend the wedding on Wednesday of their son, John L. Wheeler, and Miss Helene Albright.

Miss Marian Wheeler, youngest daughter of Senator and Mrs. Wheeler, will accompany her parents to California. The ceremony will take place in All Saints' Episcopal Church. Miss Albright, daughter of Mrs. Charles C. Albright, of Beverly Hills, Calif., was graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles. Mr. Wheeler, an attorney, was graduated from George Washington University and the Harvard Law School.

The Carl Eggers Give a Luncheon To Visiting Duke

The Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha was guest of honor at a luncheon given yesterday at the Ritz-Carlton in New York by Dr. and Mrs. Carl Eggers and last night was feted at a dinner of the German-American Chamber of Commerce at the Waldorf-Astoria. The duke visited Washington last week to confer with Red Cross officials here.

On Tuesday evening he was guest of honor at a reception and dinner held at the Ritz by Dr. Hans Borchers, German Consul General in New York, and Mrs. Borchers. The guests included representatives of the consular corps in New York and of the New York Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Two D. C. Girls To Visit Chicago

Miss Lillian Hathoway Willett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Jean Willett, and Miss Ellen Knipe, daughter of Mrs. Henry H. Knipe, will leave shortly for a motor trip to Chicago, where they will spend their Easter vacation.

In Chicago, they will visit Miss Willetts' brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Tyler Willett. They also plan to spend some time with Mrs. George Robb Collins, who was a former schoolmate of Miss Willett's at the West Lake School for Girls in Los Angeles.

Since the two girls returned from abroad last fall, Miss Willett has been attending King Smith School. Miss Knipe has been pursuing her studies in sculpture.

Miss Holloway Passing Vacation With Wilsons

Miss Lucy Belle Holloway, daughter of Mrs. Mary Isabel Holloway, of Durham, N. C., is spending the Easter holidays as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Wilson at their home on Baltimore avenue.

Also stopping with Mr. and Mrs. Wilson over the holidays is Miss Louise Collier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Collier, also of Durham.

Presidential Candidate to Take Lessons From Mrs. Roosevelt's Voice Teacher

A PRESIDENTIAL candidate is among the leading political figures to sign up for lessons with Mrs. Elizabeth von Hesse, of New York, Mrs. Roosevelt's voice teacher, who recently opened a part time studio in Washington. You'll have to guess which candidate it is, as Mrs. von Hesse won't divulge names.

The teacher, who initiated the First Lady into such mysteries as "the bursting consonants" (b's and p's) and the "tossing consonants" (d's and t's), stays at the White House on the two evenings a week she spends here. Her studio is at the Lafayette, but Mrs. Roosevelt has placed at her disposal a bedroom at the Executive Mansion, even when she herself is not in town. Last evening was the first time the teacher had caught a glimpse of her most distinguished pupil in three weeks.

TWO NEWS COMMENTATORS and three political speakers are among Mrs. von Hesse's pupils, who also include several file clerks, the heads of a New York advertising agency and most of the personnel of a big Manhattan department store.

Mrs. van Hesse thinks Mrs. Roosevelt "the greatest lady of the ages," though, she hastens to add, "I'm a Republican." She says the President has the best voice of any man in public life; Lowell Thomas is her favorite among the broadcasters.

AFTER SEEING PART of the audience walk out on Mrs. Roosevelt when the First Lady was making a speech one day before she had met Mrs. von Hesse, the latter was so upset that she couldn't eat dinner and furthermore, was unable to sleep that evening. Finally, after four weeks of feeling depressed about Mrs. Roosevelt's voice, she gathered courage and a pen and wrote to her suggesting ways to improve it. By return mail in the Firts Lady's own handwriting came a request for lessons.

Prior to that Mrs. Roosevelt had studied diction, but, as Mrs. von Hesse told her, "Your diction is perfect; what you need is to control your voice." She calls Mrs. Roosevelt "Lady," because, as she explains, "I had always thought of her as Lady Eleanor."

THE PLEASANT, GRAY-HAIRED teacher is a great believer in "the friendly voice," and thinks Mrs. Roosevelt's has that quality. Her conversation bristles with terms like "head resonators" and "diaphragn relaxing." She always is conscious of people's voices, and a disagreeable one, to her, is like "a slap in the face."

Mrs. von Hesse never forgets a voice. It is her custom to talk with taxi drivers to get their views on life, and the other day, as is her habit, she took one from Union Station to her hotel. Though she didn't catch sight of his face, she immediately recognized him as one who had chauffeured her before. Once in a Chicago department store, she heard a woman talking behind her. "It's Mrs. Morgan," she said to herself, and sure enough, it was, though Mrs. von Hesse hadn't seen her for 16 years.

MRS. VON HESSE comes originally from Iowa, but is delighted when the interviewer says one would never know it by her diction. She taught in the South and in Chicago before opening a studio in New York three years ago. She thinks American voices in general are pretty bad—too much monotone and mumbling.

On her way to Washington Miss Gudger, who made her debut last season, will stop at West Point for the Easter hop there.

Her younger sister, Miss Gloria Gudger, arrived yesterday from Miss Baldwin's School, in Bryn Mawr, Pa., and is stopping with Admiral and Mrs. Cheatham.

Guggenheims Are in Nassau

Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim have arrived at Nassau aboard their yacht Firenze with a party of friends. The Guggenheims have been cruising leisurely in the South since they left Washington several months ago. New Orleans and Palm Beach were among the stops they made. Col. and Mrs. Guggenheim entertained at a dinner party recently in the Palm room of the British Colonial for their yachting guests and a few of the winter residents.

Nassau would seem to be a popular spot with Washingtonians. Recent arrivals at the British Colonial include Albert Gore, Mr. and Mrs. H. Grady Gore, all of this city, as well as Miss Jane Todd, of Easton, Md. Mrs. Richard Hutchison and her daughter, Miss Betty Lloyd Hutchison, are frequently seen at the tea dances in the Cocoanut Grove of the British Colonial.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, 10 Charter Members Are Guests of Honor on Founders' Day; Women's Part in Future Is Discussed

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor

Founders' Day was celebrated by the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase yesterday afternoon at its clubhouse with Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, first vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, as speaker and ten charter members as honor guests.

An important item of the business meeting which preceded the program was the announcement of the proposed slate of officers headed by Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby, for reelection as president.

The slate, which was presented by Mrs. Kenneth D. McRae, chairman of the nominating committee, includes Mrs. Henry DeCoursey Adams, first vice president; Mrs. Philip P. Gott, second vice president; Mrs. Ralph Bonnett, recording secretary; Mrs. F. C. Brackett, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Roy J. Jorolemon, treasurer; Mrs. D. B. Groff, assistant treasurer.

Mrs. Whitehurst, who was introduced by Mrs. Kerby, discussed "Women's Part in America's Future." She urged the club women to use the influence they have won in modern times—an influence they have gained through long struggle—to combat "isms" which would undermine democracy. If women combine they can accomplish whatever they desire for the good of the community and the State, she declared. The significance of democracy is government by the people, she asserted, and admonished the women to take an active part in the affairs which concern the universal welfare.

"Democracy is doomed unless we turn back to religion," said Mrs. Whitehurst. Fundamental religious training is essential to the preservation of democracy and must be fostered in the home and in the school, where ideals and standards are moulded. Young people, following the example of their elders, are measuring success in dollars and cents, she said, instead of putting moral and spiritual values first.

A federation of clubs is important because it crystallizes the influence of the women in the individual organizations and making their force felt, she declared.

The charter members, who were seated on the platform, were introduced by Mrs. Kerby, who pointed out that it was through their wisdom and foresight the club was founded 26 years ago. One, in replying to the invitation to be present yesterday, wrote, she said, "We planted better than we knew."

Those present included Mrs. Joseph Burkhart, at whose home the organization meeting was held; Mrs. A. Bruce Bielaski, Mrs. John L. Beatie, Mrs. Harvey L. Curtis, Mrs. Bowen Crandall, Mrs. William Groverman, Mrs. Horace Alexander, Miss Alice Hopper, Mrs. Howard S. Paine and Mrs. C. E. Richardson.

The club passed a resolution to increase its second scholarship from $150 to $200 to be awarded to a girl continuing graduate study in college. Another was passed authorizing the use of $100 from a special fund for a third scholarship, to go to a girl doing undergraduate work.

The resolutions were offered by Mrs. F. C. Breckenridge, chairman of the education committee, who also announced the girls to whom scholarships are being awarded. The first award of $250 goes to Miss Blanche Morgan; the second to Miss Jane a Chapin and the third to Roslyn Griggs.

The club reaffirmed its disapproval of selling weapons to Japan for war against China and also passed a resolution favoring measures in Maryland for the control of syphillis. The cancer control committee was voted $73 and $25 was allotted the student aid fund.

China to Keep On Fighting, Says Dr. Hu

"The more we fight, the more confident we become. The more we suffer, the more determined we are."

This statement, embodying the sentiment of the people of China in their war struggle, was quoted yesterday by Dr. Hu Shih, the Chinese Ambassador, from a letter he had received from a friend, now 900 miles in the interior establishing a medical college to train men to assist in the hospitals.

Dr. Hu spoke at a tea given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, by the local committee for the relief of Chinese war orphans. He was introduced by Mr. Pinchot, who paid tribute to the courage and steadiness of the Chinese and to their generalissimo and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek.

"So help China is to help the world," he declared.

Dr. Hu said reports were better today than two years ago. In 1938, when China lost Canton, she was at her Valley Forge—"but we hope to be in Yorktown," he added. He likened China's situation to that of the colonies in the period following Valley Forge. This country's founders at that time refused a peace and determined to win their freedom, fighting on four years. There was also a change in the international situation, comparable to that today regarding Japan and China. France was giving the American colonists assistance and world opinion had turned against England.

Woman's Club of Arlington to Honor Mrs. Smith in General Federation Jubilee

THE WOMAN'S CLUB OF ARLINGTON today will entertain at tea from 2 to 5 at the home of Mrs. J. Vernon Smith, a charter member, celebrating the golden jubilee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The program, in charge of Mrs. Carleton Duffus and Mrs. Glen Spitler, will include a humorous sketch and special honor to the charter members.

As the club is only 9 years old, all past presidents will be there. They include Mrs. C. E. Miles, Mrs. J. B. Lowell, Mrs. H. W. Petty and Mrs. St. John Perrott.

AND BY THE WAY—Just to keep the record straight, the dinner of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Washington will be held at the Admiral Club Monday night and not tonight.

ON CLUB BUSINESS—Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, leaves Saturday for a trip through seven States that will continue more than a month. She will attend the Arizona State Federation convention in Prescott, March 26-29; Michigan, at Bay City, April 3 to 6; Arkansas, at Pine Bluff, April 8 to 10; Ohio, at Canton, April 10 to 12; Tennessee, at Memphis, April 15 to 17; Alabama, at Sheffield, April 17 to 19, and Maryland, in Baltimore, April 25.

April 24, she will be in New York for the special broadcast in observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the federation. A dramatic presentation of the first meeting will be given over a Nation-wide network, with Mrs. Harold V. Milligan, chairman of radio for the general federation, in charge. In addition to professional performers, Mrs. Dunbar and Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, first vice president, will speak.

FORMER PRESIDENT HERE—Mrs. Robert Oleson, former president of the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women, is here from New York for a short visit and will be entertained at luncheon today by members of the board at a luncheon at the clubhouse.

CARD PARTY—McKimmie-Catterton Police-Fire Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars last night sponsored a card party at the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club.

ALUMNAE ELECT—Beta Sigma Omicron Alumnae of Washington have reelected Miss Elizabeth Mann as their president. She has served for a year. Other officers are Mrs. Henry Lipscomb, vice president, Mrs. James Heney, secretary; Miss Pauline Berrum, treasurer; Miss Mattie Richards Tyler, warder; Mrs. Henry Lyon, editor.

Cuniberti Reports on Needs Of D. C. Mothers, Children

The fact that there are two gaps in the District of Columbia program of service to mothers and children was reported by Fernando Cuniberti, a member of the executive committee of the Children's Protective Association, meeting yesterday in their offices at 1907 S street northwest.

The first of these gaps is service to unmarried mothers and their babies, including the selection of adoption homes. The second gap is a need for convalescent care to colored children, Cuniberti told the board.

If the proposed legislation now being studied by the committees of the council, for the licensing of placing agencies, should become effective, he said, the need for a private, noncommercial adoptive agency would immediately become acute.

Cuniberti proposed, and the board agreed, that a letter should be written to the Community Chest and the Council of Social Agencies outlining these needs and proposing that when this expansion becomes possible the Children's Protective Association be equipped with additional staff members to extend case work service. He explained this need should be met by individual case work, accompanied, when needed, by the use of the foster home care for mothers and babies which has been the program of the Children's Protective Association for 24 years.

Miss Mildred Terrett, executive secretary of the association, reported that 300 children were cared for by the Children's Protective Association in February. She told the board that the demand for foster home care had grown steadily and it has become impossible to fill the demands put upon the agency for this service in the temporary adjustments of the problems of children. She said that this care often was instrumental in preventing delinquency.

Dr. John A. Bentley, of American University, a member of the board of the association, outlined a case which demonstrated this point, in which a boy of 13 was able to make an adjustment. He was recommended to the association through the Juvenile Court where he was brought because he was involved in petty neighborhood thieving. His mother, who was employed during the day, could not supervise him. He was sent to the country where he found normal surroundings, his mother's financial condition was improved and the boy has returned home where he has shown himself now to be equipped to meet his problems.

Those present at the meeting were Dr. Bentley, Mrs. Walter A. Bloedorn, Mrs. Frederick M. Bradley, Mrs. George W. Cook, Mr. Cuniberti, Mrs. Peyton Hawes Dunn, Dr. Loren B. T. Johnson, Dr. P. A. McPendon, Mrs. Walter S. Ufford, Mr. B. Woodruff Weaver, and Miss Terrett.

Russian Women Denied Freedom, Zonta Club Hears

The place of women in a country is a criterion of the level of the nation's civilization, said Mrs. Hale T. Shenefield, addressing the Zonta Club yesterday at its weekly luncheon at the Y. W. C. A.

Talking on the subject "From Leningrad to Helsinki," she described the position of women in Russia, where they were pushed into the background, made to do the heaviest work and allowed no privileges, she said. She contrasted the conditions there with those in Scandinavia, where women are accorded privileges similar to those in the United State

Wells Alumnae Guests Hear Dr. W. E. Weld

President of College Explains Program For Expanding School

A sense of unity, closer contacts with other students and a sense of possession, were among the advantages of a small college outlined yesterday by Dr. W. Ernest Weld, president of Wells College, at Aurora, N. Y., in a talk before Wells alumnae and their guests at the Raleigh Hotel.

Addressing a luncheon meeting at which he and Mrs. Weld were guests of honor, he told of plans for a new dormitory and other buildings which would enable the college to expand from its present enrollment of 316 to about 400.

"But we don't want to be larger," he said. "You feel so close to a small school, you think you own it, you know."

Introduced by Mrs. Perkins Coville, alumnae president, he described the beauty of Wells, located on Lake Cayuga, and stressed the advantages offered by a woman's college. He did not discount the value of co-ed institutions, but asserted there was less distraction for the students "where they don't have men underfoot all the time."

Before going to Wells three and one-half years ago, Dr. Weld was ten years at Columbia and then dean of the University of Rochester.

College Now Raising Million for Buildings

Through the trustees and alumnae, the college is now raising a $1,000,000 fund for a new dormitory, new infirmary, an art center and addition to the library. A good showing toward the goal is expected by 1943, when the institution will celebrate its seventy-seventy-fifth anniversary. It was founded in 1868 by Henry Wells, of Wells-Fargo Co.

Luncheon yesterday included former students, alumnae, prospective students, parents and several local educators. These were Albert E. Rogers, principal of Friends School; Dr. Elmer S. Newton, principal of Western High School; Miss Mabel Turner, headmistress of National Cathedral School for Girls; Miss Maude Van Woy, headmistress of Fairmont School; Mrs. Helen Arny Macan, headmistress of St. Agnes School, in Alexandria.

Mrs. Mitchell Carroll Is Among the Guests

The alumnae committee in charge included Mrs. C. C. Schiffeler, wife of Col. Schiffeler, who is manager of the Raleigh Hotel; Mrs. Coville, Mrs. Frederick A. Ballard, of Alexandria, and Mrs. Horace Dawson.

Among the alumnae who attended were Mrs. Marcellus Shield, Mrs. Walton Ferris, Mrs. Mitchell Carroll, president of the Art and Archeology Society; Miss Frances Wainwright, of Annapolis; Miss Frances Brown, of Arlington Hall School; Mrs. Irving Ketchum, Mrs. Marshall Clark, Miss Mary Labaree, of the Department of Labor; Mrs. M. W. Keefer and Mrs. Charles Neff, treasurer of the club.

Delta Kappa Gamma President Here for Convention of Society

Dr. Maycie Southall Arrives by Plane To Preside Today at Board Session; National Meeting to Begin Tomorrow

Dr. Maycie Southall, national president of Delta Kappa Gamma, educational society, arrived by plane last night from Nashville, Tenn., to preside at the national board meeting which will be held today at the Wardman Park Hotel, preceding the national convention of the organization opening there tomorrow.

Dr. Southall is a member of the faculty in the department of education of George Peabody College, in Nashville. National officers, national chairmen, and State president, numbering over 60, will attend today's session.

Dr. Annie Webb Blanton, executive secretary of the University of Texas, Austin, will report at the opening meeting tomorrow. The presidents' dinner is scheduled for tomorrow evening in the large ballroom of the hotel. Each of the presidents from the 35 States that have chapters will extend a greeting. The chairman of this function, and also of the birthday luncheon Saturday, is Miss Margaret Patterson, president of the local Alpha chapter.

The outstanding event of the convention will be the Founders' Day banquet Saturday night. Miss Louise Moore, president of the local Beta Chapter, is in charge of arrangements for this function, planned in honor of the national and State founders. Founders of the District of Columbia organizations, which carries the rank of a State group, are women well-known locally. They are Dr. Frances Butts, Dr. Margaret Stroh, Miss Jessie Coope, Mrs. Bessie Wood Cramer, Mrs. Kathryn Hughes Graves, Miss Elizabeth A. Lauxmann, Miss Mildred H. Merrill, Miss Louise M. Moore, Miss Hazel B. Nielson, Miss Laura V. Ruff, Miss Carrie Sutherlin, Miss Maud Van Woy, Miss Charl O. Williams and Miss Elizabeth A. Lathrop, of Richmond.

Delta Kappa Gamma has completed four scholarships for women teachers. The national scholarship, named after Dr. Annie Webb Blanton, has a foundation of $20,000. It was completed at the national convention in Asheville, N. C., last year, and will be awarded for the first time in 1941. Texas has founded two State scholarships, each with a foundation of $6,000. These have been placed at the University of Texas. One has been named after Dr. Blanton and the other will be named at the Texas State convention to be held in Houston in April. The first of these has been in operation three years and the second will begin next year. Gamma Chapter of Houston, has established the fourth scholarship at the University of Houston with a foundation of $1,500. This has been called the Mamie S. Bastian scholarship and will be awarded next year for the first time.

Each member of Delta Kappa Gamma pays an annual scholarship fee. This is divided among the chapters, that State organizations and the national organization, and each may form scholarships which are gifts to the recipients and not loans.

Mrs. Grady Addresses Pen Women

Mrs. Henry F. Grady, past president of the San Francisco Branch of the League of American Pen Wmen, appeared in a gay Spanish costume yesterday afternoon as speaker at the fellowship tea of the local branch of the league, at which she talked on "Spanish Influence in California."

With her doll, Guadulupe, in her arms, she opened her discussion with a poem describing California, "stretching down the middle of the world."

Mrs. Grady, who is the daughter of Senator R. F. Valle, is a member of one of the oldest Spanish families in California. She described the Camulos Ranch, given to her ancestors by a grant from the King of Spain. It was there that Helen Hunt Jackson wrote "Ramona," using members of the family as characters. Mrs. Grady's father, was Don Filipe, hero of the novel.

The costume she wore was made on the Rancho Camulos, and the silk was woven in China, she said, before her father was born. Her jewelry was of gold found on the ranch, and her shoes were made on the old ranch last.

Farley Shocks Third-Termers By Candidacy

Some See Move As Proof Roosevelt Won't Run Again

Has No Alliance

But in answer to questions, Farley made clear he was not teaming up with Garner or any other candidate, saying flatly he was "in no combination with anybody."

Weeks ago the Postmaster General gave William Burke, chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic Committee, power of attorney to enter a slate of Farley delegates in the State's Democratic primaries. But this status was confused when Burke later announced that he named the Farley slate in belief that the President would not run, assuming that if he did he would receive the support of "Mr. Farley and the Democratic party as a whole."

In announcing his unqualified candidacy, Farley said yesterday he was deeply grateful to Burke and the other Massachusetts Democratic leaders "for the great compliment they have paid me," adding: "It wouldn't be human if I did not appreciate their action. I hope by my conduct in the future that I will justify the confidence Massachusetts Democracy has shown in me."

Farley smilingly declined to say whether his statement meant the President has decided not to run, whether he would accept second place on the Democratic ticket, or whether he would buck the President if the latter runs. Nor would he comment on the President's Tuesday press conference statement denying he had told anyone that Farley's religion would impair his Vice Presidential prospects.

Pepper Caustic

Most Democratic comment at the Capitol was noncommittal on actual support of Farley, but many personal tributes were paid. One Western Democrat said he was convinced Farley would have resigned from the Cabinet before announcing his candidacy had he not been certain the President will not run. Third term advocates were plainly unhappy.

"It is keenly to be regretted," said Senator Pepper, that Jim Farley, who has labored so long and so efficiently for his party and his party's chief, should find it necessary to declare himself before his President is able to determine what the welfare of the country will require of him to do."

Senator Wheeler, of Montana, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination but will not buck the President, said "Jim Farley has an excellent record as Postmaster General. I have the highest regard for him and if elected he would make an excellent President."

Senator Brown, of Michigan, chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, commented: "Mr. Farley is very popular in Michigan. We particularly recall that he is always frank and his word is as good as his bond. Without committing myself on any candidacy, I know he will receive most careful consideration from the Michigan delegates."

Senator Bailey, of North Carolina, said, "I have a very high regard for Mr. Farley," while Senator Hatch, of New Mexico, author of the Hatch law, called him "a very fine and upstanding man and a great and sincere Democrat." Senator Green, of Rhode Island, a throughgoing New Dealer, said, "it is a good thing and all of the admirers of Mr. Farley will admire him all the more for it."

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, said he anticipated Farley's name would be presented to the convention when the Massachusetts delegate list was filed in his name.

Murray Doubts Significance

"I don't think there is much significance to it," said Senator Murray, of Montana, a Roosevelt supporter. "I believe Mr. Farley is just trying to clear the atmosphere. He is not seeking, in my opinion, to damage any chance there may be for a third term."

Hague Backs Edison

Meanwhile, announcement of Edison, son of the celebrated inventor, that he will run for Governor of New Jersey, met prompt support from Mayor Hague, a leading third-term advocate, who has been seeking to build up the State ticket to carry New Jersey for the Democrats.

Hague wired from Miami Beach that the State Democratic organization is "100 per cent behind Mr. Edison." New Jersey Democrats at the Capitol echoed this view, and interpreted Edison's candidacy at once as an effort "to carry New Jersey for Roosevelt." As part of the same plan, they predicted James H. R. Cromwell, Minister to Canada and husband of Doris Duke, will shortly announce his candidacy for New Jersey's Democratic senatorial nomination.

Other legislators informed on the New Jersey political situation drew a contrary conclusion, contending Edison was stepping out of the Cabinet into New Jersey politics because the President expects to retire.

Edison is expected to remain in the Cabinet until after New Jersey's May 21 primary.

After declining to take the stump in the Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries, Senator Vandenberg received a delegation of 35 Wisconsin and New York dairy farmers in his office here, and told them:

"Don't allow this Administration to discourage you too much, because it is only going to be here eight more months."

The dairy farmer delegation, led by K. W. Hones, of Colfax, Wis., and W. H. Bundy, of Menominee, Wis., complained that the Administration never had favored inclusion of dairy products as a basic commodity eligible for parity payments. Vandenburg urged them to consider the advantages of the McNary-Haugen two-price plan, for a guaranteed domestic parity price, plus what could be obtained on world markets.

In writing Wisconsin and Nebraska Republican leaders he could not campaign in their primaries, Vandenberg slapped indirectly at other Republican candidates who have been taking the stump. He said he felt the Republican nomination should flow from the people's deliberate judgment from "not from the transient impulse of a campaign tour."

Awaits Call

"If the convention ultimately chooses me," Vandenberg said, "I shall then enter the campaign with every energy and resource at my command."

Twenty-four delegate votes are at stake in Wisconsin and 14 in Nebraska, with Vandenberg opposed in both States by Dewey delegate slates.

Reports that the President is considering a Western tour said he has been urged to stop in the South Dakota Black Hills, where Gutzon Borglum is completing his great cliff-carved portraits of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. It was in the South Dakota Black Hills that the late President Calvin Coolidge on August 2, 1927, made his famous "I do not choose to run" statement.

Goss Attacks Jones' Credit Bill

Credit Administration. Goss is the fourth high FCA official to resign since President Roosevelt's reorganization order merged the agency with the Department of Agriculture July 1, 1939.

Chairman Marvin Jones (Democrat), of Texas, House sponsor of the bill, answered Goss' testimony yesterday with the assertion that "the Government has already made known its intentions not to let the land bank bonds go unpaid."

"The Government is under the whole load right now," he said. "We have all the liabilities but none of the advantages of a Government guarantee."

Interest Reduction Is Sought

The Jones bill would retire capital stock of the land banks and end the arrangement by which borrowers take 5 per cent of their loans in stock. It also provides for reduction to 3 per cent of farm loan interest rates. Present rates are 3½ per cent on land-bank loans and first mortgage obligations and 4 per cent on land-bank commissioner loans and second mortgage obligations.

Goss said he saw two possible motives in a Government guarantee of the land-bank bonds. First, he said, "would be to make up losses which would ensue from unsound lending or collection policies."

Rather than write "unsound policies" into the law, he contended, "if aid is needed temporarily, it should be given in the way of a direct subsidy."

The subsidy must not be "hidden away in forms which will cost the Government in the future untold millions of dollars," he declared.

Small Spread Is Cited

The Government guarantee is not necessary to attract investors to farm loan bonds, the former commissioner asserted. He said there is now only a 0.5 per cent margin between the yield on Government and farm loan bonds of similar term and maturity. The spread in 1934 was 1.1 per cent.

"If the Farm Credit Administration continues to be operated on sound business principles," he said, "eventually farm loan bonds secured by endorsed first mortgages, Government bonds and cash will sell at approximately the same yield as Government bonds, and no material advantages would be gained by requiring the Government guarantee."

"It should not be necessary to remind you that there have been times in recent years when Congress was not as sympathetic to agriculture as you men are. No doubt those times will come again, and I think it is a heavy responsibility to assume to destroy an independent organization and make it dependent upon the Government for funds and subsidies."

Consultation Is Urged

Goss asserted that no official with extensive experience in the farm credit system's operation saw the Jones bill until the day before hearings began, while most field officers in the system have never seen it. He urged the committee, before making "these drastic and profound changes," to call in directors and presidents of the land banks for consultation.

Sales-Income Tax Bill Reported Out

House Committee Approves Measure, 8 to 6; Fight Looms Over Plan on Floor

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

The sales-income tax combination proposed as a substitute for the present personal income tax cleared its first hurdle yesterday but faced an uncertain fate in the House.

By a vote of 8 to 6 the House District Committee reported the Nichols bill to the House after extending the 2 per cent retail sales tax to cover sales of gas and electricity and amusement admissions, with transportation exempt.

The committee rejected an amendment by Chairman Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, to boost the sales tax base from 5 to 10 cents and a motion by Representative W. R. Poage (Democrat), of Texas, to kill the income tax and raise the realty tax.

Income tax proponents, though defeated in committee, prepared to fight the bill in the House and gained confidence when Randolph disclosed that District day scheduled for next Monday would be postponed.

Early Date Sought

Chairman Randolph and Representative Jack Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, will confer with Majority Leader Sam Rayburn today in an effort to obtain a special District day later next week.

Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, leader of the opposition to the measure, said he will try to have House action postponed until April 8, the next regular District day. Both Dirksen and Representative George J. Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, an income tax advocate, will be out of Washington next week.

The vote, though not announced officially, on the Nichols bill was reported reliably to have been as follows:

For: Nichols, Ambrose Kennedy, of Maryland; Michael J. Kennedy, of New York; Dan R. McGehee, of Mississippi; John L. McMillan, of South Carolina, and Frank W. Fries, of Illinois, all Democrats, and Stephen Bolles, of Wisconsin, and Robert K. Goodwin (Republican), of Iowa.

Against: Dirksen (Republican) and William T. Schulte, of Indiana; Herman P. Eberharter, of Pennsylvania; John F. Hunter, of Ohio; Thomas D'Alesandro, jr., of Maryland, and Poage, all Democrats.

Chairman Randolph, a proponent of the sales tax, did not vote as there was no tie.

This was the first time that the House District Committee had indorsed the sales tax although it has been under discussion for several years. Last year the committee rejected the dual revenue plan after the Nichols subcommittee had recommended it.

The 2 per cent sales tax, if enacted into law, would become operative January 1, 1941, and would apply to all retail sales except food consumed off the premises, medicine, motor fuel, newspapers and periodicals, and sales to or by the Federal or District governments.

The income tax, which would start on earned incomes in excess of $10,000, would range from 2 to 7 per cent. The 2 per cent applies to the first $1,000 of taxable income and with each jump of $2,000 in income the tax rate rises 1 per cent until the maximum of 7 per cent is reached.

Base Exemption $1,000

The base exemption on unearned income is $1,000, after which the tax rate applies similarly.

The tax bill does not affect the personal income tax which falls due in first installment on April 1 as the income levy on earnings above $10,000 applies to the calendar year 1940 and is collectible on April 1 and June 15, 1941.

While the House District Committee moved to increase the District's revenue by more than $5,000,000, the House subcommittee on appropriations was busy reducing the anticipated expenditures for the next fiscal year.

Members of the subcommittee indicated that the District supply bill will be more than $1,000,000 under the $49,300,000 estimates recommended by the Budget Bureau. The measure is scheduled to be reported to the House next Tuesday.

Drastic slashes have been made, it was said, because of the anticipated deficit of $1,800,000 on the basis of the Budget Bureau figures. Even with the reduction, the District will be in the red $800,000 and possibly more if returns from the personal income tax fall below $1,000,000.

The appropriations subcommittee, it was understood, has rejected all proposals for additional buildings and equipment for local welfare institutions but has allowed funds for employment of a full-time physician and five additional attendants at the Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains.

Provision for modern snow removal equipment, found lacking during the late winter, and for a survey to determine the advisability of establishing a power plant at Lorton has been made.

Inmates of Children's Receiving Home, for which a new building had been urged, are to be removed to foster homes where possible if one of the subcommittee's recommendations is adopted by Congress.

Representative Allen T. Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts, yesterday released copies of an exchange of letters with Henry F. Long, commissioner of taxation for the State of Massachusetts.

Long informed Treadway that the State would waive the penalties for tardy filing of Massachusetts income tax returns by residents of the District because of the confusion over the local income levy. The tax return was due March 1.

Elks Elect Martin Young Exalted Ruler

Unusual Distinction Is Paid in Second Selection by Lodge

L. Martin Young, of 1358 Sheridan street northwest, laundry executive and resident of Washington since 1905, was elected exalted ruler of the B. P. O. Elks of Washington last night for second time.

YOUNG

Young has been a member of the Washington Lodge of Elks since 1931, and has held the offices of esteemed lecturing knight, esteemed loyal knight and esteemed leading knight. He was first elected exalted ruler in 1938, and his second election is an unusual distinction.

Allan J. Duvall, member of the lodge since 1931, was elected leading knight. Duvall has previously been lecturing knight and loyal knight.

Ambrose A. Durkin, lecturing knight, was elected loyal knight. Durkin is a graduate of Georgetown University, has been a member of the lodge since 1919, and is attached to the Criminal Records Bureau of the Metropolitan Police Department.

Leonard L. Pearce, chairman of the publicity committee and vice president of the Maryland, Delaware and District of Columbia State Associations, was elected lecturing knight.

Man Found Dead In Baltimore Hotel Believed From D.C.

A man believed to be Marion W. Hart, 26, of 1304 Rhode Island avenue northwest, was found dead in his room in a Baltimore hotel yesterday with a bullet wound in his head and a revolver at his side.

He was identified from a Social Security card, although hotel officials said he registered as R. B. Parker, of Chicago.

Hart, a native of North Carolina, came to Washington as a boy, and was educated at Central High School.

His mother, Mrs. Carrie S. Hart, lives in Hopewell, Va., and his sister, Carolina S. Hart, in Washington.

Study Needed To Grow Roses, Society Is Told

It takes a lot of "learning" to grow a rose and not all of it is to be found in the nursery catalogs and the bulletins of the Department of Agriculture, the opening session of the institute of the Potomac Rose Society developed last night at George Washington University.

A good part of rose knowledge is picked up from world histories and the classics of literature, as was proved by Mrs. Frederick Love Keays, of Great Neck, N. Y., between showings of colored lantern slides of roses, descriptions of their identifying characteristics and suggestions for their care.

She was lecturing on old-fashioned roses, some of which, it developed, came from the East with the caravans bearing silks and spices, and were found by Mrs. Keays centuries later in gardens in Maryland and Connecticut.

She spoke of the rose of Queen Elizabeth and identified a "moss rose" as the same mentioned in Hamlet. Pliny, it seems, knew another of her roses and her slides showed pictures of the emblematic flowers of the War of the Roses, the white rose of York and red one of Lancaster.

The first, she said, "suffers easily" and has been found growing as far north as Nova Scotia, while the rose of Lancaster, also durable, "blooms bravely on the end of its stalk with a great will to live."

Mrs. Keays described the George IV rose, the Isle de Bourbon, cultivated as a by-product of the commerce of the East India companies and the rose that was named for the Empress Josephine, "one of our saints from the rose point of view."

Scientific cross-breeding is a product of relatively recent times, Mrs. Keays said. Earlier rose breeders merely "put two roses together and trusted to the butterflies and God."

Robert Talley, of Rutherford, N. J., was the other lecturer. Dr. Paul W. Bowman presided and Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of the university, cosponsor of the institute, gave an address of welcome. A second institute session will be held in the university's hall of government, Twenty-first and G streets northwest, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Boy and Man Hurt Seriously In Traffic

Clifton Redmond, 15, Hurled From Cycle On Anacostia Road

A boy, 15, and a 70-year-old man were injured in District last night, both seriously.

Clifton Redmond, 15, of 24 Randle circle southeast, suffered internal injuries, possible skull fracture, shock, and concussion when he was hurled from his bicycle by an automobile at Anacostia road and Minnesota avenue southeast. Police said the automobile was operated by William F. Deffer, 41, of Cheverly, Md.

Struck by an automobile in the 1500 block of Park road northwest, Ashton Tavenner, 70, of 3534 Tenth street northwest, was at Emergency Hospital with a possible fracture of the shoulder and leg injuries. The automobile was driven, according to police, by Mrs. Dorothy W. Howard, 45, of 1728 S street northwest.

Henry B. Compton, 24, of 1478 Clifton street northwest, will appear before Judge Walter J. Casey at Police Court April 3 for sentence upon his conviction in the negligent homicide death of Norman E. Webster, colored, 28, of 1758 Willard street northwest, hit by a motorcycle.

A Police Court jury found Compton guilty yesterday after deliberating an hour. Webster died November 17.

Waiter Plunges From Taft Bridge; Car Strikes Body

Cornelius De Witt Van Buren, 28, of 1901 N street northwest, plunged to his death last night from the center span of Taft bridge to Cathedral avenue, 70 feet below. He struck the pavement headfirst and was run over, police said, by an automobile which did not stop.

According to Miss Mary Clay, his landlady, Van Buren was an unemployed waiter, the son of De Witt Van Buren, a New York attorney. She said he had not worked regularly since October and had received $10 a week from his father. A check arrived yesterday, she said, and he appeared in excellent spirits and spoke of the prospect of a job beginning next week.

Miss Clay said he leaves a wife, from whom he was separated and who is believed to live in northwest Washington.

Ballou Sees School Peril In Building

Erection of Store On Albemarle St. Would Endanger Pupils, He Asserts

Traffic hazards endangering the lives of hundreds of boys and girls attending three public schools are almost certain to result from the erection of a proposed store building at Wisconsin avenue and Albemarle street, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, told the Board of Education yesterday.

The board was informed of a corporation council opinion that may offer free tuition in District public schools to more pupils from outside the District of Columbia.

Discussing the possible situation arising from the store building project, Dr. Ballou read a letter he had written to Commissioner McCoach.

Sees Serious Danger

"I do not think it is possible to construct this store on the area contemplated, providing for the housing on the roof of 259 cars, without seriously jeopardizing the physical welfare of the boys and girls who attend the Janney School," Dr. Ballou told McCoach.

Dr. Ballou said that pupils of Deal Junior High School and Woodrow Wilson Senior High School, who pass over the streets near the proposed store, also would be affected by the increased traffic there.

"A large part of the traffic from one of the ramps of the store would pass into Albemarle street and intensify hazards" for pupils of these three schools, he said.

Study Under Way

Dr. Ballou reported he had launched a study of the residences of the students attending the three schools to determine the routes they take on the way. He said the study was not completed, but that he felt sure it would "abundantly support" the view that this zoning project "will adversely affect the welfare" of these pupils.

The possibility of free tuition in the District public schools for more pupils from the outside was foreseen yesterday after Dr. Ballou relayed to the board the opinion of Corporation Counsel Seal on the status of Ann Flanigan, a student at Wilson Teachers College.

Seal ruled that Miss Flanigan, whose guardian is a legal resident of the District, is entitled to be taught free in the public school system.

Bill Sent to Guardian

A nonresident tuition bill was sent last October to Miss Flanigan's guardian, Peter J. Mulvaney, of 317 E street northeast, a foreman in the mail equipment shop of the Postoffice Department. He claimed exemption from payment of the tuition.

The school superintendent's office reported to Seal that the girl did not live in the home of her guardian here, but gave her Washington address as 718 Fifth street northeast. The superintendent's office also reported that Mulvaney stated she "returned to Waterbury, Conn., at the end of the school term and did not come back to Washington until the beginning of the new school year."

She is the 19-year-old daughter of Frank H. Flanigan, a plumber living in Waterbury. Mulvaney said that Flanigan was his nephew.

Queries Must Be Written

A new procedure for handling problems relating to indebtedness of Board of Education employes was proposed by Dr. Ballou to the board at yesterday's meeting. The committee on personnel took the proposal under advisement for a future report to the board.

Inquiries about employes from a person or firm who is considering extending credit to them must be made in writing to the superintendent of schools. The adoption of that new provision would mean that telephone inquiries would not be answered by employes.

"At present it appears that certain employes of the board who are seriously involved in debt are extended further credit solely on the fact that they are employes of the board," Dr. Ballou said. "No question is asked as to whether the employe has the reputation of paying his debts."

Spring Is Here, but Definitely! School Gardeners Get Ready

30,000 D. C. Children Will Learn About Botany, Biology, Chemistry And Geology From Mother Earth

The arrival of spring was manifest in Washington's public schools yesterday, but not in the way you'd think.

There was, for example, much less dreaming of baseball, fishing and new summer dresses.

There was, instead, some contemplation of the crocuses that were blooming and some thought of the profits of spading a garden.

In short, the elementary school garden program was getting under way, a project that has been a part of the curricula in Washington since 1906 and that this year will engage the energies of 30,000 children in 54 schools.

Washington school authorities view gardening as something more important to the whole educational program than a means of beautifying school grounds with flowers or of improving school diets with vegetables, although these benefits are not overloooked.

Case for the Garden

To Dr. George M. Rawlins, head of the science department, and Miss Esther Scott, elementary science teacher, the garden is the school's outdoor laboratory where children are led to knowledge of elementary scientific facts without being conscious of the process. The garden, they hold, is sometimes the only place under school supervision where the teaching of the classroom can be demonstrated.

Miss Scott makes out a case for the garden in elementary instruction in botany, biology, chemistry and geology. She also makes out a case for the garden as an instrument of vocational education as well as a means of developing an interest for adult use of leisure time.

"In geology," she said, "we attempt to teach some idea of the changing aspects of the earth's surface as well as some appreciation of its great age. Such thoughts are brought home when children see the effect of washing rains or the weathering of rocks.

"Burning Questions"

"Nowhere else can the subject of soil erosion become so vital and personal a problem to our children as when they meet it in their own garden. What are these little gullies that form during rain? What kind of soil goes down the gullies? What is left behind? How can we stop it?

"These are burning questions to a child when it is his own garden plot that is washing away.

"In biology we attempt to teach something regarding the adaptations, interrelations and interdependence of living things. It is in the school garden that these ideas really become a part of the thinking of children, as they watch the struggle for survival and the effects of soil and moisture.

"In the field of chemistry the garden provides the experiences out of which much valuable classroom work can develop. The compost pile (mixture of dead leaves, soil and chemicals) used to enrich the soil in the garden is the means by which we introduce the child to the study of bacteria, both helpful and harmful, and to acids and bases.

"Even physics finds its application in the garden. For instance, is not the wheelbarrow a second-class lever, and if one has a heavy load to push over an obstacle, must not an inclined plane be used?"

As for the vocational aspects of gardening, the shortage of expert agricultural labor in nearby Maryland was cited. The avocational phases of the program were emphasized by stories of former students who now spend their leisure time in gardens and are grateful for the "inspiration and experience obtained in operation of school gardens."

There were some items that would seem to come under the head of practical sociology: lessons in cooperation with man and nature and in values of commodities later to be purchased at the corner grocery.

"The garden is a tangible work in which a child may clearly see the consequences of his acts. He is aware of the dependence of plants upon his care, and through this awareness his sense of responsibility is deepened.

"The garden punishes and rewards the child, for literally he reaps what he sows, and out of his experience he learns to appreciate the rights of others."

Citizens Ask Hart Be Made Police Judge

Backyard Play Areas Urged in Southwest; District Racing Measure Attacked

Three citizens organizations last night included in their recommendations for District welfare the appointment of assistant U. S. Attorney David A. Hart to the vacant Police Court judgeship, backyard playgrounds for the southwest section, and the sale of surplus milk to indigents. One group vigorously attacked the District racing bill.

Chevy Chase Association

The Citizens Association of Chevy Chase unanimously indorsed assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart for the Police Court judgeship vacated by United States Attorney-designate Edward M. Curran.

Judge Curran addressed the meeting on "Psychiatry in the Field of Law" and urged a psychiatric linic in the District. Such a clinic is indispensable as an extra-legal institution to aid in properly dealing with offenders and in rehabilitating them, he said.

Sixteenth Street Highlands

The proposed District racing bill met a vigorous attack from the Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens Association which went on record at its meeting as opposed to any restoration of old-time racing.

While the group adopted a resolution against the racing bill because it would bring back "gambling evils," the association agreed as an afterthought that if the bill should pass the group would favor parimutuel betting as the better choice of a necesary evil.

Two other resolutions were adopted, one against the proposed increase of the District gas tax by 1 cent a gallon and the other favoring the expending of Federal funds for construction of a new Wilson Teachers College.

Southwest Citizens

The Southwest Citizens Association, meeting in the Jefferson Junior High School, indorsed the Gwynne bill providing that residents of the District, Alaska and Hawaii may sue in Federal Courts. A resolution to sponsor backyard playgrounds and another indorsing the sale of surplus milk to indigents at 5 cents a quart were adopted.

After William Brody, chairman of the association's public welfare committee, addressed an open forum on problems of youth, especially with regard to jobs and recreation, he was named chairman of a special committee to study what may be done in this regard in the southwest.

Schulte Bill On Retirement Wins Favor

Measure Liberalizes Regulations Affecting D. C. Police, Firemen

A bill to liberalize the retirement law governing District police and firemen was reported favorably by a House subcommittee yesterday following a hearing conducted by Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana.

At the same time the subcommittee decided to defer action on a bill to give a 5-day 60-hour week. The measure was vetoed by President Roosevelt last year.

Schulte expressed the opinion that once the fire department is "streamlined," as proposed in the recent fire survey report, the 5-day week can be instituted "without costing taxpayers a dime."

Lusk Outlines Cost

Rufus S. Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers Association, told the subcommittee that the shorter-hour-week would necessitate the employment of 191 additional firemen and would cost the District an ultimate $561,922 annually.

Five minor bills dealing with policemen's and firemen's affairs were tabled by the subcommittee as it cleared its calendar for the session.

The liberalized retirement bill, introduced by Schulte, permits a policeman or fireman to retire voluntarily at half-pay after 25 years' service, regardless of age.

The present law permits retirement after 25 years only if the policeman or fireman has reached 55 and is pronounced physically unfit. Optional retirement is allowed only if the applicant is 60 years old.

D. C. Fourth in Efficiency

Spokesmen for the firemen pointed out that the present retirement law was enacted in 1885, though since amended, and that Washington is one of the few cities in the country which does not have optional retirement.

Among the witnesses who spoke for the bill were George J. Richardson, secretary of the International Association of Fire Fighters, and John L. Werheim, president of Local No. 36, of the international association. Richardson said the District is rated fourth among the cities of the country in the efficiency of its fire department. Only Detroit, Hartford and Baltimore surpass it.

The subcommittee on public health will meet at 10:30 this morning to consider several minor bills.

Broadcaster Predicts Radio 'Evolution'

A ten-year period of "evolutionary," not "revolutionary," radio progress was forecast before the Federal Communications Commission here yesterday. John Shepard 3d, president of FM Broadcasters, Inc., said that one decade would see present-day broadcasting swept from the air, except in sparsely populated areas.

This change, he explained, will be demanded by the public once the FCC permits frequency modulation to go from experimental to commercial operation. Frequency modulation (FM) is the so-called static-free method of broadcasting. Its proponents, including Shepard's organization, are asking the commission for broadcasting channel assignments which will permit the system to offer sponsored programs.

Following Shepard's testimony, three expert witnesses took the stand to tell why they, too, think FM is superior as a public service to the conventional amplitude modulation (AM).

During cross-examination of one of these, counsel for the Radio Corporation of America began to open the road for testimony possibly showing that all the good points claimed for FM are not necessarily inherent to the FM system. This was R. C. A.'s first active participation in three days of hearings.

Proponents of FM are seeking to expand into broadcasting channels now assigned to television. R. C. A. is taking the lead in television development.

Shepard, who is also the president of the Yankee network, said that at first FM broadcasts would cost advertisers little and there would be few listeners. As FM pulls more and more listeners from AM, he continued, advertisers will have to use both systems. At the end of his ten-year estimate, the situation will be reversed, he said, with FM having virtually all the advertisers and charging high rates, and with AM having only a few at low rates.

D. C. Physicists Weigh Internal Earth Factors

Scientists to Open Conference Today; G. W. U. Cosponsor

While the bloody doings on the earth's surface engross most people, the problems of the earth's interior will be discussed for three days by physicists and geophysicists from all parts of the country at the sixth Washington Conference on Theoretical Physics, opening today. The conference is under the auspices of the Carnegie Institution and George Washington University.

The conference will have no formal program, but will attempt to formulate geophysical problems and dath which may be of most use to theoretical physicists, and to study the behavior of matter under unusual conditions, especially under high pressure.

Dr. Marvin Speaks

The conference will open at 2 p. m. today at the Carnegie Institution with an address of welcome by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university. Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of the Carnegie Institution, will open tomorrow's meeting. Prof. George Gamow and Prof. Edward Teller are in charge of the work at the university, and Dr. M. A. Tuve and Dr. L. R. Hafstad at Carnegie Institution.

Dr. J. A. Fleming, director of the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Carnegie Institution, and Dean Frederick M. Feiker, of the university's school of engineering, are cochairmen of the conference.

Members Are Named

From in and near Washington—Dr. K. F. Herzfeld, Catholic University; Capt. N. H. Heck and Dr. W. D. Lambert, United States Coast and Geodetic Survey; Dr. C. E. Van Orstrand and Dr. R. C. Wells, United States Geological Survey; the Rev. F. W. Sohon, Georgetown University; Dr. D. R. Inglis, Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Bush; Dr. L. H. Adams, Dr. R. E. Gibson, Dr. R. W. Goranson, Dr. F. C. Kracek, Dr. C. S. Piggot, Dr. E. Posnjak, Dr. W. F. Urry, Dr. F. E. Wright, Dr. E. G. Zies, of the geophical laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington; Dr. J. A. Fleming, Dr. J. Bartels, Dr. Hafstad; Dr. N. P. Heydenburg, E. A. Johnson, A. G. McNish, Dr. M. A. Tuve, Dr. E. H. Vestine, of the department of terrestrial magnetism, of the Carnegie Institution; President Marvin, Prof. T. B. Brown, Dean Feiker, Prof. Gamow, Prof. Teller and Prof. Raymond J. Seeger, of George Washington Univeristy.

From outside of Washington—Prof. H. A. Bethe, Cornell University; Dr. F. Bitter, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Archie Blake, Philadelphia; Dr. G. Breit, University of Wiscopsin; Dr. John Bardeen, University of Minnesota; Prof. Walter H. Bucher, University of Cincinnati; Dr. W. Elsasser, California Institute of Technology; Prof. Enrico Fermi, Columbia University; Dr. B. Gutenberg, California Institute of Technology; Dr. J. C. Slater, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Prof. J. H. Van Vleck, Harvard University.

Grand Jury Head Named

Leonardtown, Md., March 20.—Grenville Lewis, of near Mechanicsville, has been appointed chairman of the grand jury sitting in the March term of the St. Mary's County Circuit Court.

Homer Smith, Canal Chief Here, Is Dead

Purchasing Agent Succumbs at 65 In Takoma Park

Homer A. A. Smith, 65, chief of the Washington office and general purchasing officer of the Panama Canal, died yesterday at his home, 300 Takoma avenue, Takoma Park, Md. He had been ill since Friday when he suffered a heart attack.

Homer Smith

Mr. Smith, who spent most of his life in the Panama Canal service, was a native of Vermont. He received a Ph. B. degree from the University of Colorado, an LL. B. from Columbian College, now George Washington, and an LL.M. from National University Law School.

Served as Auditor

He entered the Government service in 1900 as librarian of the Treasury Department, a position he held until 1902 when he was appointed assistant examiner of accounts with the Isthmian Canal Commission. He was named first treasurer of the Canal in 1907.

From 1911 to 1922, he served in the Canal Zone as auditor. In 1920 he was appointed by President Wilson to the Joint Land Commission for the United States and Panama.

Mr. Smith served in the general accounting office as chief of investigations from 1922 to 1927. President Coolidge named him to the Employes' Compensation Commission in 1928 after he had served a year as chief accountant to the commission.

Funeral Tomorrow

In 1930 he returned to the Canal service as assistant comptroller in the Washington office, and in 1936 he was again assigned to the Canal Zone as comptroller. He returned to Washington in the latter part of that year to become chief of the Washington office.

Mr. Smith was first president of the Union Interdenominational Church established in the Canal Zone by United States engineers and workmen assigned to the Canal project.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Smith is survived by his wife, Hazel Grove Smith; a brother, D. Minot Smith, of National City, Cal., and four children, Homer Grove Smith, of Arlington, Va.; Mrs. Donald L. Turner, Teaneck, N. J.; Mrs. E. David Haas, of Takoma Park, and Mrs. J. William Eastwood, of Takoma Park.

Housewife Held as Fixer In Death Ring

Prosecutor Accuses Woman Bail Broker, Husband and Son

By the Associated Press

New York, March 20.—An unsmiling, sleepy housewife who doubled as a bail bond broker was accused today by Brooklyn District Attorney William O'Dwyer as the "most important" member of a "fixing" family for a wholesale "murder-for-cash" syndicate.

The widening investigation of the syndicate, to which authorities lay at least 30 gangland assassinations, already has resulted in murder indictments against 7.

O'Dwyer's new accusations were made as a grand jury at Monticello, N. Y., returned two sealed indictments charging five persons with first degree murder as a result of two gangland "rubouts" in Sullivan County.

Two Believed in Florida

Two of those named in the indictments were Dapper Harry (Pittsburgh Phil) Strauss and Irving Cohen, a player of tough-guy bits in the movies under the name of Jack Gordon. Names of the others were withheld, although detectives said two Brooklyn gangsters, now believed hiding in Florida, were believed involved in the killings.

O'Dwyer asserted that 50-year-old Mrs. Lena Frosch, who frequently falls asleep as she waits in police stations, her husband, Israel, and their son, Abraham, had been the keystone of "fixing."

"The fixing department of the mob was in the hands of the three Froschs, and Mrs. Frosch was the most important of the three," O'Dwyer charged. "I have found that in every instance where there was a hint of a fix, an attempted fix, or where a fix was made in connection with the affairs of this gang, some one or all of the Froschs were in the middle."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Frosch, already under indictment on perjury charges, her husband and their son-in-law, Abraham Cohen, remained in jail today, awaiting outcome of charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice in connection with the release of Alexander Strauss—brother of "Pittsburgh Phil"—pending appeal on a vagrancy conviction.

Gravelly Point Airport Builders Already Have Job Half Done

Construction of Washington's new $10,000,000 airport reached the halfway mark yesterday, an event observed by a dozen Government officials in an afternoon's trek across 750 acres of sand, gravel and dust at Gravelly Point.

From engineers in charge of the project, the expedition, headed by Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody, learned that the airport not only is half finished from the standpoint of work accomplished, but is 75 per cent done when considered in relation to total number of days required for construction.

Carmody expressed amazement at the rapid progress of the work and had high praise for officials responsible who, he said, had performed miracles in the face of one of Washington's severest winters.

75 Miles of Paving

Contracts to be signed this week will make possible a start by April 15 on paving runways. The undertaking, it was pointed out, is the equivalent of 75 miles of 20-foot highway and will be the biggest single paving contract ever let in the United States.

Bids are to be received March 27 on the contract for $3,000,000 worth of hangar and terminal buildings. The officials were assured the airport would be ready for operation by Labor Day, as scheduled.

Traverse Runway

The expedition walked over a part of the mile-long, 200-feet-wide northeast runway where the surface has been packed hard and made ready for paving for about one-quarter of a mile. They were told that the U. S. Bureau of Roads laboratories nearby has perfected use of a "soil binder" from earth obtained a few hundred yards away.

They also were shown other runways partially completed terraces for parking 6,000 autos, and the excavations for the terminal building and four hangars.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE
Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

IT IS estimated that 5 million people have consumed Mountain Valley Mineral Water from Hot Springs, Arkansas—America's most popular health resort.
Many drink it today, to aid in treating Arthritic, Kidney, Stomach or Bladder conditions.
Ask your doctor about Mountain Valley. Many recommend it; many drink it regularly.

MUSCULAR PAINS-ACHES
BACKACHE-SORENESS-STIFFNESS
If first good rubbings with soothing, warming Musterole don't bring you glorious relief from those torturing muscular aches and pains—due to cold—by all means see your doctor. But Musterole usually DOES THE WORK—
Musterole gives quick relief because it's MORE than "just a salve." It's a wonderful soothing "counter-irritant" which penetrates the outer layers of the skin to help ease local congestion and pain. Used by millions for over 30 years! 3 strengths: Regular, Children's (mild) and Extra Strong, 40¢.

for Discomforts from COLDS use MENTHOLATUM
Link them together in your mind!
WHEN colds cause sniffling, sneezing, soreness, and stuffiness in the nostrils use Mentholatum. It gives quick relief from these discomforts and promotes healing of the irritated membranes in the nostrils. Its vapors also reach deep into the air passages, bringing grateful comfort.
Also rub some Mentholatum on your chest and back to improve the local blood circulation. Rub it on your forehead and temples to allay headache and neuralgia due to colds.

*X WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, MARCH 21, 1940 19

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., March 20.—Some day, when the great fraternity of ball players develop an ounce of appreciation for the blessings that come their way, they will realize that a hawk-faced, white-maned septogenarian with an office in Chicago is their best friend.

POVICH

This week, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, again took sides with the players against one of the magnates who pay him his $60,000 salary. He handed down a decision that, while not exactly league-rocking, was further evidence that he is determined to give the players an even break, if not better.

By Landis' order, Clark Griffith will call in to the Washington training camp three players he turned back to his Springfield farm team last winter. Landis has ordered Griffith to give Infielder Hal Quick, Pitcher Bill Holland and Outfielder Alex Pitko a further trial in the big leagues. Without Landis they would have languished at least another year in the minors.

Griffith squawked long and loudly at Landis' decree. He said he had given the trio a sufficient try-out last fall with the Nats. He said they weren't ready, yet, for the big leagues. He set forth in detail the meager experience and the difficulties of the three players. He asked Landis to remand the order.

But Landis uttered, in effect, a thunderous "No" and he made it stick. He told Griffith to give the boys a longer tryout, or else. The fact that Landis had never seen any of the players perform; that he knew nothing of their talents, didn't make any difference. The point was that the players were being shunted back to the minors without a spring try-out. Landis didn't like that.

More than a month ago, the Washington club had blithely announced that the players had been released to Springfield and would not be called to the Washington camp. That, apparently, was final with everybody except an old man in Chicago. He began to investigate. Then he decided that the players weren't getting a square deal. The upshot was that the Washington club had to back down in the matter.

Wherefore this interest by Landis in the ball players as against the interest of the men who pay him his $60,000 salary? Well, it springs from sources that are twofold: (1) Landis' determination to protect the player and (2) his intolerance of the farm-system of the big league clubs which have been attempting to cram down his throat methods of "covering up" players in the minor leagues who might be ready for the majors.

Big league clubs have succeeded, to a certain point, in circumventing Landis on farm-system baseball, but the old judge has never reconciled himself to any such defeat. He's bristling now and cracking down at any misstep of the clubowners and apparently is taking a fiendish delight in making every penalty a heavy one.

Landis is the self-appointed protector of the ball players, a fact that the athletes ought to appreciate but doubtless never will. The players pay part of his huge salary and there is nothing in Landis' contract that privileges him to protect the player in any dealing with the club owners. That he has chosen to do so, however, attests to the integrity of the man.

Landis' decisions in favor of the players have not spawned from any vindictiveness he may have felt toward club owners who tried to clip the wings of his authority a few years ago and ever since. Early in his career as commissioner he put himself on record as determined to guard the players' interests. He has never wavered in that.

He showed his complete lack of fear of the clubowners' wrath last winter when in one swoop he declared 91 Detroit players free agents. It was a $500,000 blow to the Detroit club, but Landis was adamant. Detroit had been "covering up" players in the minor leagues, retarding their advancement, and otherwise shuffling talent illegally in the minors, Landis stated. Long ago he had warned the clubs against violations of that sort.

Since that famed decision, it has been pointed out that half of the 91 players freed by Landis were still jobless, that they had not been able to make new baseball connections. In some quarters Landis was ridiculed for having "liberated" the athletes from paying jobs. But actually Landis' order was a blessing even to the jobless. If, by this time, they have made no new connections, they are simply bad ball players and were wasting their time in organized baseball when they could better have been learning a trade or a profession. Because of Judge Landis, two fine young ball players now with Kansas City will get their chance to go into the big leagues next season. Second Baseman Gerry Priddy and Shortstop Phil Rizzuto of the Kansas City team are Yankee owned. They are big leaguers right now, but the Yanks don't need them. The Yanks are well fortified with Joe Gordon at second and Frankie Crosetti at short. Without a Landis to guard their interests Priddy and Rizzuto may have languished in the minors for years. But under the three year rule stoutly upheld by Landis, the Yankees next season must either give them a big league job or sell them to another big league club. The ball player who doesn't like Landis must necessarily be an ingrate.

Hogan Leads North-South by 7 Strokes

Sam Snead, Revolta Tied For Second

Leader Adds 67 to 66 For Record Total at Pinehurst; 36-Hole Total Is Under Par

By the Associated Press

Pinehurst, N. C., March 20.—Running his sensational scoring into a new record for 36 holes of United States championship golf, Ben Hogan today faced the thirty-eighth annual North and South open field to the halfway mark with an eleven-under-par total of 133.

His opening effort, a 66, that tied the course record, had opened up a three-stroke gap between him and his nearest pursuer. The second round 67 he shot today widened that margin to seven strokes and left the Texas-born youngster who plays out of White Plains, N. Y., an almost sure shot to come through to first money in tomorrow's final 36 holes.

The way Benny is going, it will be awfully hard to stop him from taking down his first big prize. The burden of pursuit will fall on Sam Snead and Johnny Revolta, who are bracketed together at 140, and Craig Wood, the come-backing, blond veteran who is at 141 with Amateur Bobby Dunkelberger, the Carolina champion, and Stan Horne, of Montreal, Canadian P. G. A. titleholder.

In his first round Hogan had two bogeys. He reduced that margin of error to one this afternoon, when he struck his tee shot into a trap on the short sixth hole, and the rest of the way around bagged four birdies, an eagle 3 on the 473-yard sixteenth, and 12 pars.

Hogan finished his round with four straight 3's—a par on the 15th, the eagle on No. 16, another par on No. 17, and then a grandly climactic birdie at the 18th, where he thrilled the gallery by running a 25-foot putt right into the cup.

Sixteen players in all broke par in today's round. Back of Hogan's 67 came three 69's, by Snead, Wood and Horne; seven 70's, by Gene Sarazen, Dick Metz, Lloyd Mangrum, Dunkelberger, Revolta, Chandler Harper, of Portsmouth, Va., and George Picard, of Charleston, S. C., brother of the P. G. A. champion, and five 71's, by Clayton Heafner, Ed Oliver, Harry Cooper, Lawson Little and Johnny Bulla.

Heafner, Oliver, Cooper, open champion Byron Nelson and Jack Patroni, of Manchester, Vt., were at 142.

Aggies' Girls Beaten In A.A.U. Tournament; Tipton Leads Typers

The Sherwood Girls reached the finals, the United Typewriters went to the semifinals of the unlimited class and Jewish Community Center gained the semifinals of the 145-pound division last night in the District A. A. U. championship tournament being sponsored by The Washington Post at Heurich's gymnasium.

Sherwood, with Evelyn Lewis in the chief scoring role, led all the way to defeat Agriculture, 30-22, and earned the right to meet the Treasury-Hyattsville winner for the title. United Typewriters, with Ollie Tipton in rare form, downed a fighting Bell Clothier club, 52-29. J. C. C. came from behind to defeat Ida's Department Store, 23-18.

All-District Team in Action Tonight At Heurich Gym; Treasury's Girls Play Hyattsville in Post Tournament

The greatest array of high school basketball talent even assembled for action here will take the floor tonight at Heurich's gymnasium when the All-District team, picked for The Washington Post by coaches and officials, battles Delaware & Hudson Coal team, starting at 9:30 o'clock. The game is expected to settle some of the many arguments among local court followers as to the relative merits of independent league basketball and the brand supplied by high school players.

Players from both the first and second All-District teams will be used. For the most part these boys never have played together, but Orrel Mitchell, Gonzaga High coach who will be in charge, is expected to have them working smoothly. Mitchell is familiar with the style of each of the players and will be able to use each accordingly.

Recall Scores Upset to Win At Fort Myer

Charles Carrico's Entry Gets 3 Straight Classes For Hunter Tri-Color

By Anne Hagner

Charles Carrico's Recall, who entered Fort Myer's Horse Show last night 3 points behind Mrs. D. N. Lee's Red Fox for the series championship, won three classes in a row to pile up 16 points and emerge with the hunter tricolor.

Carrico's good thoroughbred, given very little consideration in the figuring because of his comparatively low spot on the list of point winners, performed faultlessly all evening to win blues in the working hunters, the road hacks and the open hunters' events.

In a surprise victory, Lisbeth Stieg's Hi-Ho won the open jumping class that wound up the program and also took the open championship of the entire series with a spectacular performance over the tough course.

Miss Stieg's little mare, always a consistent jumper in the Myer ring, was high over every fence to defeat Gay Cockade for the award. Friends were jubilant as the championship was pinned, for early in the show it looked as if Hi-Ho was not in her best form when she hit the first fence in the first class.

Capt. Hodge Slides

In the open class, Capt. Hodge unexpectedly slid from Broomfield after the pair had taken the whole course without fault, so that the bay gelding could place no better than third over Ellie Leh's King Rock, from Arlington Hall College.

Scoring 7½ faults in the student jumping class, Maryland University's quartet of riders took the blue ribbon and cinched the championship in their division.

The College Park team, which turned in a total of 14½ faults for the entire series of shows, is made up of Fred Hughes, jr., on Hi-Ho; Sam Pfefferkorn, on Carrie Knight; Paul Weimert, on Ring Master, and Bill Stevens, on Black Caddy.

Although Western High School placed second in last night's class, its riders were not able to compete for the championship, because they received a handicap of 63 faults when they entered the competition in its second phase. Reserve award for the series went to Landon School for Boys, which added 10 faults to its total score and took the ribbon with 25 faults. Arlington Hall Junior College's No. 1 team, winner of the event in the December show, placed third with 13 faults last night, making a total of 27 faults.

Jumping in Rafters

The fault-and-out class brought out one of the most exciting jump-offs Fort Myer has seen this season when Capt. James Collier's Gay Cockade and Capt. Kenneth Hoge's Broomfield took the stiff course three times before Hoge's mount

Virginia Boxers Aid Coach LaRowe With Transfusions

By the Associated Press

Charlottesville, Va., March 20.—Johnny La Rowe, 73-year-old boxing coach at the University of Virginia, underwent an abdominal operation at the University of Virginia Hospital today, and two members of his squad gave necessary blood transfusions.

They were Peter Berkey, of Chicago, and Philip Malone, of St. Cloud, Fla.

La Rowe's general physical condition was described as good before the operation, and subsequent reports said he withstood it "as well as could be expected."

Masterson, Chase Hurl Runless Ball

Cleveland Commits Five Errors; Travis Hits for Circuit as Case, Pofahl Shine

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent

Orlando, Fla., March 20.—The Nats unloaded a boisterous 11-hit batting attack and some clever six-hit pitching against the Cleveland Indians today to win a 7-2 ball game in the presence of some 500 of Orlando's citizenry.

Five Cleveland errors didn't hurt the Nats, either, in their successful attempt to avenge the 2-0 shutout hung on them last week by the Indians. When the Nats weren't slugging the runs home, the Indians were booting 'em across the plate.

It was a ball game gratifying to Manager Bucky Harris not because the Nats won it, but chiefly because he saw three of his pitchers give him some safe and sane pitching. Ken Chase, Joe Haynes and Walter Masterson did a highly satisfactory job against the Cleveland club.

Chase was making his 1940 debut on the mound, a bit tardily because of a bruised foot, but he contributed three scoreless innings to the Nats' triumph. The only two hits he allowed were scratchy infield affairs. The big lefthander whom Harris rates as the No. 2 Washington pitcher, was a bit wild, walking three batters, but when he was getting the ball over the plate, he was superb.

Haynes Redeems Self

Joe Haynes, a rank disappointment in his last outing, re-established himself in the esteem of Harris by his three-inning job. Haynes surrendered the Indians their only two runs after pitching a pair of scoreless and hitless innings.

The major surprise of the pitching program was, however, young Walter Masterson who may have earned himself a reprieve from the minors by his work today. The bespectacled young right-hander flashed a sudden return to his spring form of 1939 and whipped a fast ball that cracked over the plate. He walked only one batter, struck out two, allowed two hits, one of which was scratchy, and gave up no runs.

Cecil Travis, the hottest article in the Nats camp with a bat in his hand, continued his heavy hitting today with a long line-drive homer

Zeke Bonura Claims Deal With Griffith

Giants Holdout Star Says He'll Go to Nats For Cash and Player

Lakeland, Fla., March 20.—Zeke Bonura, holdout first baseman of the New York Giants, said today that he has made a deal for himself whereby he will go to Washington in exchange for cash and a Senator recruit for Jersey City, Giant farm.

The transaction awaits the approval of Giants' manager, Bill Terry, and Clark Griffith, president of the Senators, who will probably confer tonight.

Bonura said the Senators would pay him more than the New York offer of $10,000.

Griffith Says Zeke's Disclosure Is 'Rubbish'

Orlando, Fla., March 20.—"Nonsense," said Clark Griffith with emphasis tonight in reply to reports that a deal for First Baseman Zeke Bonura was in the making between Washington and the Giants.

"It's pure rubbish," the Washington owner declared after being advised that Bonura was today quoted as saying that he had arranged a deal whereby the Nats would acquire him.

"I have never talked to the Giants about Bonura. I don't intend to talk about any Bonura deal with the Giants, and Bonura does not fit in with my plans for the 1940 Washington team," said Griffith.

No. 1—Congressional

'The Hardest Hole on the Course'

Natural Hazards Dot Congressional Club's 10th Hole

What's the toughest golf hole at your course?

In a series of articles, starting today and continuing the next 19 days, we will give you your pro's conception of the hardest hole, speaing from the vie opoint of par figures. Included will be a short line on the season's outlook. And as a climax the local profession will vote on the one considered the hardest golf hole in this sector.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The tenth hole at Congressional will stand up as the No. 1 Jonah of the club members, and first choice of the golf shop personnel as the toughest of the 18. Attractive with natural hazards, amply trapped around the green and presenting a rolling fairway, the 446-yard number requires distance, accuracy and is a foreboding looking two-shoter from the tee.

If you top your drive—a watery grave, for a 50-foot lake lies at the bottom of a steep hill. If you miss your second shot, a snake-like ditch winds through the fairway or four well-placed traps surround the green, excepting a narrow opening, open only to lucky "grounders."

If you've played well on the first nine, the tenth hole doesn't look so tough but let a few things go wrong and when you step on that tenth tee, it looks like a big six coming up. The fairway opens up over a lake but the green requires a well placed drive, and in striving for accuracy you may pull a tee shot into deep rough to the left, or push it near the eighteenth tee, and from there your chances of a par depends on one putt.

Has Large Green

The dog leg hole presents a semi-blind green from the middle of the fairway, thus the exacting second shot. The green is well over the average size but when you have, say, a four iron in hand and have to arch the ball over the ditch and traps, the top of that pin looks like a needle.

A little extra pressure in trying to keep the ball straight nets a sandy result, and despite the "automatic" sand wedges of these days, they're not guaranteed to drop the ball close

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

By Zeke Bonura

(As told to Bob Considine)

Winter Haven, Fla., March 20.—By the time this appears in print I may be signed, sealed and delivered to the Giants, the Senators, the Phils or what have you. I wouldn't know. But I have been what is called a holdout for sometime, and I want to tell you what it feels like and why ball players do such things.

CONSIDINE

I don't like the word "holdout." What I am doing is (or was) only trying to protect myself from what I sincerely believe was an unfair cut in pay.

I made $15,000 last year. I think I did enough and drew enough people to earn it. I led the Giants in hitting with .321; in runs batted in with 85, and in fielding with .992.

So they offered me $5,000 less this season. When I tried to explain my side of the argument to Horace Stoneham the other day when I got here, I couldn't get a word in. Bill Terry did all the talking. He said, "You'll talke $10,000 or leave it," so I said I'd leave it, and he invited me to try to sell myself to Clark Griffith.

He told me to tell Griff that Washington could have me for the waiver price and a good young ball player for Jersey City, but when this was written I hadn't heard. I'd like to play for the Giants, for I think I can do the team some good, and I think we're going places.

Maybe you'll say, "What's that fellow beefing about, turning down $15,000?" Well, there's a side to that you rarely hear about. Most of the holdout dope you read is inspired, in one way or another, by the owners. You don't read much about the player's side. In the first place the only way he can get a raise, or hold his own, is to argue—unless the team has just won a pennant and is feeling generous. It's not much fun to haggle over dough. You wind up with a lot of bad feeling with the fellow you've been arguing with, and it reacts on your ball playing on the field. When you've been okay, and you're cut, it takes a lot out of you.

Ball players only have a few years in which to make their money. The average fan's earning power is spread over 20 or 30 or 40 years. We've got to make ours in a few short years. If we don't we come out of the game—financially busted—when we're in our early 30's.

I'm 30. I think I'm in my prime as a ball player. I've had seven years of experience in big league baseball. I know I can do certain things well, and I know the boss knows this. In five years I'll be pretty well washed up, but right now I'm on top and I can't understand being cut.

I've been around baseball long enough to know that ball players don't usually win salary arguments. They must either give in or compromise. They must do the best they can, with their limited weapons—chief of which are confidence in one-ability, and an ability to talk. I've got the confidence I need. But I can't get Mr. Stoneham for an audience. I think I could take two or three of you fellows and sit down with Stoneham and he'd see my side in a minute, and there wouldn't be any haggling.

Right now I'd rather be out there with the Giants, trying to hit those Cleveland pitchers. I hope by the time this appears that I'll be doing just that.

Ring Bodies Continue Battle Over Foe for Joey Archibald

Pete Scalzo Demanded by N.B.A. Group

New York Association Endorses Return Bout Between Feather Champ and Jeffra

Developments along the Joey Archibald-Harry Jeffra featherweight championship front hit a lively pace yesterday as:

1. The New York State Athletic Commission approved plans for a return title fight in defiance of the National Boxing Association.

2. Pete Reilly, manager of Petey Scalzo, the N. B. A.'s No. 1 contender, accused Promoter Mike Jacobs of trying to "lock up" his fighter.

3. President Heinie Miller, of the N. B. A., and Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York Commission, swapper verbal blows by means of long-distance telephone.

Informed of the action of the New York body, which for years has thumbed its nose at the N. B. A. by selecting its own "world champions," Miller hotly reminded Phelan that the National body will strip Archibald of his title unless he signs a contract before March 28 to defend it against Scalzo.

Place Is Mystery

"Well, we have done what the N. B. A. has been shouting for ever since Archibald fought down there by approving a return bout, and I don't know where the fight will be staged now," Phelan said.

"But we insist upon Scalzo—not Jeffra," Miller put in.

"We have tried to get Scalzo to fight Archibald here for a year ourselves, but Reilly doesn't seem to want the fight," Phelan barked back.

Miller curtly ended the conversation, called Reilly in his New York headquarters.

"Listen, we'll fight that guy Archibald anywhere and anytime, Mr. Miller," Reilly informed the N. B. A. president.

Jacobs Wants Tieup

Miller added that Reilly said the only reason he has been unable to come to terms with Al Weill, Archibald's manager, is that Mike Jacobs wants to "tie a string" on to the fight by insisting that Reilly sign a three-year contract agreeing to stage Scalzo's "big" fights under Jacobs' promotion.

"Phelan was very short and officious over the telephone," Miller said.

Reilly informed Miller that he is mailing him a signed contract agreeing to fight Archibald at any time Weill so chooses. Scalzo, as the N. B. A. No. 1 contender for Archibald's title, has passed up several fights recently in order to be ready to fight should Weill decide to observe the N. B. A. March 28 deadline.

Mrs. Estelle Page Wins Mid-South Play by 26 Strokes

By the Associated Press

Southern Pines, N. C., March 20.—Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel Hill, won the twelfth annual Mid-South women's golf championship today by a 26-stroke margin.

The 1937 national champion carded a 74 which, with her 74 lacked only a stroke of equaling Patty Berg's course record of 73 set last year.

The 1936 tourney titlist, Deborah Verry, of Worcester, Mass., tied with Helen Waring, of Pinehurst, the 1934 winner, for second place with 251.

Next in order were Mrs. George Corcoran, of Thomasville, N. C., with an 86 to total 254; and 16-year-old Jeanne Cline, of Bloomington, Ill., who lowered by three strokes yesterday's round for an 84 and 259.

Wild Bill McDowell On Monday Card

Happy over the discovery of a fighter who can please Washington fans, Promoter Joe Turner and Gabe Menendez will bring back Wild Bill McDowell, Dallas, Tex., stablemate of Pat Comiskey, for an eight-rounder Monday night in Turner's Arena.

McDowell will meet a newcomer, Jackie Dorval, of Cincinnati, in one of three eights on the card. Jimmy Fantini, of Jersey City, will make his local debut in another eight against Philadelphia's Tony Sarullo, who technically knocked out Baltimore's Charley Gilley Monday night in his first appearance here.

Dorval, top club fighter in his Ohio locale, recently defeated Eddie Carroll in a preliminary at Madison Square Garden.

New Stadium Lessee

M. C. Windsor, of 929 North Cleveland street, Arlington, Va., has taken over Ballston Stadium for the coming baseball season. Teams wishing to schedule games in the stadium should call Windsor at OXford 1492 before April 15

Dettweiler Loses, 6 and 5, To Miss Kirby

Washington's Girl Pro Bows at Augusta; Jean Bauer Advances

By the Associated Press

Augusta, Ga., March 20.—Three veterans and one youngster, among them defending champion Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, today stroked their way into the semi-finals of the Augusta women's invitational golf tournament.

Joining Mis Kirby in the round were Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C.; Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., and young Helen Sigel, of Philadelphia.

Miss Cothran closed strong to eliminate Medalist Grace Amory, of nearby Aiken, S. C., two up. Her semifinals rival will be Miss Kirby, who overwhelmed professional Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, D. C., 6 and 5.

Olmsted Leaves Part of Property For 'Sandlot' Ball

Bert L. Olmsted, late proprietor of Olmsted's Grill, directed in his will that part of his property be used to encourage "sandlot" baseball and to build and maintain a playing field for Washington boys.

Mr. Olmsted died March 17 at his home, 3404 Macomb street northwest, at the age of 60. His will was filed in the District Court yesterday.

The will placed the estate in trust, directing that the income be used to provide for the widow, Mrs. Mae H. Olmsted, during her life, after which Roger G. Whiteford, executor and trustee, and the Young Men's Christian Association are to use the remainder to carry out the baseball bequest. Mr. Olmsted was a patron of amateur baseball here for many years.

The will was drawn July 18, 1931. The amount of the estate will not be known until a petition for probate is filed.

Woodridge Loses

The Woodridge A. C. 135-pound basketball team dropped its final game of the year last night, losing, 32 to 20, to the Y. M. C. A. on the "Y" court. Peddy Moore, of Woodridge, was high man with 15 points.

Miss Wheeler, Mrs. Fabyan Reach Finals

Frank Shields Bows In Coral Beach Net Play, Gil Hall Wins

By the Associated Press

Hamilton, Bermuda, March 20.—Mrs. Sarah Palfrey, of Boston, and Gracyn Wheeler, of Santa Monica, Calif., scored comparatively easy triumphs today, to reach the finals of the women's singles dvision of the Coral Beach invitation tennis tournament.

Mrs. Fabyan crushed Millicent Hirsch, of New York, 6—1, 6—2, and Miss Wheeler turned back Helen Federsen, of Stamford, Conn., 7—5, 6—2.

The quarter-final round of the men's singles was completed with Edward Alloo, of Berkeley, Calif., defeating Frank Shields, of New York, 6—3, 7—5, and Gilbert Hill, of South Orange, N. J., downed Frank Froehling, of Chicago, 6—2, 6—3.

Alloo will face Don McNeil, of Oklahoma City, and Froehling will meet Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., in the semifinals.

The men's doubles also were reduced to the finals. Froehling and William Robertson, of Los Angeles, eliminated W. Freisenbruch and M. Eve, of Bermuda, 6—1, 10—8, but then in turn were beaten by Hall and Shields, 6—3, 7—5.

Alloo and McKnight stopped Terry Mowbray and George Wardman, of Bermuda, 6—4, 6—3, but themselves were defeated by McNeill and Cooke, 6—1, 6—3.

6 Prep Schools Form Net League

Washington's six prep and private schools have organized a tennis league, it was announced last night by Coach M. George, of Devitt Prep, and a round robin schedule will be observed starting on April 12.

Devitt, Friends, St. Johns, Gonzaga, Landon and Georgetown Prep will participate. A tournament will wind up action on May 3, 4, 10 and 11 at Georgetown Prep courts.

The schedule:

April 12, Gonzaga vs. Landon; 17, Georgetown Prep vs. Friends; 19, Friends vs. Landon; 23, Devitt vs. Gonzaga; 24, St. John's vs. Georgetown Prep, Gonzaga vs. Friends, Friends vs. St. John's.

May 1, Georgetown Prep vs. Devitt, St. John's vs. Landon; 8, St. John's vs. Devitt, Georgetown Prep vs. Gonzaga; 15, Georgetown Prep vs. Landon; 22, Friends vs. Gonzaga; 24, Friends vs. Devitt; 29, Landon vs. Devitt.

June 3, St. John's vs. Gonzaga.

Season's High Individual Set Record Broken at Petworth

The season's high individual set record was broken twice in the Petworth League last night but the 461 mark by Lou Jenkins will probably stand for some time. The lanky bowler with the fancy windup rolled a 461 set, including a 162 game as his Wonder Bread team won three from Imperial Lock at Petworth Alley. Waldorf Reed also broke the old mark with a 435 set, but it was 26 pins back of Jenkins. Reed led Soller's Plumbers to a season's record team set of 1,863 as the team won all three from Ajax Electric.

ARCADIA

Agnes Rubin and her teammates on the North pinettes accounted for all honors in the C. and P. Ladies League at Arcadia with individual counts of 130 and 344 for game and set and team totals of 545 and 1,490.

George Beyer's 167 was a season's game record in the Dynamite League at Arcadia, and paved the way for an all-time league set of 410. His Analysts team posted top team game of 576 and set of 1,680.

ICE PALACE

Al O'Donoghue's 157 game and 377 set led L. P. Stuart to team game and set honors in the Washington Automotive League at Ice Palace Alleys, but despite the high totals they dropped two to Pohanka. The league leading Emerson and Orme Service won two over All-Stars.

Don Sonneman, with a 155 game, and Jack Porter, a 142 game and 403 set, led the C. and P. Men's League at Chevy Chase, while Michigan's team rolled a 594 game and Accounting a 1,702 set.

TEMPLE

Bill Grier totaled three consistent games into a 411 set to help Frank's Tavern to take three over Miller Furniture in the Temple Minor League at Temple Alleys. The winners rolled high team game of 1,702. Bill Castle had high game of 150 for McKee Pontiac and the team also led with a 620 count.

Low-Handicap Teams Victors In Handball

Washington's first doubles handball tournament with handicaps started last night at the Y. M. C. A. with the low-handicap teams in all but one instance coming through with victories.

George Wendlandt and Gus Goldstein, playing from scratch, spotted Norbert Seider and Harry Schecter seven points and managed to win, 21—18, 21—17. Leonard Vineberg and Ray Nash, second low with a five handicap, were forced to allow George LoVerde and Louis Palazzola seven points but still won, 21—14, 21—19.

The only successful darkhorse was the duo of Henry Bethon and Hugo Hiemke which won on forfeit from Ellis Klein and Paul Gilbert. Other victories were turned in by Houlon-Collins over Gerby-Brown, 21—16, 20—21 and 21—19; Young-Kardos over McNeill-Gabrieli, 21—17, 21—12, and F. Masterson-R. Masterson over Gerber-Gorrin, 6—21, 21—19 and 21—12.

Matches will be staged each Wednesday night for the next ten weeks, during which each team will play each of the others once.

Lew Jenkins Matched With Lou Ambers

15-Round Title Bout Carded for May 10 At N. Y. Garden

By the Associated Press

New York, March 20.—Lou Ambers, king of the lightweights, and Lew Jenkins, up-and-coming Sweetwater, Tex., 135-pounder, today were matched for a 15-round title fight in Madison Square Garden, May 10.

Al Weill, manager of Ambers, previously had refused to let the champion meet Jenkins until Promoter Mike Jacobs promised Arturo Godoy a return match with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis. Weill, who also manages Godoy, said, however, Goday had been promised another shot at Louis and so agreed to the lightweight bout.

Weill also figured in the New York State Athletic Commission's efforts to clear up the featherweight division situation. With the commission's approval, Weil said Champion Joey Archibald, manager of the titleholder, and Harry Jeffra would meet in either Washington, Baltimore or Providence on a date to be selected. Archibald won a disputable decision over Jeffra in their fight last fall. Since then the N. B. A. has recognized Petey Scalzo, of New York, as the No. 1 challenger.

The commission also granted Johnny Paychek, of Des Moines, a license. Formal signing for his March 29 fight with Louis will be held next Tuesday.

Eagles Face Rovers With 2d at Stake

Already assured of a tie for second place in the Eastern Amateur Ice Hockey League, the Washington Eagles will try to clinch the runner-up spot tomorrow night at Riverside stadium when they entertain the New York Rovers.

The Eagles and Rovers—two of the Eastern League's highest scoring teams of all times—will be meeting in the final game of Washington's first season of ice hockey.

If the Rovers win, and go on to defeat the Jersey Skeeters in River Vale, N. J., Saturday night, the Eagles will be forced to win one of their remaining matches with the Sea Gulls in Atlantic City Saturday or the Orioles in Baltimore Sunday night to take second.

The Washington club yesterday agreed to a post-season series of three games with Baltimore to determine the supremacy of the two teams. The Eagles already have an edge in games, but the series will be decided on the total number of goals scored.

First match of the post-season series is scheduled for Riverside Tuesday night, with the Eagles going to Baltimore March 31. The Orioles' Eastern title won't be at stake.

Eight of the Eastern League's first ten scorers, five Rover boys, will be involved in tomorrow's "last ditch" stand by the New Yorkers for at least a tie for second. The Rovers won the 1938-39 Eastern title.

Michigan A. C. Bows

The Immaculate Conception alumni basketball team defeated Michigan A. C., 32 to 22, last night, with Bob O'Donnell leading the way with ten points.

Macks' New Material Indicates Better Club

Attendance at Spring Training Games Hits New High; Anaheim Fans Certain Team Will Be in Thick of Pennant Fight

By the Associated Press

Anaheim, Calif., March 20.—Prof. C. McGillicuddy, better known as Connie Mack, still is carrying on extensive spring experiments with his Philadelphia baseball aggregation, but early returns indicate almost to a certainty that his Athletics will be a vastly improved club in 1940 over last year.

Prof. Mack has a wealth of promising, and somewhat expensive, new material to work with, along with several fine specimens of proven dependable talent. That is all this 77-year-old master of the national pastime needs.

Meantime, let it be recorded that the Athletics' decision to train in California was not only a success from more angles than one, but a heart-warming personal triumph for Mr. Mack himself. From the acclaim—and the paid attendance of the A's exhibition games, which is something to consider—a casual onlooker would get the idea that this outfit won the pennant last year instead of finishing seventh.

Nor can you make anyone in this rousing town of Anaheim think that the A's will wind up in that lowly spot again. No, sir, they're dead certain the Mackmen will be right up there whacking at, if not whacking over, the mighty Yankees.

There seems to be grounds for this confidence, too. The Athletics' pitching staff may be a whizz if some of the newcomers come through; the infield should be much improved over last year; the outfield has more reserve power, and there was nothing wrong with the catching department last year. That was why Frank Hayes, the No. 1 backstop, held out for more money.

Reliable Dick Siebert will be back at first; Benny ($45,000) McCoy, who is doing a great job of brushing off all the flattering attentions paid him, will be at second; Bill Lillard, another heavy-money purchase, from Baltimore, will be at short, and Mr. Mack likes Al Rubeling's work at third. There are other candidates, including Dario Lodigiana, Fred Chapman, Joe Gantenbein and Al Brancato, yet to be considered for the infield, however, although Gantenbein may go into the outfield if Sam Chapman fails to pick up this year.

Hardhitting Bob Johnson, who ranked third in runs batted-in in the American League last year; Wally Moses, another .300 hitter, Chapman, Wilson Miles and Utility Man Al Simmons, the old come-back kid himself, make up the outfield.

George Caster, Nelson Potter, Chubby Dean and William Beekman are regulars back for hurling duty, but new acquisitions, such as Johnny Babich, drafted from Kansas City, and two purchases from Memphis, Herman Besse and Ed Heusser, as well as Chet Poindexter, from Atlanta, and Elon Hogsett, from Minneapolis, may give the last year staff something to think about.

Frank Hayes, who reported late, after a holdout siege, probably will resume where he left off last year, with Earle Brucker, the No. 2 catcher, and Bud Hancken and Hal Wagner hustling for a third place on the receiving corps.

The A's may not find the exact combination this year, but they are bound to make it tough for some of their opponents, and tougher than ever in 1941.

English Girl Arrives for Ice Carnival

Hazel Franklin, 15-year-old Bournemouth, England, ice skating star, whom many experts claim is "better than Sonja Henie," will arrive in Washington today at 3:30 p. m. to join rehearsals at Riverside Stadium for the Ice Carnival, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

The dimunitive girl has proved a sensational performer since her arrival in the United States last fall as a professional. Her coach, Howard Nicholson, is one of her loudest praisers. Nicholson, who also coached Miss Henie, was recently quoted in a national weekly magazine as saying that Hazel has learned in "three and one-half years the basic figures that La Henie required eight years to master."

Upon arrival, Miss Franklin will be taken to the British Embassy where at 4 p. m., she will be presented to Lord Lothian, British Ambassador. She will then visit Riverside for a rehearsal for the first ice carnival in local indoor history.

With 22 scenes and a cast of over 100, the carnival, which is being presented by the Washington Figue Skating Club for the benefit of the Washington Society for the Blind, will feature many national and international professional and amateur stars.

In addition to Miss Franklin, the show will headline Everett McGowan and Ruth Mack, the McGowan and Mack of Ice Follies' fame; Eric Wait, of Calgary, Canada, who was a sensation in comedy roles with the Sun Valley Ice Show which was featured at the New York World's Fair last summer; Polly Blodgett, pretty Boston debutante who holds numerous New England championships; Maddy Horn, world's fastest woman skater and Olympic choice; Dorothy Snell, of Washington, twice runner-up in national competition who will join with Ollie Haupt, of St. Louis, in a sensational routine; Mike Martin and Jack Hook, of Baltimore, as a "horsey" pair; Tommy Lee and Charley Slagle as counterparts of Frick and Frack; Lois Waring, tiny 50-pound, 9-year-old wonder, and Riverside's brilliant pair, Robin Scott and Arlene Smith, who are also aiding in the direction of the carnival in addition to performing in three scenes.

Fenske Will Return To 1½-Mile Field

New York, March 20 (INS).—Chuck Fenske, of Wisconsin, who last Saturday recorded a 2:59.7 world indoor mark for three-quarters of a mile, tonight informed Dan Ferris, of the A. A. U., that he would stick to the mile and a half field March 31 in the Finnish relief fund games.

Ferris had notified Fenske that it would be possible to shift to the shorter event, where he could compete against John Borican, Elberon, N. J., whose recently established 3:01.2 for three-quarters was bettered by the Wisconsin star.

Yanks Beat Brooklyn in Ninth, 5-4; Dodger Players Collide

Grounder Muffed by Macon, Haas

Vosmik, Crosetti Hit Home Runs; Keller Scored With Winning Run

By the Associated Press

Clearwater, Fla., March 20.—The Brooklyn Dodgers looked like the daffiness boys of old today for one play—and that one play cost them a 5-to-4 loss to the New York Yankees.

In the ninth inning Pitcher Max Macon and First Baseman Bert Haas collided over an easy grounder and put Charley Keller on base with the winning run. He raced to third on a single by Bill Dockey and scored on Bill Knickerbocker's fly.

Joe Vosmik, of the Dodgers, and Frank Crosetti, of the Yanks, hit home runs.

Lakeland, Fla., March 20 (AP).—Rowdy Dick Bartell, once great hero for the New York Giants, beat them for the Detroit Tigers today, 8 to 7, in a 12-inning exhibition tussle.

He hit a two-run homer to climax a five-run rally in the seventh inning and tried to sew up the game in the eleventh by pounding a double and then stealing third. When he got no help in this frame he came back in the twelfth with the bases loaded and two out and slammed his third straight hit.

Reds Shut Out Phillies

Miami Beach, Fla., March 20.—Cincinnati's National League champions, shut out for three innings by Kirby Higbe, came back in the fourth to score six runs and went on to blank the Phillies, 10 to 0, in an exhibition game here today.

The Reds launched their attack on Rookie Dale Jones and sent ten men to the plate before Tom Pullig retired the side. Syl Johnson gave the Reds two more runs on three hits in the seventh and repeated the performance in the ninth.

The Phils gleaned 11 hits off John Hutchings and Joe Beggs, none for extra bases.

Browns Blank Tulsa

San Antonio, Texas, March 20.—Bill Cox and Bill Miller pitched 3-hit ball today as the St. Louis Browns blanked the Tulsa Oilers of the Texas League, 14 to 0. The game was called in the last of the eighth inning.

Twelve hits, 12 walks, two hit batters and 5 errors turned the game into a rout after the first inning.

Postscripts . . .

Orlando, Fla., March 20.—Bucky Harris' gang will attempt to go scientific tomorrow in the morning workout . . . Harris has ordered all hands to participate in a long workout on trapping runners between bases, relaying the ball from the outfield, cut-off plays and other defensive niceties . . . Johnny Welaj and other fleet rookies will be turned loose on the bases for the experiment . . . Clark Griffith will make his second managerial attempt in 20 years on Sunday when he will take a team of Washington rookies to nearby Sanford to play the Nashville club of the Southern Association . . . Griffith will boss the rookies while Harris has the regulars at Lakeland against the Tigers . . . Jimmy Pofahl is still making no attempt to show that he has a throwing arm . . . On one play today he merely lobbed the ball to first despite an easy chance for a double play . . . Pofahl claims he suffers from a chronic sore arm in the spring, but the Nats bosses are beginning to register alarm . . . Jimmy Wasdell hit the heights and the depths of fielding within the space of two innings today . . . In the third he made a remarkable catch of Travis' throw and touched the bag like a dancing master for the put-out . . . But in the fifth, on an easy tap to Pitcher Haynes, Wasdell shouted "plenty of time" and then proceeded to make a miserable muff of Haynes' perfect throw . . . Ben Chapman's return throw from the outfield on Cecil Travis' homer today traveled only ten feet . . . It hit an electric light wire and fell dead . . . But Chapman had no chance to prevent a homer . . . Ray Mack, the clever-fielding, light-hitting Cleveland second baseman, last year had his name legally changed from Mickovsky to Mack . . . Today's game with the Indians saw George Case in typical mid-season form . . . He beat out a push bunt down the first base line, stole second on the next pitch, and galloped to third when the catcher's throw went into the outfield . . . There is nothing the matter with Jimmy Pofahl's speed on the bases . . . Only a fast guy could stretch his sixth-inning sock into a double as he did.—POVICH.

his club to the Metropolitan tournament finals and the runner-up position in the interhigh race, will be at center for the All-District club. At forward will be George West, Roosevelt's ace, and Johnny Shumate, Bethesda star. Gonzaga High will be represented by Bob Mulvihill at guard, the other defensive player being Hymie Perlo, of Roosevelt.

The All-District club will be well fortified with reserves. Armand Newmyer, Friends; Ernie Travis, Roosevelt; Moe Shulman, Eastern, and Mike MacDonald, Wilson, will be on the bench at the start but will see action.

Delaware & Hudson will present a lineup bristling with former high school stars. Winners of the Middle Atlantic tournament championship and runners-up in the Heurich League this year, the Coalmen will be out to carry the fight to the high school boys. Among court followers who have witnessed both brands of basketball, there's a slight leaning toward D. & H.

The Coalmen, managed by G. J. Cooke, will have age and experience on their younger rivals but there are some who contend they will have too much in the way of age. It wasn't yesterday that Bobby Lucas starred for Roosevelt. Gerald Burns, Tommy Nolan, Tommy Folliard and the others played their share of high school ball and are considered among the best of the current crop of amateurs in the city's ranks.

The All-District clash with D. & H. is an exhibition on a program which will include two important District A. A. U. championship clashes. At 8:30 o'clock, a semifinal in the girls' class is scheduled with Treasury tackling Hyattsville. Both of these teams were impressive in their first games. Treasury will have its forward combination of Lanier, Howard and Smith, formerly with Rockville. Hyattsville has displayed four forwards of exceptional shooting ability.

The program starts at 7:30 o'clock with a quarter-final battle in the 145-pound class, involving the Stewart Brothers Photographers and the Art Welders. These clubs turned on the heat to gain first round victories.

The All-District-D. & H. game was arranged when Bolling Field's Aviators were forced to cancel their tournament battle due to six players being transferred. D. & H. automatically moved into the semifinal round.

Following tonight's program there will be a lull until the unlimited semifinals on Monday night. Admission tonight will be 25 cents.

Gene Shields Honor Guest at G. W. Smoker

Gene Shields, the former Oregon University coach who is assisting Bill Reinhart with spring football practice at George Washington University, will be among the honor guests at the University's first annual alumni "stag night" smoker to be held Tuesday night at Wardman Park Hotel.

Reinhart is to attend and to speak briefly on the results of spring practice and the Colonial's grid outlook for next season. Athletic Director Max Farrington will outline the university's athletic program, dealing particularly with schedules and new relationships.

The affair will be in the nature of a reunion for a number of former George Washington football stars, including Tuffy Leemans, Ray Hanken, Hardy Pearce, Harry Deming and Johnny Baker, all of whom will attend.

While the smoker is sponsored by the general alumni association, students, former students and friends are welcome, and more than 200 are expected to be in attendance. Tickets may be secured from John Busick in the Press Bureau or from Lester Smith in the Alumni Office.

Savold to Fight Whiters

St. Louis, March 20 (AP).—Johnny Whiters, Detroit Negro, was named today as the opponent for Lee Savold, handsome Des Moines heavyweight, in a 10-round bout here March 28.

Eagles List 2 Ball Games With Hoyas

American University's amicable athletic relations with Georgetown will be continued into the baseball season, it was revealed yesterday when Coach Staff Cassell released a 14-game schedule for the Eagles.

Georgetown will be met twice, on April 24 and May 7, both clashes highlighting the season. Delaware, Randolph-Macon and Western Maryland also are down for home-and-home engagements. First game will be April 1 against Johns Hopkins, of Baltimore, on the home field.

With spring finally a reality, the Eagles have been working out of doors for several days, mostly in light drills. Enough has been shown by the squad, however, to indicate a better-than-average year for A. U.

Harry Newby, Clay Price, Dutch Schulze and Phil Fellows, in particular, have shone in workouts. Their slugging has been heavy and consistent.

Most surprising has been the development of Carl Byham, football and basketball luminary, whom Coach Cassell is turning into a pitcher. The 6-foot 4 youngster has a brilliant dash of speed, but to date his aim has been erratic.

The Schedule

April 10, Johns Hopkins, home; 13, Elizabethtown, home; 15, Wilson Teachers, there; 17, Juniata, home; 20, Randolph-Macon, home; 24, Georgetown, there; 27, Western Maryland, there; 30, University of Delaware, home.

May 1, Wilson Teachers, home; 3, Loyola, there; 7, Georgetown, home; 10, Randolph-Macon, there; 16, University of Delaware, there; 18, Western Maryland, home.

Unhooded Golden Terror Meets Lou Plummer Tonight at Arena

Lou Won Last Week; Terror Wants Revenge; Cox, Kirilenko in One of Preliminaries

A beefy character known in some quarters as The Golden Terror and in others as just plain Roy Weatherly will stride around the ring tonight at Turner's Arena, thump his chest a couple of times and pull off the black hood behind which his face has been hidden from Washington's "rassle" followers for more than a year.

The Terror, a 290-pound groan artist, is scheduled to meet Lou Plummer in one of the ever-present return matches. First, however, he's going to unveil his countenance.

Betting was brisk at a late hour last night and the fans will demand that Roy re-cover as he is reported to be no Robert Taylor or Tyrone Power to look upon.

Last week Plummer defeated the Terror by turning the mask to the left and blotting out Roy's sight and wind. The preliminary boys this week are Matt Kirilenko and Joe Cox, Jim Coffield and Don Evans, Tommy O'Toole and Emil Dusek, and Abie Kaplan and Hymie Olson.

Semipro Congress Scuttles Sacrifice Rule

Chattanooga, Tenn., March 20 (AP).—The National Semi-pro Baseball Congress announced today elimination of the sacrifice rule to conform with action in the American and National Leagues.

Wirt Gammon, head of the National Association of Semi-pro Scorers, said the congress action applied to the National Association of Semi-pro Leagues and to tournaments sponsored by the congress.

Jake Schaefer Beats Chamaco At Billiards

By the Associated Press

Chicago, March 20.—Young Jake Schaefer, of Cleveland, ousted Joe Chamaco from a third place tie in the world three-cushion Billiard Tournament today, defeating the Mexico City star 50 to 41 in 47 innings.

It was Schaefer's sixth triumph in nine starts and the third loss in seven matches for Chamaco.

Inning score:

Schaefer—217 005, 000 000 102 111 242 031 002 050 100 121 020 00F 000 12—50; high run, 7; total innings, 47.

Chamaco—000 400 201 001 111 400 000 001 200 023 101 240 110 232 001 0—41; high run, 4; total innings, 46.

(F) Denotes foul, loss of one point.

In the opening match Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, dropped to a last place tie with Art Rubin when the New Yorker scored a 50 to 40 victory in 39 innings. Each has won two games and lost seven.

REGAL SHOES

. . . in the face of generally higher prices in the Shoe industry

NOW ONE PRICE SAME HIGH QUALITY 5.80

Once again Regal passes on to the public the savings made from more efficient operations. A new low price is possible for Spring because of: The concentration of all Regal manufacturing and administration at Whitman, Mass., the acquisition of additional factory capacity; the opening of new Regal stores; and the advantageous purchase of leather in September before the War shot leather prices sky high.

Another Triumph for Regal Policy . . . . Another factor that contributes to Regal's sensational values is the now-famous Regal Policy. Regal Shoes are produced in the big Regal factory—and sold only in Regal's own stores. One profit—from maker to wearer—saves you dollars! And the concentration on one price results in enormous manufacturing economies. Millions of men who have paid higher prices for Regal Shoes can now get the biggest value in Regal history. All styles—all leathers—all sizes—on display in all Regal windows—Now At One Low Price . . . . $5.80.

Jockey W. L. Johnson Fined, Suspended for Tropical Foul

2-Year-Old Disqualified By Stewards

Yankee Party Ruled Winner; Number of I'm the Guy Taken Down After Victory

By the Associated Press

Tropical Park, Fla., March 20.—The local stewards, who have had an exceptionally busy time of it at the current meeting, served up another disqualification after the running of the half-mile opening dash for 2-year-old maidens here today. I'm the Guy, one of the outsiders in the betting, finished first in front of Yankee Party and the odds-on choice, Hi Pov, the three youngsters winding up heads apart. I'm the Guy's number was ordered down, which made the placing Yankee Party first, Hi Pov second and Pari Sucre third. Yankee Party paid $16.40.

Hi Pov broke poorly, but was rushed into contention. He tried to go through between Yankee Party and I'm the Guy from the top of the stretch home, but his two rivals formed a wedge and the favorite was pinned in between them. The stewards held I'm the Guy, the outside horse, responsible.

Hi Pov has now been second four straight times. Jockey W. L. Johnson, who rode I'm the Guy, was fined $200 and was suspended for the balance of the meeting.

Pont Neuf Winner

Pont Neuf won the second race by a half length atnd pulled up lame after his hard-earned triumph. The colt, with blinkers added to his equipment, raced Epitaph into early defeat and held on gamely. He returned $7.40. Jean C., was a fast-finishing second, there lengths before Nad. Ugin, slight choice over the winner, was a sluggish starting fourth.

Gay American, 4-year-old bay son of American Flag, carried Mrs. W. T. Anderson's red, white and green banner to a popular victory in the featured Stuart Purse of a mile and a sixteenth. Favorite at $6.40 for $2 in the field of seven, the gelding defeated A. J. Brown's The Thrush by a half length in 1:44 2-5.

There was a dead heat for third between W. J. Sprow's Winning Chance and Mrs. L. H. Nimkoff's Balloter. The pair trailed The Chrush by five lengths.

Gay American, in his last outing here, ran for $3,500 in a six-furlong claiming race and closed fast to finish on top. He ran in similar fashion over the longer distance today, receiving a faultless ride from the Chilean jockey, Ruperto Donoso.

Sheknows Defeated

Sheknows, winner of two in a row, was installed favorite in the sixth dash. The mare's winning habit was broken, third being the best she could do. Noble Boy, a $12.70 for two proposition ridden by Alfred Robertson, who begins a 10-day suspension for rough riding tomorrow, accounted for the purse. Carnarvon was second, a length and a half behind and five lengths clear of Sheknows. The latter held a narrow advantage over Noble Boy for a half mile, after which the eventual victor drew clear.

Alfred Robertson, taking advantage of his last chance to ride before his 10 days on the ground begin tomorrow, scored a consecutive double astride Speed, the $7.10 for two choice in the seventh event. "Robbie" brought the veteran plater from close off the leaders to gain a one length decision over Red Rogue. Steel King was third. Loischen had scant chance after being practically left.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—YANKEE PARTY, $16.40, $4.30, $3.60; HI POV, $2.50, $2.30; PARI SUCRE, $9.30.

I'M THE GUY, on the outside, held HI POV in tight quarters from the quarter-mile pole to the finish and caused him to pull up at the furlong pole, finished gamely to wear YANKEE PARTY down in the final strides, but was disqualified for fouling. YANKEE PARTY, quickest to begin, showed good speed, but faltered in the final drive. HI POV broke tardily, moved up fast between the field rounding the turn, made a bold effort and would have won with clear racing room. PARI SUCRE could not better his position.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 4-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:41. Off 2:42½. Winner, W. Jenkins, Jr.'s, b. c. (4), by Stimulite—Tableau. Trained by A. Gunther. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 1:11⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PONT NEUF, $7.40, $5.50, $3.70; JEAN C., $7.70, $5.30; NAD, $19.40.

PONT NEUF, showing good speed, shook off EPITAPH rounding the turn, but had to be ridden out vigorously to withstand JEAN C.'s bid. The latter worked her way to the outside and finished gamely, but could not overhaul the winner. NAD, up on the outside and finished gamely, but could not overhaul the winner. NAD, well up and saving ground all the way, just lasted to withstand UGIN'S challenge. The latter came with a belated rush.

Daily Double, YANKEE PARTY and PONT NEUF, Paid $66.20

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start bad. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:10½. Off at once. Winner, F. R. Williamson's br. f. (3), by Haste—Sickle Feather. Trained by R. McIlvain. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 1:12.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ARIEL STAR, $9.30, $4.10, $3.10; FREE BID, $3.60, $2.50; NOODLES, $2.90.

ARIEL STAR held her opposition safe for speed, opened a winning lead rounding the turn and held away thereafter. FREE BID moved up steadily under strong pressure, but came wide into the stretch and just lasted long enough to withstand NOODLES' challenge. The latter, reserved off the early pace, saved much ground in the last 3 furlongs but could not get up. BILLIE DAY closed a big gap from a slow beginning.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; allowances. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:04. Off 4:04½. Winner, Mrs. W. T. Anderson's b. g. GAY AMERICAN, going forwardly on the outside, responded with determination to pressure through the stretch and wore THE THRUSH down. The latter forced a steady early pace, assumed a short lead rounding the lower turn, but was unable to stave off the winner's bid. WINNING CHANCE, rushed to the front, saved ground throughout, but faltered in the final drive and just lasted long enough to dead heat BALLOTER for third place. BALLOTER closed strong in the final furlongs.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 4:32. Off 4:32½. Winner, Bomar Stable's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NOBLE BOY, $12.70, $7.00, $4.20; CARNAVON, $6.10, $3.30; SHEKNOWS, $2.70.

NOBLE BOY, displaying decided improvement, was in the thick of contention from the start, responded to pressure on the stretch turn and took command to win lightly urged. CARNAVON moved up gradually on the outside and finished gamely, but was no match for the winner. SHEKNOWS took a short lead in the opening quarter mile, but faltered in the last furlong. PAUSE had no mishaps.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $900; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:59½. Off at once. Winner, Cosgrave Stable's ch. g. Md. Reappoints Race Officials In 1st Meeting

Chairman Hockley Indicates No Change In Policy Planned

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Mach 20.—With its new chairman sitting in for his first meeting, the State racing commission today reappointed officials for the spring meetings at Maryland race tracks. The season opens April 1, at Bowie.

Chairman Chester F. Hockley indicated no change in commission policy was planned. Hockley was named two days ago by Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor to succeed the late Jervis Spencer, jr.

Other members of the commission are George R. Nor

Loan Demand Still Lacking, Says Kincaid

Reserve Economist Addresses Bankers At Richmond

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., March 20.—Bankers from five States and the District of Columbia "went to school" here today to hear the opinions of experts on bond investment problems.

Dr. E. A. Kincaid, consulting economist of the Fifth Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, in the keynote talk opening the two day conference, said banks were "confronted with the absence of substantial demand for good loans in relation to the growing volume of deposits" and must find "good bonds in which to invest their money."

This problem, he said, like many others was a heritage of the World War, which had fostered disequilibrium, brought on depression, made "reform" and change the order of the day, and, since change "means risk, impaired the spirit of confidence which is so essential to the functioning of initiative in enterprise, and hence the use of bank credit."

Dr. Kincaid told the bankers, gathered in the Federal Reserve Auditorium, that people will accumulate their funds in banks rather than hazard their money themselves, and that banks were therefore faced with the problem of safely investing the money for them.

The conference, attended by bankers from Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Maryland and the District of Columbia, was opened by C. L. Robey, president of the Purcellville National Bank and chairman of the sessions. He said investment in bonds of banks was something of a break with the precedent of previous generations, yet "something that changed times had brought up—as a problem which bankers by self-education must master."

Hugh Leach, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, in welcoming the bankers, said there was need for cooperation among banks in approaching the investment question.

"Individual experience is valuable," he said, "but it is not enough. We need also to learn from one another."

B. Howell Griswold, jr., of Baltimore, told the conference today that the financial "barometer is sufficiently high to put you on your guard" against buying long-term bonds.

Mr. Griswold, senior partner in the firm of Alexander Brown & Sons, said he did not believe the present "higher prices" for high grade long-term bonds were "definitely going to continue," although "some economists think that they are here to stay."

"I cannot see any possibility of higher prices and I can see many reasons which might cause a break," he added. "Therefore, to my mind there is good reason why a commercial bank should not just now purchase high grade long-term bonds. . . ."

Hjalmar J. Procope, Finnish Minister to the United States, was invited to speak at the banquet tonight.

H. M. Bodwell, of New York, editor of the bank investment counsel service of Standard Statistics Co., emphasized "eternal vigilance" as an essential need for a "better net return than the going rate" for money.

"The amount of attention required, he added, "and the danger of miscalculation multiply ominously as we dip further and further down the quality ladder."

Packard Motor Reports Net Of $543,867

By the Associated Press

Detroit, March 20.—Packard Motor Car Co. today reported net earnings for the year 1939 of $545,867.42 after all charges, including depreciation and provision for Federal income taxes. In 1938 Packard showed a loss of $1,638,317.

Set aside for depreciation out of last year's income was $1,449,351.56 against $1,742,834.60 for 1938. The company paid no dividends in 1938 or 1939.

M. M. Gilman, president of Packard reported that factory personnel increased from 9,753 at the beginning of 1939 to 14,599 on December 31, and added that the company has another contract for a large number of high powered marine engines for the United States Navy.

Because of design and production problems a loss of about $330,000 was incurred in 1939 on an initial marine engine contract, but Gilman added "with the initial development cost behind us," the new contract should prove a profitable undertaking.

New York, March 20 (AP).—The White Sewing Machine Corporation and subsidiaries today reported net profit for 1939 of $502,967, compared with profit of $250,245 in 1938.

Because of litigation regarding payments of dividends on the prior preference stock, earnings per common share are not available.

Bank Dividend Voted

Directors of the National Metropolitan Bank yesterday declared a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent payable April 15 to holders of record April 4. Books will be closed from April 5 to 14 inclusive.

U. S. Exports Seen Heaviest In Ten Years

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, March 20.—American exports increased $400,000,000 during the first five months of the current European war contrasted with a $200,000,000 decrease in the first five months of the 1914-18 hostilities, the Franklin Institute was told tonight.

"American exports are today the largest in ten years and are only 20 per cent less than the boom year of 1929," Franklin Johnston, editor and publisher of the American Exporter, said in a prepared address.

He asserted that for the second time in 25 years the United States has a "near monopoly" of export.

"It took 11 months in the previous war for our exports to show a 75 per cent increase over the same month a year earlier," Johnston said. "This time a 75 per cent increase was scored by the fifth month.

"These facts illustrate how much better organized American exporting is now than it was in 1914. And the gains are the more impressive when we realize that export and import trade in many parts of the world is under restrictions undreamed of in 1914 and 1915."

Johnston said the latest monthly figures on American exports show these increases over the corresponding month of 1939: to Argentina, 225 per cent; Venezuela, 95 per cent; Chile, 87; Brazil, 85; China, 128; the Netherlands, 67; South Africa, 41.

Cotton Breezes Ahead on Strong Foreign Markets

New York, March 20 (AP).—Cotton futures breezed ahead today on price trails blazed by buyont foreign markets.

The market easily overrode slight selling opposition to close 13 to 19 points higher.

New crop deliveries were in the van of the advance. Backing up foreign influences was the speculative buying attracted by expectations of immediate passage by the Senate of an expanded farm appropriations bill. (After the close the Senate approved a $212,000,000 fund for parity payments.)

Wheat Prices Soar 3 Cents To Month's Top

More Warlike News Spurs Buying Rush In Chicago Pit

By the Associated Press

Chicago, March 20.—Many traders who sold their wheat holdings during the recent period of widespread peace talk in Europe rushed back into the market today as prices soared more than 3 cents to the highest level in almost a month. Prices at other world markets also were higher, with gains of about 2 cents at Winnipeg and Buenos Aires.

News of British air raids at Sylt and efforts to form a more aggressive war government in France, coupled with statements of British leaders the past two days, squelched peace talk that has dominated wheat trade for almost a week.

Prices rose 1½ cents at the opening, held steady for about three hours, except for several dips of about ½ cent, and then resumed the climb in the final hour. Closing figures were 2¼@2¼ higher than yesterday. May, 1.05¾@1.05⅞; July, 1.04@1.03¾.

Corn finished ½@¾ up, May, 56¾@56⅝; July, 57½@57⅜; oats, 1⅜@1½ up; rye, 2¼@2⅝ higher; soy beans, 2¾@3½ up, and lard, 20@25 higher.

United Fruit Net Increases $4,000,000

By the Associated Press

Jersey City, N. J., March 20.—Executive Vice President Arthur M. Pollan, of the United Fruit Co., told stockholders today that the firm's net income during 1939 was nearly $4,000,000 greater than in 1938. "In spite of dislocations caused during the latter part of the year by the European War," and said the company looked "to the future with confidence."

Referring to Latin American trade, Pollan asserted, "now that many countries of Europe and Asia are engaged in war, and others, by reason of their proximity to belligerents, are seriously affected thereby, closer cooperation between the countries of this hemisphere follows necessarily.

"The common ideals and peaceful aspirations of the American republics were convincingly demonstrated by actions taken at the conference of Panama shortly after the outbreak of the war.

"The disruption of steamship service and the loss of European markets," Pollan continued, "will inevitably lead to an increase in trade between the countries of the Americas and broaden the feeling of mutual interdependence.

"It is too early to predict the extent to which the war will change the normal channels of trade, but some increase in commercial traffic between the countries of this hemisphere is already noticeable."

Lincoln Service Reelects Board And Officers

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Lincoln Service Corporation yesterday the following directors were reelected:

Ellsworth C. Alvord, William J. Byrne, Francis J. Crilley, William S. Culbertson, John F. Davies, Charles Delmar, John P. Jackson, Alfons B. Landa, Frank B. Severance, Robert P. Smith, Durand W. Springer, Fred M. Supplee, Frederic N. Towers, and Walter R. Tuckerman.

The directors met immediately and reelected the present officers as follows: Charles Delmar, president; Francis J. Crilley, vice president and secretary; Durand W. Springer, treasurer, and Oscar C. Mitchell, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer.

The president reported an increase of 27.6 per cent in volume of loans for 1939 and that four new offices were opened in New York, Virginia and Pennsylvania. Regular dividends were paid on all classes of stock and extra dividends were paid on both the 6 per cent cumulative preferred and common stocks last year.

Stock Prices Close Higher as Interest Centers on War Issues; Government Bonds Decline; Business News Brighter

New York, March 20.—Speculative markets hardened today with interest in stocks centered largely on the war issues. There was a gain of approximately a quarter point in the composite average. The resignation of Premier Edouard Daladier and his cabinet in the midst of the opposition to France's policies in carrying forward the war with Germany was not regarded here as indicating there would be any slackening the Allies' efforts.

If anything, it was thought here the political change may lead to a more vigorous military campaign. Coupled with the air raids performed by both the English and the Germans, and the knowledge that Sumner Welles is returning with information only, and not a definite peace plan, there was a complete disappearance of the peace talk which took some of the tops off the war issues at the close of last week.

Business News Cheerful

A far more satisfactory aid in today's firmness was the better news from domestic business. Preliminary reports on carloadings indicate a slight gain and electric power output, while below a week ago, was down only 0.2 per cent and is 10.6 per cent above a year ago. The Iron Age noted that increase in steel orders this week suggests that the market is broadening somewhat. Unfavorable was the oil report showing record high gasoline inventories.

RCA Most Active

Radio Corporation, up a small fraction, was the day's most active stock and it touched a new high for the year. Curtiss-Wright was next and virtually all of the aviations, both in the transport and manufacturing fields, turned in good performances. Pan American was up nearly a point, North American Aviation 1⅝, Bendix a point, Lockheed 1¾ and Glenn Martin 1⅛. Atlas Corporation issues were active as the street continued to analyze the merger with Curtiss-Wright, but their prices were little changed.

Among less active securities there were several which staged special performances. Gotham Silk Hosiery preferred, at the inactive post, broke 7⅛ points following suspension of the dividend payment. Savage Arms, a speculative favorite of many years ago, gained 1¾. Republic Steel issues featured their division, the convertible preferred gaining nearly 5 points and the prior preferred 1¾. Other steels were well supported, Bethlehem and United States Steel adding about a point each. Good demand for the railroad equipment issues was accompanied by reports that these manufacturing concerns will be called upon to supply some of the heavy ordnance needed abroad if the war continues for many more months.

Test Period Expected

The street looks to the next few weeks as a testing period for both business and the stock market. The Federal Reserve's index dropped to 109 for February and indications are that it will be somewhat lower for March, but at the same time the decline, which has been one of the sharpest on record, shows signs of rounding out. Market followers are watching the domestic business figures as closely as they are reading the war reports from abroad, and that holds at least a promise of greater activity in security dealings.

Listed bond market tendencies were reversed today as hopes of an early peace in Europe faded and the likelihood grew of an intensified war. Best grade investment issues slowly receded, under the leadership of United States Treasury securities, while the speculative sections of the market tended to improve. Foreign dollar bonds were easier, almost without exception, as the question of peace or war is of high importance in this group. Turnover was $5,910,000.

Treasury Issues Lower

Treasury obligations showed losses to ½ point, notwithstanding the reports of good income tax payments. The spectre of intensified warfare was especially significant in such bonds. Best grade utilities, railroad and industrial bonds showed fractional recessions, as investment operations slowed during the day.

German bonds fell 1 to 2 points, as peace hopes dwindled, and recessions also were the rule among Canadian and Australian bonds. There were no trades in French issues. Scandinavian securities dropped 1 to 3 points, and losses appeared among Italian, Belgian and other neutral country bonds. City of Montevideo bonds jumped on reopening of the settlement offer, while other Latin-Americans were soft.

Speculative railroad bonds came into mild demand on the strength in equities, but gains were mostly fractional and a few inactive issues remained easy. The local traction group was active and slightly higher. Holding company and share privilege issues showed points of strength.

Kilday Addresses Federal Union

Representative Paul Kilday (Democrat), of Texas, told the District Federation of Federal Empolyes' Unions last night the Ramspeck bill should be passed because it extends the classification system to civil service employes in the field, and extends the merit system.

He spoke at a meeting in the Willard Hotel. Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer of the N. F. F. E., reported on the progress of the Ramspeck bill. William S. Hoffheins presided.

Money Markets

New York, March 20 (AP).—The British pound thudded lower again today, all but erased a week-end rally, and came close to the ten-year low touched last week. A decline of 3¾ cents in the British currency dragged down the French franc .02¾ of a cent and the Canadian dollar ½ cent. The guilder and Swiss franc were unchanged.

Closing rates follow. Great Britain in dollars, others in cents.

Canada, official Canadian control board rates for U. $474,882,032 Sales In Fiscal Year Set Company Record

By the Associated Press

Chicago, March 20.—Montgomery Ward Co., had a net profit of $27,010,645 for its fiscal year ended January 31, 1940, Sewell L. Avery, chairman of the board, told stockholders today in his annual report.

This was the equivalent of $4.91 a share of common stock after deducting dividends of $7 a share paid on the class "A" stock, and compared with net profit of $19,644,956, or $3.50 a common share, in the previous fiscal year.

Net sales of $474,882,032 were the largest in the company's history and represented an increase of $60,920,791, or 14.7 per cent over the previous year.

Avery told stockholders that "the opportunity for profitable growth suggests that the obtaining of additional working capital will soon be advisable." Increased sales volume during the year, Avery said, required substantial investment in new store properties and use of over $32,000,000 in extension of customers' time payment accounts and in increased inventories.

Nickle Plate Railroad

Nickel Plate Railroad reported today February net income of $44,672 against an $84,245 deficit in February, 1939. Net railway operating income of $564,451 represented an increase of $132,152, and railway operating revenues of $3,633,767 were up $501,875.

Hinde & Dauch Paper Co.

Hinde & Dauch Paper Co., reported today a net profit of $826,383 for 1939 compared with $645,788 for 1938. This is equal to $1.90 per share of common stock and $5 per share on 35,900 shares of cumulative preferred stock.

Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd.

Distillers Corporation-Seagrams Ltd. today reported net profit for the three months ended January 31 of $2,482,106, which included $423,654 tax refund on 1937 flood loss claim. The total was equal to $1.31 a share on common stock and compared with $2,790,512, or $1.48 a common share, in the comparable period a year earlier.

Securities Drop Laid To Bearish Astrologers

If you want another idea of what makes the stock market go up and down, here's a report received yesterday from the American trade commissioner in Calcutta, India.

"An authoritative Calcutta Financial Journal blames astrology for a recent sharp break in the local securities market. The astrologers were bullish for a time, and following their advice many market operators were buying. When the stars then turned adverse there was a great deal of selling."

U. S. Surplus Of Gasoline Sets Record

By the Associated Press

New York, March 20.—Oil men contemplated today the United States' record 100,000,000-barrel surplus of gasoline and wondered whether Europe's fuel-hungry war machines would take some of it.

"Wouldn't Hitler like to have it," said an oil man who has been reading of the German strategy to obtain gasoline in the Balkans and Russia for the Nazi air fleets.

The domestic petroleum industry's gasoline inventory, as reported by the American Petroleum Institute, has increased from around 82,000,000 barrels at the close of 1939 to the latest total of 100,616,000.

Much of the increase was ascribed to heavy output of fuel oils to meet the demands of the severe winter in the North, causing larger-than-usual winter accumulation of gasoline, a side product of heating fuels.

Expansion of inventories in anticipation of greater demand from warring nations also was named as a factor but so far the war buying has been smaller than many expected.

In fact, one oil authority suggested experience the last few months indicated the United States could count on little extra European demand unless the stalemated war machines roll into action on the Western Front or in the Mediterranean sectors.

The Allies, it was pointed, have been working toward self-sufficiency from British-controlled fields in order to conserve dollar exchange.

enough to make up for a misdirected second shot.

Although maybe not the toughest in the city, the hole would run any other a close race for attractiveness. From the tee, the lake, with the ducks, then the big rolling fairway and green in the distance is a pretty sight. And from the fairway, you look back on the castle-like clubhouse, one of the most fashionable in the country.

The tenth received the call by a close margin over the second hole, that has more yardage and out of bounds as an extra hazard, but the green is wide open in front and can be reached with two shots that would only end up in trouble on the tenth.

Professional Wiffy Cox, two days back from a three-week sojourn in Florida, has Jocko Miller, former National Women's Club pro, on the scene as matchmaker and good will man who will probably be responsible for many a dollar won or lost on a summer afternoon.

Wiffy is ready for the season with the biggest stock of golf merchandise in the city, and his young assistants, Warney Grey and Ernie Garlem to dispense it. President Myron Davy is busy approving improvements such as a new roadway, new showers, etc., with Clyde Roberts on hand as manager.

The course will play easier for the average member this year, as Cox has shifted traps and handmade hazards for their benefit, although taking nothing from the course to make it easier for the tournament players. Opening day is set for April 21, with the Walter Johnson trophy as the attraction.

Recall Scores Upset at Ft. Myer

finally hit the top rail of the last fence, giving the blue to Gay Cockade.

Jumping was not far from the rafters as the two well-known open horses battled it out, for Broomfield's second ribbon places him just behind Lieut. David Wagstaff's Enterprise, who at present is leading the division with 8 points toward the championship. Unfortunately for Wagstaff, his English-bred mare could do no better than fourth, to add only one point to her collection when she hit the last fence on the course, a wicked-looking oxer.

Charles Carrico's Recall virtually cinched the tricolor in the hunter ranks by winning two big classes, one for the working hunters and the other for road hacks. Recall thus outpaced Mrs. D. N. Lee's Red Fox, who entered the show on top with 7 points to Recall's present score of 12.

Carrico's well-mannered chestnut was never in better form as he galloped around the hunter course on a loose rein, and his two victories were no surprise to the near-capacity crowd that was on hand.

SUMMARIES:

WORKING HUNTERS—Won by Recall, owned and ridden by Charles Carrico; second, Muddy River, owned by Col. W. H. Grimes, ridden by Lieut. J. W. Totten; third, Crocus, owned and ridden by Lieut. James Polk; fourth, Konohiki, owned and ridden by Col. George Patton, Jr.

FAULT-AND-OUT—Won by Gay Cockade, won and ridden by Capt. J. H. Collier; second, Broomfield, owned and ridden by Capt. Kenneth Hoge; third, Clipped Wings, owned by the United States Government, ridden by Lieut. James Polk.

FIRST CLASS STUDENT TEAM JUMPING—First, University of Maryland, 7½ faults; second, Western High School, 10 faults; third, Landon School, 10 faults; fourth, Arlington Hall team No. 1, 13 faults.

Hollis, Okla., March 20 (AP).—The line-up of a Newharmon County independent basketball squad reads like this:

Bryant and Bryant, forwards; Bryant and Bryant, guards; Bryant, center; Bryant and Bryant, reserves.

The players—Raymond, Leroy, James, Junior, Dwane, James and Dick—are brothers, nephews, uncles and cousins. They played on various school teams the past season.

Joe Baker Triple Victor In Badminton

Beats Dave Johnsen To Reach Semifinals In Kensington Play

Play reached the semifinal stage in most divisions of the D. C. badminton championship tournament yesterday at Kensington Armory as favorites had another easy day of it.

Joe Baker, defending champion, came through all his matches, reaching the semifinals with a 15-5, 15-6 triumph over Davey Johnsen in the men's singles; the semifinals of the men's doubles when he paired with Max Farrington to defeat Briggs and Gibbs, 15-8, 15-6, and the semifinals of the mixed doubles when he paired with his wife, Kay, to beat Margaret Ryan and Briggs, 15-12, 15-3.

Scott Pollock, consistent performer, was forced to default to Wes Sternberg in the men's singles due to the illness of his father. Illness also forced the team of Faulkner and Purinto to default to Dort and Conover.

Results yesterday:

Women's Singles (quarterfinals)—Margaret Graham defeated Francis Rowan, 4—11, 11—8, 11—5.

Men's Singles (first round)—Sternberg defeated Pollock, default; (quarterfinals)—Baker defeated Johnsen, 15—5, 15—6; Brooks defeated Sternberg, 15—9, 15—9; Bryant defeated Whitcomb, 15—11, 15—12; Shreve defeated Rainey, 15—8, 15—11.

Men's doubles (quarterfinals)—Baker-Farrington defeated Briggs-Gibbs, 15—5, 15—6; Johnsen-Machall defeated Thompson-Whitcomb, 15—5, 5—15, 15—8, Dort-Conover defeated Faulkner-Purinton, default.

Mixed doubles (first round)—Graham-Farrington defeated Decker-Sternberg, 11—15, 15—7, 15—3; Rowan-Thompson defeated Turnbull-Purinton, 18—11, 15—8. (Quarterfinals) Baker-Baker defeated Ryan-Briggs, 15—12, 15—3; Norment-Edward defeated Harrington-Machall, 13—15, 15—8, 15—4; Graham-Farrington defeated Thomas-Howlett, 15—8, 15—5; Thompson-Shreve defeated Rowan-Thompson, 7—15, 15—12, 15—12.

that produced the first Washington run. Travis, George Case and Rick Ferrell each collected a pair of hits for the Nats.

The Indians had on display a young right hander named Don Pulford, late of New Orleans, at the outset, and in the second inning he yielded the first run of the game, it was Travis' homer, a beautiful belt into right centerfield that rolled to the distant fence.

Travis Heads Off With Hit

Against a 6-foot 8-inch rookie named John Naymick, a graduate of Cedar Rapids, the Nats' lead suddenly reached 3-0 proportions in the fourth inning. Travis led off with a single to right and after the big guy walked Bloodworth, they both scored. Travis crossed the plate when Shortstop Russ Peters made a wild throw on Pofahl's grounder, and Rick Ferrell fetched Bloodworth home with a Texas league single to center.

The towering Naymick was still in there in the sixth when three more hits and an error produced two more runs. Bloodworth singled past first base and went to second when Mack made a wild throw to Trosky. Jimmy Pofahl bashed a hard double to center and Ferrell drove in the second run with a single through the box.

Gerald Walker singled in the seventh against Al Milnar and promptly stole second to set a two-run rally in motion. Bloodworth's single scored Walker and Russ Peters scored Bloodworth by dropping Pofahl's easy pop.

The Indians crowded half of their six hits into the sixth inning when Haynes pitched a single to Chapman, walked Heath and then threw singles to Keltner and Mack to yield two runs.

against the fast Sherwood girls. The winners guarded closely and made the most of their scoring opportunities. Agriculture received many open shots that they could not make productive. Mannix and Reid did the bulk of the Agriculture scoring while Estes and Mills played good floor games. Sherwood led 16-9 at the half.

The Bell Clothiers gave United Typewriter real opposition in the early stages of the game but drifted back approaching the half and the count was 22-15, United, at the intermission. In the second half, Tipton, former Business High player, developed a "hot hand" and sank them from a variety of angles. In all he totaled 22 points, including 10 field goals.

Did Their Best

Heddings, Lassise and the other Clothiers did their best to keep the club in the running by the experience of their rivals told in the closing stages. Clinton Price used all available men on the Uniteds.

Coach Everett Russell's well drilled J. C. C. had to fight an uphill battle to take the measure of I d a ' s Department Store. The Georgia avenue boys held a 10-8 lead at the half and had all the earmarks of the winners until the closing stages. Ringel, Gerstenfeld and Nusbaum were the point getters for the winners.

Filling Station Robbed of $50 By 2 Bandits

Schulte Seeks Special Squad of 25 to Serve As Embassy Guards

Two colored men lifted Washington's so called crime wave from the doldrums last night when they held up a filling station at Virginia avenue and Twenty-sixth street northwest and fled with $50.

Thomas D. Althaus, of 1101 Clifton street northwest, manager of the station, was alone when two men entered, flourished an ancient horse pistol and demanded his funds. He turned over $33 cash and a $20 check and the bandits fled afoot.

Meanwhile Representative Schulte (Democrat), Indiana, went ahead with plans for raising the efficiency of the District force.

Schulte, chairman of the police and fire subcommittee of the House District Committee, proposed yesterday establishment of a special squad of 25 men, paid from Federal funds, to serve as escort to the President, embassy guards and assist at functions. The detal would be under jurisdiction of the police chief.

His suggestion followed a report from Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, that assignments to such special work numbered 2,249 since last July 1 and consumed 4,951 hours. He asked corporation counsel to draft a bill embodying his proposal.

James E. Keel, 23, of 502 G street southeast, a grocery clerk, and Henry L. Proctor, colored, 21, of 1327 I street southeast, pleaded guilty before Police Judge Edward M. Curran to faking a $700 holdup Monday. They were held for the grand jury under $1,000 bond each.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

A rare freak found its way into the 24 deals of the Cornell-Dartmouth match.

One player held nine hearts and four clubs, the other hands were slightly less erratic. In each of the six times it was played, both sides thought it was necessary to sacrifice against the other's game or slam. The cards are shown in today's box.

Seven hearts can be made against any opening but the ace of clubs. When the hand was played by W. P. and Ed Moree, of Cornell, against Chester Demond and Sam Wormser, of Dartmouth, declarer made six hearts doubled. Their bidding is shown in the box.

"At our table," said W. P. in explaining the hand, "the eight of hearts was led, held by dummy's jack and the seven played by declarer.

"The diamond king was next led, covered by South, ruffed by West with the six. If declarer now plays the deuce of hearts and overtakes with the six, he can spread his hand with the balance. Instead, he played a club, allowing opponents one club trick. In view of the fact that North sits over declarer with high clubs, it would appear that the heart opening is the best for the reason that it would reduce ruffing possibilities by dummy."

Listen! with Slocum

"We, the People," one of radio's brighter gems, combs the country for interesting personalities every week and by some strange legerdemain gets 'em every week. If you'll pardon my momentary joining the chamber of commerce, it would be impossible to do much country combing without hitting Washington, D. C. So every so often, a portion of the show will originate through WJSV facilities and it's always an interesting experience.

You may remember a few months back when "We, the People" picked up young William Cook from an iron lung at Gallinger. Tuesday evening they picked up Brig. Gen. David L. Brainard, from Washington. Except that both were interesting, they certainly were opposites in every manner possible.

Poor Cook, only 25 or so, could not move and spoke only through the aid of the iron lung. Gen. Brainard, who is 84, was as spry as a schoolboy and spoke clearly and brightly.

The general is the sole survivor of the ill-fated Greeley expedition to the North Pole in 1881, 59 years ago.

We've never heard of anybody who ever won anything on a radio contest until word came to WJSV that a Washingtonian had copped one of the $100 rings that are given away each week on the Wayne King program. The lady's name is Miss Jane Cowie, and she lives out northwest on Warren street.

Another Nero Wolfe Story
BY REX STOUT

OVER MY DEAD BODY

"Stop, screaming at me," said Wolfe. "It's safe. I'll give it to you at 11 o'clock. Sit down—no, don't bother to sit down; you're going."

The Balkan background of Neya Tormic and Carla Lovchen unfolded when Nero Wolfe warned them to stop stalling and that he knew Carla had hidden a mysterious paper in one of his books. He had undertaken Neya's case when she was first accused of stealing diamonds and later when Percy Ludlow, a pupil, was murdered at Miltan's fencing studio where she and Carla taught. Neya had claimed to be Wolfe's daughter, but he made it quite clear that he had only adopted a three-year old child on a trip years ago to Europe. Wolfe was trying to untangle the threads, which included the facts that Ludlow was a secret British government agent and Rudolph Faber, whose alibi was mutually dependent on Neya's, was a German agent. Archie Goodwin, who had been sent by Wolfe with Carla to the studio, had been involved through Neya's putting the murder weapon, a col de mort, and a fencing glove in his overcoat. Unfortunately she was seen by Mme. Zorka, who told Archie as much, but disappeared when Inspector Cramer sent for her. So Wolfe found it necessary to have it out with Neya and Carla, but on some questions they balked.

Chapter 16

"SHE died four years ago."

"Where did you go then?"

"I continued to live there."

"With Donevitch?"

"In that house."

"Did young Prince Stefan live there?"

"Yes, he—he and his sisters."

"And his wife?"

"After—of course. When he was married, two years ago."

"Were you treated as one of the family?"

"No." She hesitated and then said more emphatically, "No, I wasn't."

Wolfe turned sharply to Carla Lovchen and snapped at her, "Are you Stefan's wife? The Princess Vladanka?"

Her eyes popped open. "Me? Boga ti! No!"

"You had that paper which you put in my book."

Neya said, "I told you I stole that paper. I don't always lie."

"Where did you steal it, Zagreb or New York?"

She shook her head. "I can't tell about that paper. Not even—no matter what you do."

He grunted. "Your secret political mission, I know. Die first. I used to play that silly dirty game myself. But since you lived in the same house with the Princess Vladanka, you must know her pretty well. Are you and she friends?"

"Friends?" Neya's forehead showed a crease. "No."

"What's she like?"

"She is clever, beautiful and treacherous."

"Indeed. What does she look like?"

"Well . . . she is tall. Her arms move like snakes. Her face is like this." Neya described an oval with her fingers. "Her eyes are as black as mine—sometimes blacker."

"Is she in Zagreb now?"

"She was when I left. It was said she was going to Paris to see old Prince Peter and then to America."

"You're lying."

She looked straight at him. "Sometimes it is necessary to lie. There are some things I can't tell."

"HA, over your dead body. The curlicues of some old bandit's trademark engraved on your heart, and what do you get out of it? When do you expect to finish this political errand you're working on?"

She looked at him, at Carla, back at him, and said nothing.

"Come, come," he insisted impatiently. "I merely ask when. Is the end in sight?"

"I think so," she admitted. "I think it will be . . . tomorrow."

"It's past midnight. Do you mean this day?"

"Yes. But I must have that paper. You have no right to keep it. When that imbecile, that Driscoll, made the trouble about his diamonds being stolen, I thought the police might come and search everything, even my room where I live. I thought of you, the American who had adopted me when I was a baby; I had brought the record of adoption with me when I left Zagreb; Mrs. Campbell had given it to me before she died. So Carla and I decided the paper would be safer with you than anywhere else, and we decided how to do it so she could easily get it again. Then you refused to help me and she had to return and let you know who I am." She stopped and smiled at him, but she was so anxious that the effort was a little cockeyed. "I must have that paper now! I must!"

"We'll see. You admit you stole it. So you expect to accomplish your mission this day."

"Yes."

"You realize, of course, that the police won't let you leave New York until they're satisfied their murder case is solved."

"But I . . . you said yourself my alibi——"

"That doesn't solve the case. Don't you do anything silly. If you do complete your errand, don't try sneaking abord a ship disguised as a Nereid. Who is Mme. Zorka?"

They both stared at him in surprise.

"Well?" Wolfe demanded. "You know her, don't you?"

Carla laughed. It sounded quite natural, as though something really had struck her as funny. Neya said:

"Why . . . she's nobody. She's a dressmaker."

"So I understand. Where did she get that name? The name of the daughter of King Nikita of Montenegro."

"But Queen Zorka has been dead——"

"I know that. Where did this dressmaker get the name?"

Carla laughed again. "She must have found it in a book."

"Who is she?"

Neya shrugged and upturned her palms. "We know nothing about her."

WOLFE eyed them a moment and then sighed. "All right. It's late and you ought to be in bed, since you have to get up early to visit Mr. Rowcliff. That smile ought to help with him. When you are through there, come here, and I'll see you at 11 o'clock and give you that paper."

"I want it now!"

"You can't have it now. It isn't here. I will——"

Neya jumped up. "What did you—where is it?"

"Stop screaming at me. It's safe. I'll give it to you at 11 o'clock. Sit down—no, don't bother to sit down; you're going. Remember now, don't do anything silly. As for you, Miss Lovchen, I would advise you to do nothing whatever except eat and sleep. I say that on account of your performance yesterday when you hid that paper in my book—asking Mr. Goodwin if I had read it and did I study it and was he reading it. Unbelievable!"

Carla flushed. "I thought . . . I was casual——"

"Good heavens! Casual? I still suspect you meant us to find it, though I can't imagine what for. Well, good night—by the way, Miss Tormic, about your being my client. I'll return that adoption paper to you in the morning along with the other; it seems likely that it belongs to you; but I am cautious and skeptical and I don't like misunderstandings. You are my client only so long as it remains established that you are the girl whose ribs I saw in 1921. I am your protector, but if it turns out that you have duped me on that, I shall be your enemy. I don't like to be fooled."

"I doubt if I could fool you if I wanted to." She met his eye and suddenly smiled at him. "You can feel my ribs if you want to, but as for looking at them——"

"Oh, no. No, thank you. Good night. Good night, Miss Lovchen."

I went with them and extended the courtesies of the hall, and when they were out I shot the night bolt on the door. Then I went back to the office and stood and looked down at Wolfe's colossal countenance, immobile with closed eyes, and treated myself to an unrestricted stretch and yawn.

"Hvala Bogu," I declared. "I like Montenegrin girls, but it's time to go to bed. They're all right. I offered to take them home and they refused to let me. In spite of which, I have to run up to Forty-eighth street before I turn in, to get the damn roadster I left there. This is a very peculiar case. I've got a feeling in my bones that there is going to be a strange romantic twist to it by the time we get through. I have an inner conviction that when the full moon comes I'll be standing right here in this office asking you formally for the hand of your daughter in marriage. You've got something there, gospodar. Only you'll have to help me break her of lying."

"Shut up."

"Shall I go up for the roadster?"

"I suppose you'll have to." Wolfe shuddered. Out into the night like that. "What time will Saul be here in the morning?"

"Nine o'clock."

"Phone him and tell him to bring that envelope."

"Yes, sir. Are you really going to hand it over to her?"

"I am. I want to see what she is going to do with it. Will Fred and Orrie also be here at 9?"

"Yes, sir. Who do you want to tail whom?"

SEC Dodges Issues, Says Bank Leader

Connelly Charges Original Questions Still Not Answered

By the Associated Press

New York, March 20.—The word-battle between the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Investment Bankers Association went into its third round today, as I. B. A. President Emmett F. Connelly charged yesterday's Washington blast against the association for "Government baiting" left the main controversy with the commission unsettled.

The original dispute between the commission and the bankers group arose when the commission asked for suggestions for improving its rule regarding "arm's-length bargaining" between investment bankers and issuers of securities.

On March 18 the association made a 66-page reply which advanced the opinion the commission was exceeding its statutory authority in administering some aspects of the Federal securities laws, and called for a Congressional review of these statutes.

Statements "Misleading"

Connelly's statement today said in part:

"Reading the statement of the Securities and Exchange Commission published in the press today, I have looked in vain for any denial or correction of the misleading statements contained in the commission's letter of February 29.

"In the report of the Investment Bankers Association's special committee embodied in my letter of March 18, it is pointed out that Mr. Weiner, head of the commission's public utility division, employed in his letter of February 29 a phrase given as a direct quotation of the act but which is in part not an exact quotation of the language of the act but rather a transposition of certain provisions . . . separated from their context and presented in s ch a manner as to be misleading.

Wall Street Divides

"I note that the commission apparently has not found it possible to deny that Mr. Weiner's letter of February 29 was misleading and inaccurate in the manner stated but has instead resorted to an attack on our good faith.

"I therefore repeat my suggestion that the commission call the attention of all recipients of the February 29 letter specifically to the manner in which it departed from the language of the law."

Today it was reported the commission's reply to Connelly's original letter had created something of a Wall Street tempest between factions which approved the lengthy protest of the assocaition and others who felt that political expediency dictated milder approaches to Washington.

Appellate Court Frees Gov. Rivers Of Jail Threat

New Orleans, March 20 (AP).—A Federal appellate court today lifted a jail sentence threat from Gov. Rivers of Georgia—at least temporarily.

The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals assumed jurisdiction in the "state's rights" case less than 48 hours before United States District Judge Deaver was to have passed judgment on the Governor, ruled in contempt for troop-backed defiance of court orders reinstating an ousted highway board chairman.

Declaring that pending State court action on the dismissal of W. L. Miller "seriously challenges jurisdiction of the Federal court," Judge Samuel H. Sibley, in a brief oral opinion, took jurisdiction on behalf of the appellate court and vacated all proceedings in the court of Judge Deaver. He announced the case would be assigned for a hearing here just as soon as a place could be arranged on the circuit court docket.

Francis Gorman Sues C.I.O., Asks $103,719 Damages

Francis J. Gorman, executive board chairman of the United Textile Workers of America, filed a $103,719.03 suit in the District Court yesterday against John L. Lewis and other officers of the Textile Workers Organizing Committee.

Gorman was represented by Attorney Patrick J. Taft. The complaint said that when Gorman was president of the textile workers in 1938 and early in 1939 (when they were affiliated with the Congress for Industrial Organizations) his expense accounts were rejected because he was accused of engaging in "dual and disruptive activities." Gorman's salary as president of the organization also was held up, the complaint charged.

Taft declared the activities were Gorman's efforts to bring the textile workers into the American Federation of Labor, with which the union now is affiliated.

District Red Cross Appeals for Linen

Layettes requested for 300 mothers are now being made by chapter workers. Donations should be sent to the Red Cross Chapter House, 1730 E street northwest.

BLAME YOUR LIVER IF—

If your liver doesn't secrete 20 to 30 ounces of bile every day into your intestines—constipation with its headaches, mental dullness and that "half-alive" feeling often result. So you see how important it is to keep bile flowing freely. And what finer aid could one desire than Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, used so successfully for years by Dr. F. M. Edwards for treating his patients for constipation and sluggish liver bile.

Olive Tablets are unsurpassed in effectiveness because they stimulate liver bile to help digest fatty foods, they tone up muscular intestinal action, at the same time help elimination. Being purely vegetable, Olive Tablets are wonderful! Test their supreme goodness TONIGHT! 15¢, 30¢, 60¢. All drugstores.

Men's and Women's Glee Clubs Give Joint Concert at Wilson

The first combined concert of the men's and women's glee clubs of Wilson Teachers College in the school's auditorium last night earned a place as an annual event on the Wilson calendar.

An appreciative audience enjoyed the ambitious program arranged and directed by the faculty adviser, Louis Malkus. Two student directors shared honors for the success of the program. Each, Miss Virginia Roberts, of the women's group, and Richard Wagner, of the men's club, has been outstanding in high school musical work. Wagner was leader of the Tech High Glee Club and has appeared on several broadcasts.

Enhancing the program were two soloists, Frank Mervine, a tenor, and Miss Eleanor Hassin, whose soft soprano voice drew applause. Mervine was especially good in "La Serenata" by Head. Miss Hassin chose as one of her selections Mana-Zuccas' "I Love Life," which gave her an opportunity to exhibit her wide range.

For the lighter side the men's glee club sang a medley of sea chantys, "Eight Bells," "Away to Rio" and "Old Man Noah." The mixed octet was deserving a mention in singing "Come, Gentle Spring," by Hayden and "Now Thank We All Our God" by Warren.

The concert closed with the audience joining in the second verse of the alma mater. Dancing and refreshments completed the program.

Bolton's Estate Valued at $138,180

Cleveland, March 20 (AP).—A probate court inventory filed today valued personal property of Representative Chester C. Bolton, Cleveland Republican, at $138,180. Bolton, who died last October 29, was succeeded as the Twenty-second Ohio District Congressman by his widow, Mrs. Frances Payne Bolton.

The inventory disclosed considerable property is held by the Cleveland Trust Co., trustee, under an agreement executed a number of years ago. From it gifts of $50,000 each will be made to Trinity Cathedray, Lakeside Hospital and Western Reserve University here; $25,000 to the Delphic Club Graduate Association of Cambridge, Mass., and $190,000 divided among three brothers and four nephews.

Bill Would Save Leave for D. C. Witnesses

Legislation permitting Federal employes to testify in police court cases prosecuted by the District without deductions from annual leave has been drafted by Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester Gray, it was disclosed yesterday.

Chief Clerk Walter Bramhall, of Police Court, in a letter to the District Commissioners, pointed out that regulations compelling Federal employes to use part of their annual leave to testify was depriving the court of important witnesses in numerous cases.

The proposed legislation, which provides also for District government employes, will be sent to the Budget Bureau before submission to Congress.

Bramhall told the Commissioners Federal witnesses in cases prosecuted by the Federal Government are protected by statute from losing annual leave while at court. In cases prosecuted by the District the witness loses a day's annual leave for each day in court.

In District cases, he added, Government employes "cannot even be paid the 75 cents a day which we pay witnesses who are not Government employes, due to the fact that they would be drawing money from the Government twice for the same time."

From 1,200 to 1,500 Federal employes lose from one to five days annual leave each year because of the restriction, it is estimated. Bramhall asked the Commissioners to place legislation before the present session of Congress to end discrimination between witnesses in Federal and District cases.
